LAST REMEMBRANCE

The Doughboy statue in front of the old courthouse, destroyed by fire last week, was still surrounded with wreaths after yesterday's Memorial Day observances. Veterans attending the ceremonies, moved at the last minute to San Rafael Military Academy, placed the wreaths around the statue after the service, marking probably the last Memorial Day the old statue will stand on Fourth Street. Pilgrims Shot In Clash Between Viets, Reds

162 Enemy Dead In Shrine Battle

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops fleeing from a battle plunged into a throng of 60,000 Roman Catholics visiting a shrine near Da Nang Sunday. Some of the pilgrims were caught in a crossfire between the Communists and the pursuing South Vietnamese.

One of the pilgrims was killed and 10 wounded in the action around Pra Kieu hamlet, UPI photographer Willie Vicoy reported. An estimated 60,000 pilgrims were visiting the hamlet 730 miles north east of Saigon.

Military spokesmen said at least 162 Communist troops were killed in fighting in the region Sunday, with South Vietnamese losses put at eight dead and 30 wounded.

Initial police reports, however, listed only three persons injured and no dead in the blast at a four-story brick and mortar building in the downtown area.

U.S. officials said there were no American casualties.

The explosion scattered thousands of official documents in the streets and touched off a blaze that sent flames leaping from the windows and burned out the interior of the four-story building.

Vicoy said at least six U.S. helicopter gunships raked Communist positions outside the hamlet with fire. He said the Communist troops at one point came within 200 yards of the Ave Maria Cathedral.

A group of about 15 U.S. soldiers in five armored vehicles and three South Vietnamese armored personnel carriers surrounded the plaza. Vicoy said government regulars, militiamen and national police were involved in the fighting.

Vicoy said the civilians scattered or dropped to the ground when the North Vietnamese soldiers suddenly appeared in their midst, firing aimlessly. Banners and signs were ripped to shreds by the bullets and the grey cement wall of the church was pockmarked by a dozen rounds.

The religious gathering has taken place at Para Kieu every three years since 1885 when the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared before villagers. It was canceled last year because of heavy fighting in the area.

Near the northern end of the A Shau Valley in South Vietnam's northern sector, Communist forces shelled and made a heavy ground attack against a hilltop South Vietnamese artillery base, military spokesmen reported.

Field reports said at least 61 Communists were killed in an hour of fighting at the base. Fifteen South Vietnamese were reported killed and 28 wounded.

Twelve civilians were killed and 11 wounded early Sunday when Communist troops sent 13 rounds of 122mm rockets into Da Nang. Eight of the rockets hit the Da Nang air base but no casualties or damage were reported there.

A U.S. Army OH6 observation helicopter was shot down Sunday over Kompong Cham province in Cambodia and military sources said three allied choppers were downed during the weekend near Snuol, Cambodia, but no casualties were reported in any of the incidents.

Military officers in the field said North Vietnam has moved a 2,900-man regiment across the demilitarized zone (DMZ) into South Vietnam within striking distance of major allied bases.

"We are concerned about it and we are watching carefully," military officers told UPI correspondent Kenneth J. Braddick at the northern provincial capital of Quang Tri.

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of a 10,000-man government operation to clear the northern provinces, told newsmen if he needs U.S. ground units to help push the Communists back into North Vietnam "I'll call them in." "I have been told that American ground troops would be at my disposal if needed," he said. "We need more of everything —troops, air strikes, supplies — to prevent the North Vietnamese from coming to South Vietnam. We would like to drive them back to North Vietnam."

The Communists shelled government positions in South Vietnam 30 times late Saturday and early Sunday, the largest number of such attacks in a 24-hour period in more than a month, military sources reported.

More than sixteen Americans were wounded Sunday in three attacks. Thirteen of the casualties were in an all-day battle between U.S. paratroopers and an enemy force of unknown size on the Central Coast 255 miles northeast of Saigon, spokesmen said.

The spokesmen said three U.S. soldiers were wounded in an assault on Army engineers 25 miles northwest of Saigon and "light casualties with no fatalities" were inflicted by a 10-round mortar barrage on a U.S. artillery position at the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese military headquarters reported an-

Mariner 9 Is Racing To Mars

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Mariner 9 raced two distant Russian probes toward Mars today to orbit the planet, map its battered surface and search from its icy poles to dusty equator for clues of life.

The American spacecraft trailed the farthest Soviet craft by more than 1 million miles, but still was given a chance of reaching Mars first. Officials called the accuracy of Mariner's course "fantastic."

Mariner 9 is scheduled to brake into orbit around Mars Nov. 14. It carries two television cameras and other instruments to survey two-thirds of the Martian surface, analyze its thin atmosphere and look for low, warm and damp spots that might shelter primitive forms of life.

Soviet commentators have hinted Russia's heavy Mars 2 and Mars 3 spacecraft might land on Mars with biological sensors. Mariner will not be able to detect living things from orbit, but may turn up evidence indicating the existence of extraterrestrial life.

Of particular interest to scientists is a mysterious "wave of darkening" suggestive of vegetation moving with the seasons. Mariner 9 is designed to operate in Mars orbit for at least three months to watch for seasonal changes.

Two Die As Auto Rolls Into Ditch

A Mill Valley man and a San Rafael woman were killed today when their car ran off Tiburon Boulevard, rolled into a ditch and caught fire, Tiburon police reported.

Dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 3:15 a.m. were Rod Ray Young, 27, of 45 Lomita Drive and Paulette Tauer, 23, of 55 Fairfax Street.

They were the twelfth and thirteenth to die on Marin highways this year as compared to 15 at this time last year.

Police said the car, a 1957 Chevrolet, was traveling east on Tiburon Boulevard when it crossed the highway and ran off the road into a drain culvert ditch. Officers extinguished the fire.

Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas said death was instantaneous and neither occupant was burned in the fire.

Young owned Rod's Exclusive Dry Cleaning Service in Mill Valley.

Ripon Sees GOP Clash On Reagan For 1972 Race

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Ripon Society says Republican conservatives are unhappy about administration policies and may encourage Gov. Ronald Reagan of California into a showdown with President Nixon for the GOP nomination next year.

"There is one conservative candidate who is not merely waiting in the wings for a call to audition before the GOP convention," the liberal republican society said in the June issue of its magazine, Forum. "He appears to be preparing for a dramatic entrance onto the stage in what may be the last major performance of his career ...

"The California governor is making sure that the President can't ignore him as he plans for 1972."

PALMIRA, Venezuela (UPI) —Farmer Celestino de la Cruz Paredes tried to register his newborn son with the name Canonero II in honor of the Venezuelan horse that won both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Authorities refused.

Local authorities said they felt Paredes was carrying his admiration for horses too far and convinced him to name his son Gustavo —in honor of jockey Gustavo Avila, who rode Canonero II in both races.

Wider Search Underway For More Slaying Victims

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)— Mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona ate a steak dinner and visited with his family and a lawyer in his new jail cell Sunday while authorities widened their search for more bodies.

In 10 days sheriff's deputies have unearthed 23 bodies of itinerant farm workers from crude graves along the serene Feather River in this agricultural area 125 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The 22nd and 23rd bodies were found Saturday. None were uncovered Sunday despite an increase in the force of diggers from 15 to 25 men.

Sutter County Sheriff Roy Whitaker said the search would be expanded to "one or two" adjacent ranches today and would "continue for some time ... several days."

"I don't believe the end is in sight right now," he said. "I just believe there's more out there." He said some of the suspected grave sites were under water from a week of rain and "it will be at least a week under bright sun" before they can be excavated.

Weary deputies, who have been wearing gauze masks, smoking cigars and burning their work clothes and work shoes "to ward off the stench of death," excavated three new "indentations" Sunday and

War Hero Missing On Flight

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (UPI) —Civil Air Patrol planes searched the Blue Ridge Mountain foothills today for a missing private plane carrying actor Audie Murphy, World War II's most decorated American soldier, and four others on a business flight from Atlanta.

The twin-engine Aerocommander last was heard from a few minutes before noon Friday when the pilot, Herman Butler of Crossville, Tenn., asked the Roanoke Flight Service Center for weather information and reported he had overflown his destination, the Blue Ridge Airport at Martinsville.

The CAP set up A command post here and planes began searching a wide area extending from Roanoke southward to Hickory, N.C.—an area about 100 miles long and 75 miles wide. The area is hilly and is bordered on the west by the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The Eastern Air Search and Rescue Center at Warner Robins, Ga., coordinating the search, said the plane had encountered bad weather after taking off from Atlanta's Peachtree-DeKalb Airport at 9:09 a.m. EDT Friday. It has rained in Virginia since early Friday morning.

Pair Holds Hostage, Threatened By Mob

KARTAL, Turkey (UPI)—An angry mob gathered today outside a house and called for the execution of two men holding a 14-year-old girl as hostage inside. The two men wanted for the kidnap-murder of the Israeli Consul General demanded free passage from the country in exchange or her release.

A police spokesman said one of the gunmen said "The only way to save the girl is to let us and the girl travel to Nicosia, Russia or (Palestine) guerrilla bases in Jordan, where on arrival we will release the girl."

While the crowd milled around the three-story house and women yelled "let us crush the vermin," Brig. Gen. Celal Bulutlar told the two gunmen by megaphone he would turn them over to the mob if the girl was harmed.

Police and army units surrounded the whitewalled house where the men barricaded themselves Sunday morning while soldiers rigged ropeladders from the roof in hopes of entering the house and subduing the men.

The young men, who fired occasionally at police, were identified tentatively as Mahir Cayan and Huseyin Cevahir, wanted as suspects in the slaying of Ephraim Elrom, the Israeli consul-general who was kidnaped and then killed eight days ago when the Turkish government refused his abductors' demands.

A woman in this seaside resort 22 miles from Istanbul saw the two youths leave a house. She recognized them from wanted posters, and when she began calling for police one of the men shot and wounded her. A man also as injured.

They ran into the home of Turkish Army Maj. Dincer Erkan. They held his wife Sevim; his son, Tamer, 10; and four female servants for a time before letting them go. However, they kept his daughter, Sebil, 14.)

Vice President Ky Plans To Run For President

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who has had ideological differences with President Nguyen Van Thieu, said Sunday he will run for president in the Oct. 3 elections.

He said that events between now and the election date may change matters, but at the moment he has decided to be a candidate.

Ky also said he believes it is "too late" for a military solution in Vietnam because of the change of public opinion in the United States. He said that six or seven years ago "we had the best conditions to win the military war ... I told President (Lyndon B.) Johnson and all American officials, if you want victory then you must fight the enemy in North Vietnam."

Ky said "the situation today proves what I said. Now it's too late. There has been a changing of public opinion in America."

Ky, once a leading hawk, said the objectives of his country "are still to keep South Vietnam free ... If we cannot achieve it by the military way, then we have to go a different way."

Ky is expected to oppose Thieu, although the president has not announced formally his plans to seek a second term. A third candidate may be Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, hero of the 1963 coup which overthrew the regime of the late Ngo Dinh Diem.

Essentially, Thieu advocates a military victory. Ky prefers a political settlement and Minh wants peaceful coexistence, although not a coalition, with the Communists.

Ky's announcement was greeted calmly by U.S. officials determined to stay removed from the election. U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, long a supporter of Thieu, has been aware for some months Ky was trying to gain enough support and money to enter the race.

Ky, a flamboyant 40-year-old air ace, has considerable appeal among the armed forces and among veterans. He served as prime minister in 1965, but he lost to Thieu for top spot on the ticket in 1967. The two men have grown increasingly farther apart in recent years.

Hijacked Plane With 69 Aboard Still Is Held; Appeal To Castro

MIAMI (UPI)—Despite a direct appeal to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro from airline president Najeeb Halaby, a hijacked Pan American World Airways jetliner spent its second straight night in Havana Sunday with all 69 passengers and crewmen.

A Pan Am spokesman said there was no explanation for the delay in the return of the Boeing 707 hijacked to Cuba Saturday while en route to Miami from Caracas, Venezuela.

"This isn't a record for delayed return yet," said Robert Bonet of Pan Am's Miami office. "In the past planes have been kept up to three days."

He branded as speculation any suggestion the delay was linked to U.S. seizure Wednesday of four Cuban fishing launches with eight crewmen off the Florida coast. "We haven't heard anything that would indicate that," Bonet said.

Four of the fishermen are being held in Key West for trial June 7 on a federal charge of illegal fishing inside the 12-mile U.S. fishing zone off Dry Tortugas. The four were identified as skippers of the four 16 foot boats.

Authorities planned to deport the remaining four fishermen to Cuba as soon as transportation could be arranged.

The Cuban Radio monitored in Miami has denounced the arrest of the fishermen as "illegal, provocative and absolutely unjustified" and claimed the launches were in international waters when seized by the U.S. Coast Guard. However, the broadcasts have not linked the fishing incident to the Pan Am hijacking.

In Caracas, where the hijacker apparently boarded the flight, Pan Am released the text of a cable Halaby sent to Castro Sunday.

"I need not tell you that we feel immensely concerned for the well being of the passengers and crew," Halaby's message said. "We trust that it will be possible to permit the plane, its passengers and crew members to resume their trip without further delay and I would appreciate your personal efforts to achieve this."

Pilot George Ashley announced the hijacking Saturday less than an hour out of Caracas, as the plane was over Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies. The jetliner, which had begun its flight in Buenos Aires, Argentina, touched down at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 6:23 p.m. Saturday.

PROTEST IN LEXINGTON

Philip LaBois of Dighton, Mass., makes his way down stairs at Lexington Town House District Court after his arraignment for staging an anti-Vietnam war protest on Lexington Green. He and about 100 other war veteran protesters were arrested along with 400 townspeople yesterday. Meanwhile, in Boston about 75 veterans camped on Bunker Hill and planned a protest march later today. Police said they expected to make no arrests. (UPI Telephoto)

Argentine Hostage Freed After Food, Goods Deal

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)—The most unusual ransom in the recent worldwide rash of kidnapings—food and goods for the poor —won the release of honorary British Consul Stanley Sylvester after a week as a hostage.

Sylvester was released Sunday and returned home in a cab, telling newsmen on his front lawn "Good morning, gentlemen. As you can see, I am well and I am happy to return home and be with my family."

The kidnapers, who said they were from the leftist People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), made good on their promise to let Sylvester go after officials of the meat packing plant he managed began distributing $62,000 worth of food, clothing and household goods to the poor.

Though Sylvester, 58, is honorary British consul in Rosario, the kidnapers made it plain they abducted him because of his role as manager of the Swift packing plant which had laid off 4,000 workers in the past year because of a beef shortage.

In addition to distributing the goods, the plant officials agreed to hire back hundreds of workers, provide back pay for them and make a number of internal changes at the plant.

The food and goods, wrapped in brown paper, were passed out to shantytown residents from the backs of trucks Friday and Saturday. The ransom included coats, blankets, milk, bread, salt, tea, coffee and other household basics. There were also school supplies for the children.

Many of the residents who crowded around the trucks to get the parcels said they agreed with the demands of the kidnapers, but most also agreed with Jose Almada who said as he received a package "I'm in agreement with this. But only if they don't kill the consul."

Sylvester was released Sunday morning in a quiet part of Rosario and hailed a cab to take him home. He was kidnaped the previous Sunday by three armed men who accosted him in front of his home.

1,000 Fans Given LSD At Concert

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—About 1,000 young people attending a rock concert billed "The Grateful Dead" got stoned Sunday night when they drank LSD-spiked "liquid refreshments" provided during an intermission.

Alison McDonald, a Berkeley woman who attended the concert by the Dead, the New Riders of the Purple Sage and R. J. Fox at the Winterland Arena, said that during a band break an anonymous voice announced over the PA system:

"Those of you who are going to get some liquid refreshment pass it on so your neighbor can have some."

Miss McDonald said, "When it was passed around, it tasted like watered down apple juice—I took a sip because I was very thirsty."

She said in less than an hour she knew she had taken something more than apple cider.

"It was okay acid," she said, "but I feel sorry for anyone who took more than two sips."

Police later reported that the nearby Mount Zion Hospital treated more than 30 persons during a five-hour period who complained of going through a "bad trip." No one was hospitalized.

Police who estimated 1,000 of the 4,500 attending the rock concert were affected by the spiked drinks, said they arrested six men and one woman for investigation.

Church Moderator Defends Angela Aid

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UPI)—The head of the United Presbyterian Church Sunday defended a $10,000 grant by the church toward the defense fund for Angela Davis.

"We need to support young blacks," Mrs. Lois Stair, Waukesha, first woman ever elected moderator of the 3.1 million member church, said in an interview.

"I don't think Angela Davis was right, but the grant was merely to pursue justice," Mrs. Stair told the Milwaukee Sentinel at a reception for her at her home church here.

"I appreciate the grief this brings to those who do not understand the action. We all want to support justice," she told the newspaper.

Mrs. Stair made the comments in answer to objections she has heard since returning from Rochester, N.Y., where she presided over the 183rd General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church.

Announcement of the grant for the defense fund by the church's Emergency Fund for Legal Aid had sparked heated debate on the General Assembly floor.

Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnapping and criminal conspiracy arising from the killing of Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons last August at the Marin County Civic Center.

Mrs. Stair said the grant was "not just an attempt to buy affection of blacks and young people." She said it was "quite a positive statement that the Christian faith has the power to withstand Communism."

"I've seen first hand the bitterness of young blacks raised in Christian families who were never permitted to take full advantage of their abilities," Mrs. Stair said. "Angela Davis is one of these."

A week ago, Mrs. Stair sent a special letter to presbyterian pastors across the country explaining the reasons for the grant. She pointed out the funds were granted at the request of the St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City, Calif., without prejudging Miss Davis guilty or innocent of the charges against her.

The letter also explained "serious questions" about the propriety of the grant were expressed in the General Assembly.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Ancient Tomb Found

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet archeologists have found intact a burial site containing two bodies that reveals new information about the nomads who roamed southern Russia before the birth of Christ, spilling blood but encouraging culture.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Sunday the discovery dating back to the Scythian civilization of the 4th century B.C. was made in a burial mound near the Ukrainian city of Dnepropetrovsk.

The bodies were believed members of a royal family.

"It gives a full idea of the Scythian rites and the social status of those buried in it," Tass said of the tomb.

Antireform March

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Some 2,000 Roman Catholic traditionalists headed by 180 children in white communion robes marched on St. Peter's Basilica Sunday night in their strongest demonstration yet against liberal church reforms.

Pope Paul VI ignored them. The traditionalists said he refused to grant them an audience. The Vatican tried to minimize news coverage of the demonstration by banning photographers and television cameramen from St. Peter's Square.

Sadat Burns Tapes

CAIRO (UPI)—President Anwar Sadat today made a bonfire of tape recordings and documents containing bugged conversations of private citizens, Cairo radio said.

For 30 minutes the head of state threw tapes onto a blazing pyre as thousands of Egyptians shouted "burn, burn."

The radio said the tapes and documents were collected from the offices of ex-presidential affairs minister Sami Sharaf and the secret police.

ACLU Mission

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) undertook the chore today of notifying 2,400 defendants arrested in antiwar demonstrations here early this month that the government has dropped charges against them.

The District of Columbia Corporation Counsel's office said the charges were dropped because it did not have enough information to prosecute.

A spokesman for the ACLU reported there were few addresses for the 2,400 against whom charges were dropped. But he encouraged any person who was arrested and subsequently released to get in touch with the ACLU.

Baez Cut Short

TOULON, France (UPI)—Charging she was planning to brand France as a "Fascist country," the state-run French television network cut short a live appearance by folk singer Joan Baez Sunday.

Miss Baez had been billed as the star of the afternoon show "Tele-Dimanche" but had completed only one song "Blowing in the Wind" when the show was taken off the air and replaced by a sports program.

Producer Raymond Marcillac said he took the action because Miss Baez insisted on reading a statement before going on with her recital.

Crisis Warning Lag

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon's multibillion dollar Defense Communications System (DCS) takes 69 minutes to send a "flash" message in a crisis because of poor management, according to a congressional report.

The DCS also needs an average of 100 minutes to send a message stamped "immediate," said the report, which questioned:

"What could be expected from Department of Defense communications generally, and the defense communications system specifically, in a general war situation?"

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., a member of the Armed Services Investigating subcommittee that prepared the report released over the weekend, concluded, "We are in a hell of a mess."

Strike Threatened

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A nationwide strike of Western Union employes was threatenec for Tuesday after bargaining between the telegraph company and a union representing 17,000 employes broke off.

A company spokesman said the bargaining committee for the United Telegraph Workers (UTW) broke off talks after rejecting a management offer of a 20 per cent pay boost.

Few Reds Agree To Go Back

SAIGON (UPI)—The International Red Cross screened 660 sick and wounded Communist prisoners in South Vietnam and only 13 want to be repatriated to North Vietnam on June 4, U.S. sources said today.

The repatriation, which was to have been the largest group of Communist prisoners to be returned north during the Indichina War, still will be held at the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing Vietnam if the North Vietnamese agree to accept the reduced number of men.

The sources added that the prisoners will have until June 2 to change their mind about going home. On that date, the South Vietnamese foreign ministry will hold a news conference to announce further details.

The decision of the 647 other prisoners to remain in the south surprised American, South Vietnamese and Red Cross officials and was seen as a diplomatic coup for the allies.

It was unclear what would happen to the prisoners who decided to remain in the south, but most of them have been hospitalized at the half dozen POW camps around the country.

Peace Corps Head Sees New U.S. Era

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Peace Corps Director Joseph H. Blatchford says the Indochina War marks the end of "a brief in an omniscient, omnipresent, all-powerful America."

Blatchford predicted in a commencement address at American University that "a new day of clearer perspective, with a keener sense of scale, is ahead."

FILIBUSTER RECORD? — Texas state Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth does some knee bends to relieve the strain after apparently setting a world record of filibustering. Kennard talked for 29 hours and 22 minutes against a bill that would have changed the University of Texas at Dallas from a two-year to a four-year school. Former Oregon Sen. Wayne Morse previously held the record of 22 hours, 26 minutes.

Vice President Ky Plans To Run For President

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who has had ideological differences with President Nguyen Van Thieu, said Sunday he will run for president in the Oct. 3 elections.

He said that events between now and the election date may change matters, but at the moment he has decided to be a candidate.

Ky also said he believes it is "too late" for a military solution in Vietnam because of the change of public opinion in the United States. He said that six or seven years ago "we had the best conditions to win the military war ... I told President (Lyndon B.) Johnson and all American officials, if you want victory then you must fight the enemy in North Vietnam."

Ky said "the situation today proves what I said. Now it's too late. There has been a changing of public opinion in America."

Ky, once a leading hawk, said the objectives of his country "are still to keep South Vietnam free ... If we cannot achieve it by the military way, then we have to go a different way."

Ky is expected to oppose Thieu, although the president has not announced formally his plans to seek a second term. A third candidate may be Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, hero of the 1963 coup which overthrew the regime of the late Ngo Dinh Diem.

Essentially, Thieu advocates a military victory, Ky prefers a political settlement and Minh wants peaceful coexistence, although not a coalition, with the Communists.

Ky's announcement was greeted calmly by U.S. officials determined to stay removed from the election. U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, long a supporter of Thieu, has been aware for some months Ky was trying to gain enough support and money to enter the race.

Ky, a flamboyant 40-year-old air ace, has considerable appeal among the armed forces and among veterans. He served as prime minister in 1965, but he lost to Thieu for top spot on the ticket in 1967. The two men have grown increasingly farther apart in recent years.

Hijacked Plane With 69 Aboard Still Is Held; Appeal To Castro

MIAMI (UPI)—Despite a direct appeal to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro from airline president Najeeb Halaby, a hijacked Pan American World Airways jetliner spent its second straight night in Havana Sunday with all 69 passengers and crewmen.

A Pan Am spokesman said there was no explanation for the delay in the return of the Boeing 707 hijacked to Cuba Saturday while en route to Miami from Caracas, Venezuela.

"This isn't a record for delayed return yet," said Robert Bonet of Pan Am's Miami office. "In the past planes have been kept up to three days."

He branded as speculation any suggestion the delay was linked to U.S. seizure Wednesday of four Cuban fishing launches with eight crewmen off the Florida coast. "We haven't heard anything that would indicate that," Bonet said.

Four of the fishermen are being held in Key West for trial June 7 on a federal charge of illegal fishing inside the 12-mile U.S. fishing zone off Dry Tortugas. The four were identified as skippers of the four 16 foot boats.

Authorities planned to deport the remaining four fishermen to Cuba as soon as transportation could be arranged.

The Cuban Radio monitored in Miami has denounced the arrest of the fishermen as "illegal, provocative and absolutely unjustified" and claimed the launches were in international waters when seized by the U.S. Coast Guard. However, the broadcasts have not linked the fishing incident to the Pan Am hijacking.

In Caracas, where the hijacker apparently boarded the flight, Pan Am released the text of a cable Halaby sent to Castro Sunday.

"I need not tell you that we feel immensely concerned for the well being of the passengers and crew," Halaby's message said. "We trust that it will be possible to permit the plane, its passengers and crew members to resume their trip without further delay and I would appreciate your personal efforts to achieve this."

Pilot George Ashley announced the hijacking Saturday less than an hour out of Caracas, as the plane was over Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies. The jetliner, which had begun its flight in Buenos Aires, Argentina, touched down at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 6:23 p.m. Saturday.

Argentine Hostage Freed After Food, Goods Deal

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)—The most unusual ransom in the recent worldwide rash of kidnapings—food and goods for the poor —won the release of honorary British Consul Stanley Sylvester after a week as a hostage.

Sylvester was released Sunday and returned home in a cab, telling newsmen on his front lawn "Good morning, gentlemen. As you can see, I am well and I am happy to return home and be with my family."

The kidnapers, who said they were from the leftist People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), made good on their promise to let Sylvester go after officials of the meat packing plant he managed began distributing $62,000 worth of food, clothing and household goods to the poor.

Though Sylvester, 58, is honorary British consul in Rosario, the kidnapers made it plain they abducted him because of his role as manager of the Swift packing plant which had laid off 4,000 workers in the past year because of a beef shortage.

In addition to distributing the goods, the plant officials agreed to hire back hundreds of workers, provide back pay for them and make a number of internal changes at the plant.

The food and goods, wrapped in brown paper, were passed out to shantytown residents from the backs of trucks Friday and Saturday. The ransom included coats, blankets, milk, bread, salt, tea, coffee and other household basics. There were also school supplies for the children.

Many of the residents who crowded around the trucks to get the parcels said they agreed with the demands of the kidnapers, but most also agreed with Jose Almada who said as he received a package "I'm in agreement with this. But only if they don't kill the consul."

Sylvester was released Sunday morning in a quiet part of Rosario and hailed a cab to take him home. He was kidnaped the previous Sunday by three armed men who accosted him in front of his home.

KATE WEBB'S SAGA

Captors' Questioning Breaks Monotony

By KATE WEBB
U.P. International

Editor's Note: Following is the seventh in a series of personal impressions written by UPI's 28-year-old Phnom Penh bureau chief about her capture and release 23 days later by North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia.

The frankness of our captors amazed and puzzled me. Toshiichi Suzuki of Nihon Denpa News and I both requested interviews, and it was we who subsequently ran out of questions. The Vietnamese never tired of talking. It indicated, I personally concluded, the confidence which they kept expressing that public opinion was on their side throughout the world. Through the interviews and chats with guards, as well as what we saw, we obtained a glimpse of what has puzzled the world — how and why they fight.

We spent two weeks in a place we called Phum Kasat (Press Village). It seemed to be some kind of transient camp, a collection of thatched roof "hootches" huts scattered under thickets of trees between two villages. We were confined to two small huts, one built on the second day when it became obvious the six of us were too cramped in the first.

They put Suzuki and me in one hootch, the Cambodians in the other. There was a manger-type wooden water trough, small bamboo table, hammocks and mosquito nets. We were permitted to walk only to a "squat-hole" type toilet about 50 yards away through some trees at the rear. A lean-to bath house, with a crock of water filled only three times before we were released, backed onto the small hut Suzuki and I shares on those interminably long days and nights.

We had no idea why we were there or for how long. We sometimes lost track of the days and never saw our faces in a mirror. I made a crude sun dial out of a stick in the ground. We gauged when our twice daily meals would come by when the cows from the east village walked past.

The monotony was broken only during our conversations with the officers and casual chats with our guards. Otherwise, it was nightly Radio Hanoi broadcasts, rising before dawn for exercises and speculating on the movements of the villagers and 20 or so military personnel in the camp.

One night the guards gave Suzuki and me half a coconut shell filled with rank, firey rice wine. It was the only night we slept well. One day we saw them pull a motorcycle out of a haystack. There were days we huddled in a bunker while U.S. AH1 "Cobra" helicopter gunships and "slicks" (UH1 Hueys) circled overhead. Sweating, we were aware that the black pajamas they had provided for me and the green uniforms given the men would identify us as part of the Communist outfit if ever there was an attack.

I made some daily entries on the back of a cigarette package:

"Friday 16th. S. Chhim Sarath, UPI driver interpreter in depths of all-time low. After yesterday's interrogation he sure he going to be zapped. He told me he told not to talk to me. But said I was English and always very good. He huddles in corner silent all day. If had more paper would write essay on prisoners as domestic pets. New house means we must be in for long stay."

"Saturday 17th. Ten days now and days do not vary. We told that interpreter fighting at Pich Nil. My feet worse. Suz and I questioned by "dad"; thin man with bad eyes and girl in black pajamas, speaking bad French. We told to answer in writing 29 questions, and asked if anything want. Tailor measures us for clothes. What the hell is this? Hot, hot."

"Sunday 18th. Interrogated all day by young man with screwed-up index finger with wound. I call him The Finger. Notice girl has wedding ring, tough face, soft voice. Dad there and two old men, one in civilian clothes and specs speaking very good french. The other squat in mil. unif. They all laugh when I ask of their difficulties with Sihanoukists. Splitting headache after interrogation. All in French."

Captors' Questioning Breaks Monotony

By KATE WEBB
U.P. International

Editor's Note: Following is the seventh in a series of personal impressions written by UPI's 28-year-old Phnom Penh bureau chief about her capture and release 23 days later by North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia.

The frankness of our captors amazed and puzzled me. Toshiichi Suzuki of Nihon Denpa News and I both requested interviews, and it was we who subsequently ran out of questions. The Vietnamese never tired of talking. It indicated, I personally concluded, the confidence which they kept expressing that public opinion was on their side throughout the world. Through the interviews and chats with guards, as well as what we saw, we obtained a glimpse of what has puzzled the world — how and why they fight.

We spent two weeks in a place we called Phum Kasat (Press Village). UAR Claims Army Of One Million Men

By United Press International

An Egyptian officer said today his country has nearly one million men under arms — three times more than previously estimated by Western experts.

The unidentified officer was quoted by the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram in a story dealing with the reported dismissals of officers in the government purge by President Anwar Sadat. The newspaper reported the officer said the government shakeup "did not lead to the pensioning off or dismissal of any member of these forces, whose number is approaching one million."

Western military sources have estimated the Egyptian armed forces at 288,000. Egyptian leaders recently claimed they can put 750,000 men in the field, but the figure of nearly a million was the highest estimate to date.

In Beirut, the rightwing newspaper An Nahar's Cairo correspondent reported that Syria has agreed to let Egypt station 25 of its fighter-bombers on Syrian territory. He said the aim was to give Egypt easier striking ability against targets in Israel.

The newspaper also reported that Israel has established "napalm pumping stations" in the occupied Sinai for use should the Egyptians try to cross the Suez Canal. It said Egyptian and Soviet officers have discussed means of dealing with these napalm stations.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said the current negotiations may be the last chance to reopen the Suez Canal.

Eban, in a prerecorded interview with the armed forces radio broadcast Sunday, said "the world is becoming used to the absence of this property, to the nonexistence of the Suez Canal, and this may be the last opportunity for saving the canal."

The canal has been closed since the 1967 war and the United States currently is acting as middleman in negotiations for some form of agreement between Israel and Egypt to reopen it.

Fresh fighting between Arab guerrillas and government forces was reported in Jordan over the weekend. An army officer was killed and two other persons injured when two mines planted by the Palestinian guerrillas went off Sunday.

In Damascus, the guerrilla newspaper Fatah said King Hussein's troops were mobilizing large forces to attack remaining commando bases north of the Jordanian capital of Amman. And in Beirut a guerrilla spokesman said Jordanian forces supported by heavy artillery began shelling guerrilla positions near Sumya. The commandos returned the fire, he said.

Whitaker said his office has received "about 800" telephone calls, "some at the rate of one a minute," from all over the country and Canada since Friday. They were from persons inquiring if a missing relative or friend might be among the victims.

Stacks of mail also were piled on the sheriff's desk from persons offering advice on possible motives and telling him how to handle the case . . . Whiteaker said he hasn't had time to look at the mail. He saw his wife and children for the first time in four days Saturday night.

All the victims were caucasians ranging in age from 40 to 63. Most had been clubbed about the back of the head and face and stabbed in the chest.

Corona, 37, a stocky Mexican-American farm contractor with four young daughters and a history of mental illness, has been charged with 10 counts of murder. Public defender Roy Van Den Heuvel said Corona would plead innocent when arraigned on the charges Wednesday in Yuba City.

Most damning evidence against Corona appeared to be two receipts made out to him from a meat company where he bought food for his farm workers. The receipts were found in one of the victim's graves.

Court affidavits filed over the weekend pictured the suspect as a man of violent temper who at times had to be restrained by tying him with ropes; and as a man who owned weapons smeared with "possible blood stains."

Motive for the multiple slayings remained unclear. The district attorney and other authorities were investigating reports Corona became enraged when his application for aid to dependent children was rejected and he possibly vented his wrath on non-Mexican farm workers, some of whom were collecting welfare checks.

Corona was transferred early Sunday across the Feather River to the larger county seat jail at Marysville "for security purposes and more adequate facilities."

Corona was visited at his new jail cell by his mother, Candida Corona, 68, who arrived Saturday night from Autlan, Mexico; his wife, Gloria, a native of India; his brother Pedro and the Public Defender.

Corona ate a hearty meal of steak, potatoes, corn, coffee and bread Sunday evening.

three-story white house. With them was Erkan, who was carrying a machinegun and vowed that "if those thugs kill Sebil, I will go in and kill them."

Although the youths shot at the government forces surrounding the house, police and soldiers did not fire back for fear of hitting the girl. Sebil was paraded before a third-floor window occasionally so onlookers could see she was all right. Police controlled the first two stories of the house.

Army Maj. Hayri Cevik talked to the two suspects early today and told them to surrender. They said they would, but wanted passports and free passage out of the country guaranteed before they would release their hostage.

As the night dragged on, police set up powerful searchlights around the house and by dawn a large crowd was gathered behind the circle of government forces.

Officers using megaphones shouted for the gunmen to surrender. Brig. Gen. Celal Bulutlar said "surrender and you will not be mistreated. Do not (surrender) and I will turn you over to the people."

MARS

The 2,200-pound, $65 million spacecraft was launched late Sunday. It performed one important maneuver after another before settling down for its curving, 247-million mile interplanetary voyage.

Mariner 9 was operating on its own today, using the bright star Canopus as a celestial reference point along with the sun and the shrinking earth. A central computer that can be cued from earth controlled routine operations. "It appears as though we have a very successful and promising mission for Mariner 9", said a spokesman at the Mariner Control Center at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif. "The spacecraft behavior is completely normal."

Still ahead is an important course correction scheduled Saturday. It will compensate for a deliberate trajectory error programmed into Mariner's rocket to eliminate the possibility that the probe or rocket would hit and contaminate Mars.

The Atlas-Centaur rocket that launched Mariner 9 was identical to the one that carried Mariner 8 to destruction May 8. But it worked smoothly Sunday, accelerating Mariner 9 to 24,500 miles per hour in 13 minutes to break Earth's gravitational grip.

Dr. George M. Low, deputy Space Agency administrator, said Mariner 9's mission racked second only to Apollo moonlightS in importance to the agency this year. It marked the beginning of a planetary exploration program covering all eight other planets in 10 years. all eight other planets in 10 years.

Second, through the large and competent news bureau of United Press International which reports for the I-J and hence for you. At least seven top political reporters sit through legislative sessions, question the legislators, examine the issues and keep you "on top" of legislation and coming events.

UAR Claims Army Of One Million Men

By United Press International

An Egyptian officer said today his country has nearly one million men under arms — three times more than previously estimated by Western experts.

The unidentified officer was quoted by the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram in a story dealing with the reported dismissals of officers in the government purge by President Anwar Sadat. The newspaper reported the officer said the government shakeup "did not lead to the pensioning off or dismissal of any member of these forces, whose number is approaching one million."

Western military sources have estimated the Egyptian armed forces at 288,000. Egyptian leaders recently claimed they can put 750,000 men in the field, but the figure of nearly a million was the highest estimate to date.

In Beirut, the rightwing newspaper An Nahar's Cairo correspondent reported that Syria has agreed to let Egypt station 25 of its fighter-bombers on Syrian territory. He said the aim was to give Egypt easier striking ability against targets in Israel.

The newspaper also reported that Israel has established "napalm pumping stations" in the occupied Sinai for use should the Egyptians try to cross the Suez Canal. It said Egyptian and Soviet officers have discussed means of dealing with these napalm stations.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said the current negotiations may be the last chance to reopen the Suez Canal.

Eban, in a prerecorded interview with the armed forces radio broadcast Sunday, said "the world is becoming used to the absence of this property, to the nonexistence of the Suez Canal, and this may be the last opportunity for saving the canal."

The canal has been closed since the 1967 war and the United States currently is acting as middleman in negotiations for some form of agreement between Israel and Egypt to reopen it.

Fresh fighting between Arab guerrillas and government forces was reported in Jordan over the weekend. An army officer was killed and two other persons injured when two mines planted by the Palestinian guerrillas went off Sunday.

In Damascus, the guerrilla newspaper Fatah said King Hussein's troops were mobilizing large forces to attack remaining commando bases north of the Jordanian capital of Amman. And in Beirut a guerrilla spokesman said Jordanian forces supported by heavy artillery began shelling guerrilla positions near Sumya. The commandos returned the fire, he said.

Whitaker said his office has received "about 800" telephone calls, "some at the rate of one a minute," from all over the country and Canada since Friday. They were from persons inquiring if a missing relative or friend might be among the victims.

Stacks of mail also were piled on the sheriff's desk from persons offering advice on possible motives and telling him how to handle the case . . . Whiteaker said he hasn't had time to look at the mail. He saw his wife and children for the first time in four days Saturday night.

All the victims were caucasians ranging in age from 40 to 63. Most had been clubbed about the back of the head and face and stabbed in the chest.

Corona, 37, a stocky Mexican-American farm contractor with four young daughters and a history of mental illness, has been charged with 10 counts of murder. Public defender Roy Van Den Heuvel said Corona would plead innocent when arraigned on the charges Wednesday in Yuba City.

Most damning evidence against Corona appeared to be two receipts made out to him from a meat company where he bought food for his farm workers. The receipts were found in one of the victim's graves.

Court affidavits filed over the weekend pictured the suspect as a man of violent temper who at times had to be restrained by tying him with ropes; and as a man who owned weapons smeared with "possible blood stains."

Motive for the multiple slayings remained unclear. The district attorney and other authorities were investigating reports Corona became enraged when his application for aid to dependent children was rejected and he possibly vented his wrath on non-Mexican farm workers, some of whom were collecting welfare checks.

Corona was transferred early Sunday across the Feather River to the larger county seat jail at Marysville "for security purposes and more adequate facilities."

Corona was visited at his new jail cell by his mother, Candida Corona, 68, who arrived Saturday night from Autlan, Mexico; his wife, Gloria, a native of India; his brother Pedro and the Public Defender.

Corona ate a hearty meal of steak, potatoes, corn, coffee and bread Sunday evening.

three-story white house. With them was Erkan, who was carrying a machinegun and vowed that "if those thugs kill Sebil, I will go in and kill them."

Although the youths shot at the government forces surrounding the house, police and soldiers did not fire back for fear of hitting the girl. Sebil was paraded before a third-floor window occasionally so onlookers could see she was all right. Police controlled the first two stories of the house.

Army Maj. Hayri Cevik talked to the two suspects early today and told them to surrender. They said they would, but wanted passports and free passage out of the country guaranteed before they would release their hostage.

As the night dragged on, police set up powerful searchlights around the house and by dawn a large crowd was gathered behind the circle of government forces.

Officers using megaphones shouted for the gunmen to surrender. Brig. Gen. Celal Bulutlar said "surrender and you will not be mistreated. Do not (surrender) and I will turn you over to the people."

The 2,200-pound, $65 million spacecraft was launched late Sunday. It performed one important maneuver after another before settling down for its curving, 247-million mile interplanetary voyage.

Mariner 9 was operating on its own today, using the bright star Canopus as a celestial reference point along with the sun and the shrinking earth. A central computer that can be cued from earth controlled routine operations. "It appears as though we have a very successful and promising mission for Mariner 9", said a spokesman at the Mariner Control Center at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif. "The spacecraft behavior is completely normal."

Still ahead is an important course correction scheduled Saturday. It will compensate for a deliberate trajectory error programmed into Mariner's rocket to eliminate the possibility that the probe or rocket would hit and contaminate Mars.

The Atlas-Centaur rocket that launched Mariner 9 was identical to the one that carried Mariner 8 to destruction May 8. But it worked smoothly Sunday, accelerating Mariner 9 to 24,500 miles per hour in 13 minutes to break Earth's gravitational grip.

Dr. George M. Low, deputy Space Agency administrator, said Mariner 9's mission racked second only to Apollo moonlightS in importance to the agency this year. It marked the beginning of a planetary exploration program covering all eight other planets in 10 years. all eight other planets in 10 years.

Park Plaza Plan On Sausalito Agenda

A proposal to put Sausalito's controversial park plaza plan to voters next April will be considered by the Sausalito City Council at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

Because it calls for the eventual elimination of most of the city's largest parking lot, Municipal Lot No. 1, in order to create an open space park in the area, businessmen and some residents oppose the plan.

Last week, the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce, Sausalito Citizens Council and Sausalito Businessmen's Association joined forces to seek a referendum, probably in a special election, on the park plan. When it adopted the plan, the council agreed to discuss the possibility of placing the measure on the ballot at the city's next regular election in April, but made no final decision.

Prepared by San Mateo planning consultant William E. Spangle, the three-stage proposal would create a series of parks, malls and pedestrian walkways in the center of Sausalito's commercial district.

The council will also consider a plan to extend the review powers of the Sausalito appearance advisory board to include single-family residential structures. Currently, the board reviews plans for new construction and additions to commercial, and industrial properties and multiple dwellings.

The Sausalito Recreation Commission will present a recommendation on the proposal to redesign and reopen Vina Del Mar Park. The park has been closed for more than a year because heavy foot traffic in the small area.

Park Plaza Plan On Sausalito Agenda

A proposal to put Sausalito's controversial park plaza plan to voters next April will be considered by the Sausalito City Council at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

Because it calls for the eventual elimination of most of the city's largest parking lot, Municipal Lot No. 1, in order to create an open space park in the area, businessmen and some residents oppose the plan.

Last week, the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce, Sausalito Citizens Council and Sausalito Businessmen's Association joined forces to seek a referendum, probably in a special election, on the park plan. When it adopted the plan, the council agreed to discuss the possibility of placing the measure on the ballot at the city's next regular election in April, but made no final decision.

Prepared by San Mateo planning consultant William E. Spangle, the three-stage proposal would create a series of parks, malls and pedestrian walkways in the center of Sausalito's commercial district.

The council will also consider a plan to extend the review powers of the Sausalito appearance advisory board to include single-family residential structures. Currently, the board reviews plans for new construction and additions to commercial, and industrial properties and multiple dwellings.

The Sausalito Recreation Commission will present a recommendation on the proposal to redesign and reopen Vina Del Mar Park. The park has been closed for more than a year because heavy foot traffic in the small area.

Goodwin, who had been out on $1,000 bail, was arrested April 14 in San Francisco along with two Mill Valley residents, Roger G. Leibowitz of 40 Hillside Lane and Charles S. Wismer, 21, of 342 Live Oak Drive, in connection with the sale of 36,000 tablets of LSD to undercover agents.

Leibowitz and Wismer Friday were bound over to superior court and are scheduled to appear June 18 for arraignment.

Candy Sales Operator Due For Fine Or Jail

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The owner of a house-to-house candy selling operation that was run out of San Anselmo a year ago has been scheduled to appear in court Thursday either to pay $500 or begin serving 50 days in jail for five labor code violations.

Fritz Thus, head of the Student Opportunity of Lafayette which employed juveniles as salesmen, was sentenced May 25 in Oakland-Piedmont Judicial municipal court.

He was arrested last August by Oakland police on suspicion of 34 labor code violations. At that time, Thus pleaded innocent. Several hearings were held before April 21 at which time he changed his plea to guilty.

The five sections of the labor code violated concern working a child under age 16 as a street peddler; working a minor more than eight hours in one day or before 5 a.m. or after 10 p.m.; failure to carry workmen's compensation insurance and itemizing deductions with paychecks.

San Anselmo police picked up two 16-year-old peddlers in July and told them to leave town. The youths identified Thus as head of the company and police warned him that his activities violated the anti-peddling ordinance in that city. His employes reappeared later in the month and again were ordered from the town.

The candy which sold at $1.35 a box, was netting more than $8,000 profit monthly, police estimated. Thus's traveling teams were working from Santa Cruz to Bel-Marin Keys.

Earthquake Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation placing on the June 1972 ballot a $350 million bond issue mainly to make all schools earthquake proof, his office has announced.

Officers Ordered: Hands Off Nudes

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Pasadena police are under orders to keep hands off nude dancers.

Superior Judge Max Z. Wisot Friday enjoined police — "reluctantly" he said —not to interfere with nude dancers at two bars unless they become lewd or obscene.

High-Speed Chase Ends In Arrest

A high speed chase down Highway 101 at speeds of 90 to 100 miles per hour ended when the chased car went into a ditch on Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, police reported today.

Ralph James Clifford, 21, of 126 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, was booked into Marin County Jail Saturday on suspicion of reckless driving and evading arrest. He posted $120 bail to appear Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police started chasing Clifford on Highway 101 at the Lucas Valley Road, at 1:30 a.m. Clifford momentarily lost police and turned down Los Gallinas Avenue. When police saw his car in a ditch, Clifford got out and started after Patrolman James A. Cunha to fight him. Sgt. John F. Riordon stopped Clifford by firing a warning bullet into the ground, police reported.

The first modern safety pin was patented in 1849.

Pilot Killed While Dropping Flowers

FORLI, Italy (UPI)—A pilot lost control of his two-seater plane Sunday while dropping flowers over a Pentecost procession in the village of Pieve Dirivoschio and smashed into a house.

The pilot, Mariano Assirelli, 44, was killed in the crash and his passenger was injured.

State Trying To Save Bald Eagle

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The state government has begun a new campaign to save the once-plentiful bald eagle from doom in California.

The graceful but bashful eagle—America's national emblem—has been rapidly disappearing from the California wildlife scene in recent years, the victim of people and pollution.

Recognizing that the soaring bird with a 6-to-8-foot wng span may be near extinction, the California Fish and Game Commission has placed the eagle on a list of 19 endangered wildlife species.

The move clears the way for state action to help the bald eagle survive in California.

Robert Mallette, associate wildlife manager-biologist for the State Fish and Game Department, notes that many bald eagles existed here until the 1920s and 1930s when people began migrating to California in large numbers.

Now, he says, the number of resident bald eagles in California is down to "probably around 100."

Mallette attributes the decline of the bald eagle to loss of habitat, scarcity of food and pollution.

"The influx of civilization has caused encroachment of habitat," he said in an interview.

Mallette said the eagle has been driven from its living quarters by people such as loggers who cut trees containing nests. Sometimes, he eaid, people also inadvertantly scare eagles away from nests which contain eggs.

"In some cases disturbances at the nest will cause chicks to starve to death when adult birds won't come in," he said.

Another contributor to the bald eagle's demise is the declining spawning runs of fish which migrate from the ocean to fresh water. Eagles traditionally feed on the carcasses of fish who die after spawning.

"Sometimes they eat live fish, too, but usually they take the easy way out and feed on the dead spawners," said Mallette.

The wildlife expert said fish food for eagles not only is dwindling but some fish contain poisonous pollutants which are eaten by the huge birds.

State wildlife personnel spotted only 24 California nesting sites of bald eagles from 1967 through 1970. Almost all were in the northern point of the state.

The nests were sighted in relatively remote sections of Del Norte, Shasta, Trinity, Alpine, Amador, Butte, Plumas, Lake, Napa, Fresno and Siskiyou counties.

Mallette is not disclosing the exact nest locations for fear the birds will be disturbed by persons rushing to photograph or just view them.

He said the department has begun an intensive effort to count bald eagles and other declining birds to "get an index of breeding population and nesting success."

"With our knowledge of where the eagles are, we can give them protection so that persons won't disturb them," he said.

The bald eagle also is on the U.S. Department of Interior's endangered species list. Officially, it is known as the southern bald eagle. Its northern cousin still thrives in upper Canada and Alaska.

With the southern bald eagle now on the endangered list, the department will report on its status to the legislature and the governor every two years and recommend action to preserve and possibly even enhance its population.

Harriman Says Russ 'Immature'

NEW YORK (UPI)—W. Averell Harriman, former chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, said Sunday the lead in arms control must come from the United States because the Soviet Union is too immature.

Harriman said in an interview the Russians were "awfully afraid" world opinion regarded them as not strong enough to build more weapons and still attain domestic improvements.

"We're mature enough to be able to take that kind of criticism," he said.

Some musical events include the free summer Sunday concerts at Stern Grove, San Francisco, beginning June 6, the 35th annual Bach Festival in San Francisco, June 6-14, and the opening Marin Music Chest concert series at Forest Meadows, Dominican College, June 29. Santa Rosa Junior College will hold the Sixth Annual Artrium Festival of the Visual and Performing Arts, June 17-20, on campus.

Warrant Out In Drug Case

I-J Special Report

Leibowitz and Wismer Friday were bound over to superior court and are scheduled to appear June 18 for arraignment.

Candy Sales Operator Due For Fine Or Jail

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The owner of a house-to-house candy selling operation that was run out of San Anselmo a year ago has been scheduled to appear in court Thursday either to pay $500 or begin serving 50 days in jail for five labor code violations.

Fritz Thus, head of the Student Opportunity of Lafayette which employed juveniles as salesmen, was sentenced May 25 in Oakland-Piedmont Judicial municipal court.

He was arrested last August by Oakland police on suspicion of 34 labor code violations. At that time, Thus pleaded innocent. Several hearings were held before April 21 at which time he changed his plea to guilty.

The five sections of the labor code violated concern working a child under age 16 as a street peddler; working a minor more than eight hours in one day or before 5 a.m. or ofter 10 p.m.; failure to carry workmen's compensation insurance and itemizing deductions with paychecks.

San Anselmo police picked up two 16-year-old peddlers in July and told them to leave town. The youths identified Thus as head of the company and police warned him that his activities violated the anti-peddling ordinance in that city. His employes reappeared later in the month and again were ordered from the town.

The candy which sold at $1.35 a box, was netting more than $8,000 profit monthly, police estimated. Thus's traveling teams were working from Santa Cruz to Bel-Marin Keys.

If Academy Closes, San Rafael Is Loser

The academy, faced with imminent closing for lack of funds, undertook a campaign to raise $200,000 to see it through the summer — with hope that a guarantor for a new loan can be obtained to keep it in operation next fall. The campaign has met scant success.

The Episcopal Diocese of California has promised to see the school through the final weeks of the current term, according to Col. Derrick Whiting, the school's headmaster. But it will not guarantee a new loan. Unless some other guarantor can be found, or the church can sell the property to some other organization that wishes to keep the school going, there will be no San Rafael Military Academy after June.

FINANCIAL TROUBLES are not new for the school. It has had them recurrently during its 80 years of existence. Twenty years ago, it was faced with closing, but managed to rally new support. A few years later, financial strictures forced sale of much of its property — now occupied by medical offices and the Odd Fellows Hall. A decade ago, it was saved again when purchased by the Episcopal Church. It ceased to be an Episcopal diocesan institution last fall.

This time, the trouble is compounded by the anti-military feeling so widespread in the United States. The discipline of military schools, highly regarded in the past, has become an object of ridicule among a generation brought up in the opposite philosophy of freedom to "do your thing" with little or no discipline, fostered by the so-called progressive education approach in public and many private schools.

As a result, the number of military prep schools has been declining sharply. Only four are left in California: Army and Navy Academy at Carlsbad, San Diego County; San Diego Military Academy at Del Mar; Lake Elsinore Military Academy in Riverside County, and that in San Rafael — the only remaining military school in Northern California.

WHETHER OR NOT an individual believes that military discipline is good for growing boys, the existence of such schools is good for the educational system. They provide an alternative approach — something that educators in and out of the public schools believe is important. The need to preserve such alternatives has been stressed by Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction. It is behind the bills by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-South San Francisco, to permit trial of the "voucher plan" in California.

Complicating the local situation further is the fact that San Rafael Military Academy sits on a very desirable piece of real estate. Developers would like to get the property for apartment house or other use — which would be profitable where a school is not.

San Rafael, however, would be the loser.

When Bill's About Lawyers You Can Expect Long Debate

By JOHN KELSEY

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Well, the cornerstone of the nation surely must be the right of every man to go to law school, or study under a lawyer.

And nobody is going to take away that right, because once a young man manages to pass those tough bar exams, no matter how he got his law education, he's got the stuff and the right to hang his shingle. Rich or poor, any boy in the union can grow up to be president — or a lawyer — or, like Richard M. Nixon and others, both.

That was the tone of the debate in the Assembly, when the 60 or so members present spent 40 minutes of a one and one-half hour session debating legislation that would affect the state bar examinations.

Not that the legislation was particularly sweeping. It's just that lawyering is very close to the hearts of almost a majority of assemblymen.

ONE OF THE TWO bills involved, in the words of its author Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, doesn't do anything at all; and the other, according to its author Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, makes bar examinations a little more efficient. Legialation of far greater import has gone through the same chamber so fast the air shimmers.

See, 32 of the 80 assemblymen are lawyers themselves. It's even worse in the Senate, where 22 attorneys make a majority of the 39 sitting senators.

The background to the two bills is simple, interesting, and not alarming. Bill Greene, who started the debate with AB 597, isn't a lawyer. He describes himself as a full-time legislator, and he represents a black district in Los Angeles. Some time ago, some young constituents came to him with a pressing worry — they attended a non-accredited law school at night, and had heard (correctly) that the state bar examiners were contemplating two different bar exams — one for students who can afford to attend big, shiny accredited law schools, and a tougher one for those who go at night to little, non-accredited law schools, or take their torts by correspondence course. They didn't think that was right, so they wanted a bill to make sure the state bar keeps on giving the same exam to everyone. Meantime, between the complaint and the bill, the bar examiners agreed and dropped the two-test turkey.

So the total effect of Green's bill was to make sure everything stays the way it is now. Some of the dozen speeches that ensued were hailing the preservation of the hard-work ethic by which any boy could become a real, live lawyer. Some damned the dastardly bar examiners as a closed corporation trying to squeeze the little guy. Some haw-hawed the bill as needless.

THE DEBATE COULD have gone on all day, from the temperature the eloquence was reaching, particularly from Oakland night-school lawyer Robert Crown; but cooler heads called the question and Greene won handily by 62 to 7.

Maddy's bill (AB 1557) also passed, by a much narrower margin of 42 to 25. It would permit the bar examiners to use true-or-false and multiple choice questions, to replace some of the essay questions. After a long debate, Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, moved reconsideration of the aye vote.

Needless to say, when the reconsideration move reached the floor several days later, the lawyers hove to and repeated themselves again, for more than half of a 40-minute session. Reconsideration lost.

THE POINT, HOWEVER, is not the merits of either bill. The point is that both of them are pretty small potatoes transformed into weighty issues simply because the lawyers outnumber everybody else. Bill Bagley, R-San Rafael, put it best at the close of the reconsideration debate when he said he was sorry the bar exams had to take up the time of the legislature at all, for surely the bar examiners could be trusted with determining the form of their own examinations.

Probalby, the lawyers would argue that it is for the best to have a great many practitioners of the law making the law. But we don't think so. The hell of it is that another law to limit the number of lawyers and get a few more ordinary men in there would, of course, tromp on the constitutional rights of the lawyers themselves.

Conflict Of Interest On Selection Committee

The proposed one per cent payroll tax is now under review by the San Francisco supervisors' finance committee. As Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste has stated, this will inflict a terrific burden on the Marin County commuter.

San Francisco's chief administrative officer, Thomas Mellon, is a staunch supporter of this tax. He has been appointed to serve on the committee to select a new chief administrative officer for Marin County. I heartily agree with Supervisor Baptiste, that Thomas Mellon, due to his bias regarding this tax, should be removed from this committee.

What's It All About Regarding Eel River?

It is encouraging to see our Senator Behr pushing for legislation to declare the Eel, Klamath and Trinity rivers as "Wild Rivers". It is unfortunate that our local county government and agencies are in fact, supporting the opposite effort.

Annual dues to the Eel River Water Council are $5500 per year, of which 10 per cent is paid by Marin County, the North Marin Water Council pays one-third of the balance and the Marin Municipal Water District pays $3,300.

It is also interesting to note that in January of 1970, Mr. William P. Seeger, general manager of the MMWD was directed by Mr. (Robert G.) Anderson, president of the MMWD board, to have a representative of the Eel River Water Council make a presentation to the board to "find out what it's all about."

Both newly elected directors (Eugene A.) Miller and (Ray W.) Foreaker stated publicly that they would ask the Marin County Board of Supervisors to conduct public hearings on the participation of Marin County in the Eel River Water Council. No such request has been forthcoming from them nor the MMWD.

Are Mr. Behr and the county on opposite courses?

Motorcycling Parks Would Provide Answer

Reference is made to Harlan G. Koch's letter to you of May 26. Just to set the record straight, I decried only the county supervisors' actions in passing another ordinance when there are already sufficient laws on the books.

I agree 100 per cent with Mr. Koch. Passing another ordinance banning motorcycles when there are adequate ordinances not being enforced accomplishes nothing and does not address itself to the real problem, that is, a place for cyclists to pursue their form of recreation or elimination of the noise problem. Mr. Arnold H. Baptiste's action, as a member of the board of supervisors, in forming an ad-hoc committee to study the problem and to recommend areas for public riding, is progressive and commendable. I understand the committee is anxious to receive views from the community on the subject. The people need more of this kind of positive approach. Legislation to control off-road indiscrimative use of motorcycles is not the answer. Community support is needed for public motorcycle parks for this type of recreation. Several parks situated throughout the county will help solve the problem Mr. Koch and others in the community face.

Would Suppress Victims' Identities

I am writing this letter on behalf of the board of directors of the Kent Woodlands Property Owners Association and the residents of our areas whom we represent.

It is our wish that you reconsider your current policy of identifying each week, by name and address, residents of the county who have been robbed. It is our feeling that by divulging this specific information you are directing attention to homes that perhaps are more easily burglarized. I should point out that this feeling is based upon the fact that a number of our residents have suffered more than one robbery in recent years. According to a recent edition of the Independent-Journal you have stated that this information is taken verbatim from the police report. My suggestion would be that you could draw attention to the number of crimes in the community by identifying these burglaries only in terms of street location and amount stolen. In this manner you would obtain the publicity that you and the police feel is necessary while at the same time protecting the identity of the individuals.

Grand Jury Should Probe School Funds

During 1964-66 and '68, the Marin County superintendent of schools received grants from the Ford and Kettering Foundations totaling $34,500 to be used by the Reed School District to establish an innovative educational program.

For some unknown reason, these grants were given to the Reed district with no check or accounting as to how these funds were to be expended.

In the meanwhile, personnel of the Reed School District seemed to be using these grants for their own personal use and gains.

When Gordon C. Wright and Kenneth G. Wells were elected as new members of the Reed school board, they started an investigation into the misuse of these funds.

In order to stop this audit as to whom and why this money was taken from these grants, the same group who have been running the Reed district, with the help of one of the Reed trustees, started bringing false and petty charges against Gordon Wright, which ended up in a recall election, which was successful . . .

Thanks to Reed trustee Kenneth G. Wells, all the facts of this misuse of school funds were printed in the I-J of May 20.

. . . As a taxpayer in the Reed district, I strongly suggest that the Marin County Grand Jury investigate this mess . . .

Not Generation Gap But False Philosophy

There is no "generation gap." There is only the horrible results of what so many children were taught to become.

It's no credit to this society that the human horrors that pass as "beautiful people," spaced out, disease ridden, with drug exploded minds, are in the minority. What is tragic are the many children who today are mere mediocrities of their once potential selves (by children I mean from progressive nursery school age to college level).

If you doubt this just check out the next "confrontation" between students and police. There is where you see the well trained sheep willingly follow the first thug with the lung capacity to cut through their foggy minds.

The only "gap" that can possibly exist is the gap between reality and the unreality offered our children via social-orientated schools with little or no regard for the individual, religions that claim entrance to an unknown heaven by destruction of your self-esteem, political thinking that puts social requisites above the rights of individuals with the result that if you work, own property and keep it looking nice you are penalized for your initiative by taxation while welfare recipients scream about blood baths if they don't receive their unearned eyeglasses by next week . . .

Unwilling to face reality, the leaders on all levels in this country have faked it for too long and now the bill is due and payable.

Good News Comes In Bunches With Chance For Better World

It's coming — in bunches.

Six men from six countries primarily deserve credit and recognition. They are President Richard Nixon of the United States; Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist leader; Georges Pompidou, president of France; Edward Heath, British prime minister, Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, and Cou En-lai, premier of the People's Republic of China.

They are laying the building blocks of a more stable world and at last these are beginning to fit.

It has been a long time coming but now the most breathtakingly significant beginnings are going forward all at once.

ANY ONE OF THE following events is salutory beyond measure:

The United States-Russian decision to move toward reducing both defensive and offensive nuclear weapons.

The decision by the NATO and Soviet-Warsaw Pact countires to negotiate a mutual reduction of the two million combat troops which confront each other in Europe.

The prospect of a stronger and wider European Common Market with admission of Britain, Ireland, Norway and Denmark.

The action of West Germany to uproot the seeds of hostility between it and Poland and to improve relations with Moscow.

TOGETHER THESE developments constitute an immense potential, capable of enabling diverse peoples and sometimes hostile political systems to work and move and have their being on the same planet.

Apparently the main architects of these initiatives discerned the timing almost simultaneously and each made a vital contribution to the sum of what is taking place today.

Premier Chou En-lai saw that, with the cultural revolution having run its course, China would be better off to break its self-imposed isolation.

Chancellor Brandt realized that the unfinished business of World War II — a peace settlement with Moscow and Warsaw — must be concluded.

President Pompidou could see that Europe needed Britain and Britain needed Europe, and wisely reversed De Gaulle's petulant veto.

British Prime Minister Heath has had the vision and the patience to accomplish what previous Labor and Conservative governments have tried but failed — to get acceptable terms to join in building a more unified Western Europe.

Party Chairman Brezhnev overcame the hawks in the Kremlin and opened the way to a wide range of negotiations with the United States and Western Europe.

NIXON'S OWN initiatives have been considerable and unpublicized. In February, 1969, less than a month after he took office, he wrote a memorandum to the State Department laying down his objectives of a detente with mainland China. He encountered resistance by some of the experts who kept saying that being friendly to China would lose him the good will of the Soviet Union. He never wavered from his goal and now is in the process of getting better relations with China and better response from Moscow because of the China detente.

On the SALT talks Nixon has been in direct, personal communication with Premier Kosygin. By not hastily grabbing at the Russian proposal for limiting defensive weapons only — as Senate critics urged him to do — he has won agreement to negotiate on offensive weapons as well.

Peace isn't just around the corner, but the outlines of a more stable world are becoming visible.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

ROBERTSON, Tex. — He is short, especially if you compare him to the Texan of legend. His hair is off-white and his eyes bright blue. His nose is like a hawk's bill. The skin on his neck is creased and brown, like that on the back of his hands. His voice is not assertive, and it doesn't have to be.

When he walks into the Pioneer-First National Bank in Lubbock, everybody who knows who's who says, "Howdy, Mr. Wheeler," and not merely out of respect for his 70 years.

JOHN WHEELER CAME to the South Plains of Texas the first time in 1920, out of Yall County, Ark., which is about 90 miles west of Little Rock. He came on the train to Plainview and then hitched a ride down the road and found a job driving a team back and forth to a wheat bindery. It paid $5 a day, which was good money in those days, but it didn't last long.

From there he went to another farm job at $3 a day and then another at $2.50. Soon after, a farmer gave him a Jersey heifer for digging all the loco weed out of 160 acres of pasture. That's a lot of loco weed.

With some cash in his pocket he returned to the Ozark foothills, but the open plains called him back. A lot of Texans were moving on farther west, looking for something greener. But to Wheeler, Texas as "looked good compared to the hills and sassafras bushes and saw briers." So when he came back in 1923, he rented 200 acres and farmed 150 of it with eight mules, growing cotton and feed. The other 50 he grubbed for wood, which is not sizable enough around here to call it timber.

HE CAN REMEMBER each year since in terms of rainfall and crops. In 1925, for example, the first decent rain came June 7, and there was no cotton.

He also remembers in which year he bought a quarter-section of land, and when he was able to buy 500 acres. In the '30s he expanded when less-stubborn neighbors, or those with less cushion, moved on. In the leanest years he was never too proud to hire himself out. "I always found me something to do. I didn't sit around on my brownie," he says.

So now he is farming 8,000 acres, and owns 3,000 more. He is in cotton, feed and cattle, and owns a grain elevator. That is why the bankhands say, "Howdy, Mr. Wheeler" so deferentially.

HE STOOD THE OTHER day in the schoolyard here at Robertson and talked about how and why life for the farmer has changed since he settled just down the road. But he didn't have to say much, standing there on the cracked dry earth while a turkey gobbler sneaked into the high weeds beside the school.

The school is boarded up. Askew's General Store across the road is abandoned. Most of the houses up and down the road are, too. Tnere is a small cotton gin, but nothing else seems alive in what was once a busy crossroads village.

The people moved away, driven first by hard times that cost the small farmers their land, then by mechanization that cost many farmhands their jobs. Farmers unprotected by the banks or government-guaranteed credit, and hands unprotected by contracts or minimum wages, could not ride out earlier droughts like the one that grips the South Plains again this year.

OF COURSE the drought hurts everybody, large and small, city and country, in this part of the world. Wheeler looked into the brassy sky and estimated that the next two to three weeks would tell whether crops can be made this summer. But he knew that whether it rained or not, he would survive.

He pointed off toward other towns that have been boarded up in Crosby County. He didn't say so, but there was clear pride in the fact that all those others had moved on, but he had stayed and prospered. You had to ask before he acknowledged any outside help, but then he gave credit freely to the Roosevelt administration for starting programs that kept farmers going. He added that those programs had been continued by all the administrations since.

Machinery, repairs and interest are now priced "plumb out of reason," he complained. There was both pride and complaint in his notation that he has to pay his hands a federal minimum wage now, and he would not lay them off even if this was a bad year. He didn't have such protection when he was scrambling for a living, he reminded you, but he always found work to do.

You got the feeling he was about to say something about government interference and handouts, but under the circumstances he never quite did. He is realistic, which is one reason his holdings are scattered over 85 miles of the Texas Plains.

High-Speed Chase Ends In Arrest

A high speed chase down Highway 101 at speeds of 90 to 100 miles per hour ended when the chased car went into a ditch on Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, police reported today.

Ralph James Clifford, 21, of 126 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, was booked into Marin County Jail Saturday on suspicion of reckless driving and evading arrest. He posted $120 bail to appear Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police started chasing Clifford on Highway 101 at the Lucas Valley Road, at 1:30 a.m. Clifford momentarily lost police and turned down Los Gallinas Avenue. When police saw his car in a ditch, Clifford got out and started after Patrolman James A. Cunha to fight him. Sge. John F. Riordon stopped Clifford by firing a warning bullet into the ground, police reported.

State Trying To Save Bald Eagle

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—The state government has begun a new campaign to save the once-plentiful bald eagle from doom in California.

The graceful but bashful eagle—America's national emblem—has been rapidly disappearing from the California wildlife scene in recent years, the victim of people and pollution.

Recognizing that the soaring bird with a 6-to-8-foot wng span may be near extinction, the California Fish and Game Commission has placed the eagle on a list of 19 endangered wildlife species.

The move clears the way for state action to help the bald eagle survive in California.

Robert Mallette, associate wildlife manager-biologist for the State Fish and Game Department, notes that many bald eagles existed here until the 1920s and 1930s when people began migrating to California in large numbers.

Now, he says, the number of resident bald eagles in California is down to "probably around 100."

Mallette attributes the decline of the bald eagle to loss of habitat, scarcity of food and pollution.

"The influx of civilization has caused encroachment of habitat," he said in an interview.

Mallette said the eagle has been driven from its living quarters by people such as loggers who cut trees containing nests. Sometimes, he eaid, people also inadvertantly scare eagles away from nests which contain eggs.

"In some cases disturbances at the nest will cause chicks to starve to death when adult birds won't come in," he said.

Another contributor to the bald eagle's demise is the declining spawning runs of fish which migrate from the ocean to fresh water. Eagles traditionally feed on the carcasses of fish who die after spawning.

"Sometimes they eat live fish, too, but usually they take the easy way out and feed on the dead spawners," said Mallette.

The wildlife expert said fish food for eagles not only is dwindling but some fish contain poisonous pollutants which are eaten by the huge birds.

State wildlife personnel spotted only 24 California nesting sites of bald eagles from 1967 through 1970. Almost all were in the northern point of the state.

The nests were sighted in relatively remote sections of Del Norte, Shasta, Trinit;, Alpine, Amador, Butte, Plumas, Lake, Napa, Fresno and Siskiyou counties.

Mallette is not disclosing the exact nest locations for fear the birds will be disturbed by persons rushing to photograph or just view them.

He said the department has begun an intensive effort to count bald eagles and other declining birds to "get an index of breeding population and nesting success."

"With our knowledge of where the eagles are, we can give them protection so that persons won't disturb them," he said.

The bald eagle also is on the U.S. Department of Interior's endangered species list. Officially, it is known as the southern bald eagle. Its northern cousin still thrives in upper Canada and Alaska.

With the southern bald eagle now on the endangered list, the department will report on its status to the legislature and the governor every two years and recommend action to preserve and possibly even enhance its population.

Harriman Says Russ 'Immature'

NEW YORK (UPI)—W. Averell Harriman, former chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, said Sunday the lead in arms control must come from the United States because the Soviet Union is too immature.

Harriman said in an interview the Russians were "awfully afraid" world opinion regarded them as not strong enough to build more weapons and still attain domestic improvements.

"We're mature enough to be able to take that kind of criticism," he said.

Many Pre-Opening Handicaps For Auditorium That Isn't

Marin's oft-maligned new auditorium-theater at the Civic Center has a couple of strikes against it even before it has come up to bat.

It's going to need all the support is can possibly get because thus far, the odds are heavily stacked against what has been called a "white elephant" and a "row of silos."

HERE ARE SOME of the factors that have given the building its infamous reputation:

A series of delays kept the public wondering when and if the auditorium would ever be completed. Fair-Marin Inc., delegated to administer the auditorium and fairgrounds, was dissolved amid considerable acrimony over who should raise the funds to complete the building, and when.

When the supervisors did take the bull by the horns and poured in money to complete the building, the structure turned up with the wrong end facing the highway.

And finally, the naming of the building created yet another furore, and this issue may not be settled yet.

FROM THE OUTSET, the name Veterans Memorial Auditorium was the generally accepted name. Veterans organizations were represented on the Fair-Marin board of directors and talked hopefully of having meetings in the auditorium.

Use of the building for meetings by local organizations and even for small conferences was being discussed as recently as two years ago.

But sometime between 1969 and today, the "meeting rooms" completely vanished. What were marked off as "meeting room" and "office space" are occupied by the manager and his secretary because there's no other space for them.

IT'S NO WONDER that the veterans organizations, and for that matter, any other group which had hoped to have meetings or small conferences in the building, felt a bit cheated.

Veterans got so peeved, they even asked that the name "veterans" be deleted from the building name. That's how the name of the auditorium got changed last week in a 3-to-2 vote.

Arnold Baptiste suggested that "auditorium" be knocked off, leaving only Marin Veterans Memorial. He got two other votes, and so that's the official name now.

Why not retain the name "auditorium"? Kalimos explains that the building isn't really an auditorium at all. It's not like the Richmond Auditorium with a multi-purpose flat floor area in the center (for basketball, wrestling, or other sports events) with tiered seating surrounding the central floor area.

Marin's new building has only two main components: (1) a theater with 900 fixed seating and almost 1,200 moveable seating, and (2) a flat exhibit area behind the moveable seating. It's a theater-exhibit hall.

WE AGREE THAT "Marin Veterans Memorial Theater-Exhibit Hall" would be too long and awkward. But we'd feel much more comfortable if the name ended with something other than "memorial" — something more concrete like theater, center, building, or hall.

It would be awful tiring to have to keep explaining to visitors from out of county that the Marin Memorial is a functional building where you can sit and enjoy performances, not a landmark like the Washington Monument where you stand and snap souvenir shots.

Headlands Musical Fete Stated Outdoors, June 13

Music and nature lovers will celebrate a new kind of musical experience at the Cushing Memorial Theater on Mount Tamalpais on June 13 at 1 p.m., the Marin Symphony Guild announced today.

The concert, Hymn to the Headlands, is in support of legislation currently before Congress which would officially designate the Golden Gate headlands as a national recreation area. The concert is being presented by the Marin Symphony Guild in collaboration with such conservation groups as Friends of the Earth, Nature Conservancy, California Coastal Alliance, the Sierra Club, Headlands Inc., and People for a Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The program's diversity will mirror the variety of its audience's tastes. It will include Sandor Salgo conducting the Marin Symphony, alternating with the experimental electronic jazz of the Denny Zeitlin Trio; Hugo Rinaldi conducting the Marin Youth Orchestra, followed by special guest artist Ali Akbar Khan playing the sarod and Zakir Huessin, the tablas.

"Our dream has been to give Bay Area music lovers, new and old, the opportunity to share great music together in the incomparable natural beauty of Mount Tamalpais," said Mrs. J. Paul Oppenheim, concert chairman who has spearheaded the drive to make the concert possible.

Six thousand persons can picnic in the amphitheater, which opens at noon, and for those who prefer to buy their food, stands will sell refreshments, including organic food.

Access to the mountain theater may be by foot, ferry, horseback, bus or automobile. Shuttle bus service, at 50 cents each way, will be available at the ferry wharf in downtown Sausalito, the Sausalito ferry parking lot by the Big G supermarket, the Town and Country Village Shopping Center parking lot in Strawberry and from the Mill Valley bus depot.

Popular prices will prevail for reserved admissions, general admissions, admissions for youth under 12 and senior citizens over 65.

Suddenly, Bureaucracy Just Loves The Consumer

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Like teenagers chasing the school's shortest skirt, federal agencies are embracing consumerism in a bureaucratic hug. Some critics consider it more selfish lust than enduring love.

The Commerce Department, which has clashed with consumer advocates on several issues, is shopping for a $17,000 official to write press releases on consumer topics.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), by law a consumer protection agency, has set up a consumer affairs office. It wants a $400,000 budget, the same amount sought by the Commerce Department's new National Business Council for Consumer Affairs.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), FDA's parent agency, has not only an office for consumer services but also a new intradepartmental consumer council.

Similar shoots have sprouted at the Justice and Transportation Departments, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and the General Services Administration (GSA).

"THE BUREAUCRACY recognizes that it's wise to wrap oneself in the banner of consumerism," said Frank E. McLaughlin, director for industry relations in Virginia H. Knauer's White House consumer affairs office.

McLaughlin said it is too early to evaluate the new operations. But Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., chairman of the Democratic Study Group's consumer task force, said some agencies "use the word 'consumer' as a device to cloak their real activities."

"It's an exercise in futility and sleight-of-hand, more a public relations gesture than a legitimate effort at consumer protection," Rosenthal said in an interview.

THE AGENCIES, however, dispuge this with claims of progress. HEW's office of consumer services is helping poor residents of three model cities areas establish buying cooperatives and credit unions.

Dr. Mervin F. Silverman, director of FDA's office of consumer affairs, said his staff has cut a backlog of 2,000 inquiries to a few hundred, and is directing activities of 20 FDA consumer specialists in 18 cities. They advise on topics from nutrition to clothing flammability, Silverman said.

ICC has published a booklet advising families on the financial practices of household movers. GSA, the government's purchasing agent, is indexing the consumer products it buys and releasing information on them. It promises brand by brand identification in some cases.

WILLIAM D. LEE, executive director of Commerce's business council for consumer affairs, said the group will try to convince business that it can best avoid regulation by voluntarily improving advertising, warranties and quality.

Some of the goals are less precise, at least to the nonbureaucrat. In a press release, HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson described the work of his new intradepartmental consumer council in these words:

"All of HEW's consumer services emerged as a meaningful integrated whole. This concept must be recognized throughout the department."

U. S. Troop Level In Vietnam Falls

SAIGON (UPI) —Another 3,600 Americn troops, mostly members of the Marine Corps, were withdrawn from Vietnam last week, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

Command records showed that withdrawals currently are running at a much higher rate than the one needed to achieve the current goal of a 184,000-man troop level in Vietnam by next Dec. 1.

The latest batch of withdrawals, part of the seventh phase of President Nixon's program to pull American troops out of the decade-old Indochina War in easy stages, brought U.S. strength down to just above the quarter-million mark.

Housing Authority Plan On Tap

A controversial proposal to centralize administration of the Marin County Housing Authority will be presented to the housing authority board at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Manzanita Center, Marin City.

The plan, presented by authority executive director Wallace K. Shepherd, would involve combining some administrative positions and moving records and clerical personnel to the authority's main office in Marin City.

The leased housing office would remain in San Rafael under the plan, Shepherd said, but much of the program's paperwork would be taken care of in Marin City. The leased housing director would report to the Marin City office each day, then go to San Rafael to handle lease negotiations and contract work.

The current housing manager for the county's four senior citizens's housing projects would become a roving trouble shooter for all public housing in the county, handling complaints, records and rent collections.

On May 4, the board received the executive director's centralization plan but asked for additional time to study the proposal.

The housing authority board will also select a chairman and vice chairman at the meeting.

Contract Let For Bolinas Center Library

Bolinas Community, Inc. have avoided a $10,780 contract for alterations to the community center for use as a library.

Gordon Baldwin, board treasurer, said the award was based on a low bid submitted by Meil T. Burton, Kentfield contractor. It was one of two offered to the board.

Work is expected to begin in two weeks, Baldwin said.

In a leasing arrangement, $10,000 of the cost will be paid by Marin County. The county will lease the premises for five years and seven months.

In order to meet the additional $780 plus an estimated $2,220 for landscaping, the board plans to hold benefits and ask for public subscriptions, Baldwin said.

The contract was awarded by the Bolinas group Friday.

Red Cross Shifting To Immediate Needs

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The American Red Cross has decided to cut back on its longterm relief services and to concentrate its time and money on the immediate needs of disaster victims —food, clothing and shelter.

The new policy presumes that federal programs and private disaster insurance, which has become increasingly available, will take up the slack left by cutbacks in such Red Cross services as helping victims rebuild homes and businesses, and pay long-term medical and hospital bills.

"We will continue to provide recovery assistance, but the scope of the Red Cross in that phase of disaster operations has been drastically altered," ARC chairman E. Roland Harriman said.

Officials said the policy change made at the organization's 1971 convention in Washington a greater demand for Red Cross disaster services, which has caused a financial drain on the agency's treasury.

ARC's vice president Robert F. Shea, said the policy change also reflected a belief by the group that such voluntary services were not enough to provide for full recovery for disaster-hit families.

The new policy, Shea said, is "a recognition that we were not encouraging development of other family resources to the degree we should have."

In an interview, Harriman said private insurance companies were now writing wind insurance, and the federal government was sponsoring flood and water insurance in 350 areas eligible for it. Both insurance services are expected to reduce the need for Red Cross rehabilitation services, he said.

An even more important development, Harriman added, was passage of the Disaster Relief Act of 1970, which authorizes government agencies to extend long-term, low interest loans "with liberal forgiveness provisions to victims in any disaster area designated by the President.

Shea said the Red Cross had spent $18.5 million on disaster relief so far in the fiscal year ending June 30 —most of it to aid victims of Hurricane Celia that devastated the Corpus Christi, Tex., area; the Los Angeles earthquake, and Mississippi tornadoes.

About 85 per cent of the aid went for emergency help, he estimated, and the rest to long-term aid to help families get back on their feet.

"The long-standing Red Cross policy provided for recovery help to disaster victims who had no other resources or places to turn to for help," Harriman said. "Now, with the available insurance coverage and the availability of government agency assistance, some outside resource is almost universally at hand.

"We will now concentrate in our disaster programs on the all-important subject of preparedness, on immediate emergency relief and on rapid referral to the proper outside resource."

Farallon Bill Passes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill outlawing the shooting of animals and birds and catching of fish within one mile of the Farallon Islands was approved 52-0 by the Assembly Friday and sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

If Academy Closes, San Rafael Is Loser

The academy, faced with imminent closing for lack of funds, undertook a campaign to raise $200,000 to see it through the summer — with hope that a guarantor for a new loan can be obtained to keep it in operation next fall. The campaign has met scant success.

The Episcopal Diocese of California has promised to see the school through the final weeks of the current term, according to Col. Derrick Whiting, the school's headmaster. But it will not guarantee a new loan. Unless some other guarantor can be found, or the church can sell the property to some other organization that wishes to keep the school going, there will be no San Rafael Military Academy after June.

FINANCIAL TROUBLES are not new for the school. It has had them recurrently during its 80 years of existence. Twenty years ago, it was faced with closing, but managed to rally new support. A few years later, financial strictures forced sale of much of its property — now occupied by medical offices and the Odd Fellows Hall. A decade ago, it was saved again when purchased by the Episcopal Church. It ceased to be an Episcopal diocesan institution last fall.

This time, the trouble is compounded by the anti-military feeling so widespread in the United States. The discipline of military schools, highly regarded in the past, has become an object of ridicule among a generation brought up in the opposite philosophy of freedom to "do your thing" with little or no discipline, fostered by the so-called progressive education approach in public and many private schools.

As a result, the number of military prep schools has been declining sharply. Only four are left in California: Army and Navy Academy at Carlsbad, San Diego County; San Diego Military Academy at Del Mar; Lake Elsinore Military Academy in Riverside County, and that in San Rafael — the only remaining military school in Northern California.

WHETHER OR NOT an individual believes that military discipline is good for growing boys, the existence of such schools is good for the educational system. They provide an alternative approach — something that educators in and out of the public schools believe is important. The need to preserve such alternatives has been stressed by Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction. It is behind the bills by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-South San Francisco, to permit trial of the "voucher plan" in California.

Complicating the local situation further is the fact that San Rafael Military Academy sits on a very desirable piece of real estate. Developers would like to get the property for apartment house or other use — which would be profitable where a school is not.

San Rafael, however, would be the loser.

By JOHN KELSEY

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Well, the cornerstone of the nation surely must be the right of every man to go to law school, or study under a lawyer.

And nobody is going to take away that right, because once a young man manages to pass those tough bar exams, no matter how he got his law education, he's got the stuff and the right to hang his shingle. Rich or poor, any boy in the union can grow up to be president — or a lawyer — or, like Richard M. Nixon and others, both.

That was the tone of the debate in the Assembly, when the 60 or so members present spent 40 minutes of a one and one-half hour session debating legislation that would affect the state bar examinations.

Not that the legislation was particularly sweeping. It's just that lawyering is very close to the hearts of almost a majority of assemblymen.

ONE OF THE TWO bills involved, in the words of its author Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, doesn't do anything at all; and the other, according to its author Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, makes bar examinations a little more efficient. Legialation of far greater import has gone through the same chamber so fast the air shimmers.

See, 32 of the 80 assemblymen are lawyers themselves. It's even worse in the Senate, where 22 attorneys make a majority of the 39 sitting senators.

The background to the two bills is simple, interesting, and not alarming. Bill Greene, who started the debate with AB 597, isn't a lawyer. He describes himself as a full-time legislator, and he represents a black district in Los Angeles. Some time ago, some young constituents came to him with a pressing worry — they attended a non-accredited law school at night, and had heard (correctly) that the state bar examiners were contemplating two different bar exams — one for students who can afford to attend big, shiny accredited law schools, and a tougher one for those who go at night to little, non-accredited law schools, or take their torts by correspondence course. They didn't think that was right, so they wanted a bill to make sure the state bar keeps on giving the same exam to everyone. Meantime, between the complaint and the bill, the bar examiners agreed and dropped the two-test turkey.

So the total effect of Green's bill was to make sure everything stays the way it is now. Some of the dozen speeches that ensued were hailing the preservation of the hard-work ethic by which any boy could become a real, live lawyer. Some damned the dastardly bar examiners as a closed corporation trying to squeeze the little guy. Some haw-hawed the bill as needless.

THE DEBATE COULD have gone on all day, from the temperature the eloquence was reaching, particularly from Oakland night-school lawyer Robert Crown; but cooler heads called the question and Greene won handily by 62 to 7.

Maddy's bill (AB 1557) also passed, by a much narrower margin of 42 to 25. It would permit the bar examiners to use true-or-false and multiple choice questions, to replace some of the essay questions. After a long debate, Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, moved reconsideration of the aye vote.

Needless to say, when the reconsideration move reached the floor several days later, the lawyers hove to and repeated themselves again, for more than half of a 40-minute session. Reconsideration lost.

THE POINT, HOWEVER, is not the merits of either bill. The point is that both of them are pretty small potatoes transformed into weighty issues simply because the lawyers outnumber everybody else. Bill Bagley, R-San Rafael, put it best at the close of the reconsideration debate when he said he was sorry the bar exams had to take up the time of the legislature at all, for surely the bar examiners could be trusted with determining the form of their own examinations.

Probalby, the lawyers would argue that it is for the best to have a great many practitioners of the law making the law. But we don't think so. The hell of it is that another law to limit the number of lawyers and get a few more ordinary men in there would, of course, tromp on the constitutional rights of the lawyers themselves.

Conflict Of Interest On Selection Committee

The proposed one per cent payroll tax is now under review by the San Francisco supervisors' finance committee. As Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste has stated, this will inflict a terrific burden on the Marin County commuter.

San Francisco's chief administrative officer, Thomas Mellon, is a staunch supporter of this tax. He has been appointed to serve on the committee to select a new chief administrative officer for Marin County. I heartily agree with Supervisor Baptiste, that Thomas Mellon, due to his bias regarding this tax, should be removed from this committee.

What's It All About Regarding Eel River?

It is encouraging to see our Senator Behr pushing for legislation to declare the Eel, Klamath and Trinity rivers as "Wild Rivers". It is unfortunate that our local county government and agencies are in fact, supporting the opposite effort.

Annual dues to the Eel River Water Council are $5500 per year, of which 10 per cent is paid by Marin County, the North Marin Water Council pays one-third of the balance and the Marin Municipal Water District pays $3,300.

It is also interesting to note that in January of 1970, Mr. William P. Seeger, general manager of the MMWD was directed by Mr. (Robert G.) Anderson, president of the MMWD board, to have a representative of the Eel River Water Council make a presentation to the board to "find out what it's all about."

Both newly elected directors (Eugene A.) Miller and (Ray W.) Foreaker stated publicly that they would ask the Marin County Board of Supervisors to conduct public hearings on the participation of Marin County in the Eel River Water Council. No such request has been forthcoming from them nor the MMWD.

Are Mr. Behr and the county on opposite courses?

Motorcycling Parks Would Provide Answer

Reference is made to Harlan G. Koch's letter to you of May 26. Just to set the record straight, I decried only the county supervisors' actions in passing another ordinance when there are already sufficient laws on the books.

I agree 100 per cent with Mr. Koch. Passing another ordinance banning motorcycles when there are adequate ordinances not being enforced accomplishes nothing and does not address itself to the real problem, that is, a place for cyclists to pursue their form of recreation or elimination of the noise problem. Mr. Arnold H. Baptiste's action, as a member of the board of supervisors, in forming an ad-hoc committee to study the problem and to recommend areas for public riding, is progressive and commendable. I understand the committee is anxious to receive views from the community on the subject. The people need more of this kind of positive approach. Legislation to control off-road indiscrimative use of motorcycles is not the answer. Community support is needed for public motorcycle parks for this type of recreation. Several parks situated throughout the county will help solve the problem Mr. Koch and others in the community face.

Would Suppress Victims' Identities

I am writing this letter on behalf of the board of directors of the Kent Woodlands Property Owners Association and the residents of our areas whom we represent.

It is our wish that you reconsider your current policy of identifying each week, by name and address, residents of the county who have been robbed. It is our feeling that by divulging this specific information you are directing attention to homes that perhaps are more easily burglarized. I should point out that this feeling is based upon the fact that a number of our residents have suffered more than one robbery in recent years. According to a recent edition of the Independent-Journal you have stated that this information is taken verbatim from the police report. My suggestion would be that you could draw attention to the number of crimes in the community by identifying these burglaries only in terms of street location and amount stolen. In this manner you would obtain the publicity that you and the police feel is necessary while at the same time protecting the identity of the individuals.

President, Kent Woodlands

(The Independent-Journal's own investigations indicate that repeat burglaries occur more often in those cases where previous burglaries have been unreported. — Editor.)

Grand Jury Should Probe School Funds

During 1964-66 and '68, the Marin County superintendent of schools received grants from the Ford and Kettering Foundations totaling $34,500 to be used by the Reed School District to establish an innovative educational program.

For some unknown reason, these grants were given to the Reed district with no check or accounting as to how these funds were to be expended.

In the meanwhile, personnel of the Reed School District seemed to be using these grants for their own personal use and gains.

When Gordon C. Wright and Kenneth G. Wells were elected as new members of the Reed school board, they started an investigation into the misuse of these funds.

In order to stop this audit as to whom and why this money was taken from these grants, the same group who have been running the Reed district, with the help of one of the Reed trustees, started bringing false and petty charges against Gordon Wright, which ended up in a recall election, which was successful . . .

Thanks to Reed trustee Kenneth G. Wells, all the facts of this misuse of school funds were printed in the I-J of May 20.

. . . As a taxpayer in the Reed district, I strongly suggest that the Marin County Grand Jury investigate this mess . . .

Not Generation Gap But False Philosophy

There is no "generation gap." There is only the horrible results of what so many children were taught to become.

It's no credit to this society that the human horrors that pass as "beautiful people," spaced out, disease ridden, with drug exploded minds, are in the minority. What is tragic are the many children who today are mere mediocrities of their once potential selves (by children I mean from progressive nursery school age to college level).

If you doubt this just check out the next "confrontation" between students and police. There is where you see the well trained sheep willingly follow the first thug with the lung capacity to cut through their foggy minds.

The only "gap" that can possibly exist is the gap between reality and the unreality offered our children via social-orientated schools with little or no regard for the individual, religions that claim entrance to an unknown heaven by destruction of your self-esteem, political thinking that puts social requisites above the rights of individuals with the result that if you work, own property and keep it looking nice you are penalized for your initiative by taxation while welfare recipients scream about blood baths if they don't receive their unearned eyeglasses by next week . . .

Unwilling to face reality, the leaders on all levels in this country have faked it for too long and now the bill is due and payable.

Good News Comes In Bunches With Chance For Better World

It's coming — in bunches.

Six men from six countries primarily deserve credit and recognition. They are President Richard Nixon of the United States; Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist leader; Georges Pompidou, president of France; Edward Heath, British prime minister, Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, and Cou En-lai, premier of the People's Republic of China.

They are laying the building blocks of a more stable world and at last these are beginning to fit.

It has been a long time coming but now the most breathtakingly significant beginnings are going forward all at once.

The United States-Russian decision to move toward reducing both defensive and offensive nuclear weapons.

The decision by the NATO and Soviet-Warsaw Pact countires to negotiate a mutual reduction of the two million combat troops which confront each other in Europe.

The prospect of a stronger and wider European Common Market with admission of Britain, Ireland, Norway and Denmark.

The action of West Germany to uproot the seeds of hostility between it and Poland and to improve relations with Moscow.

TOGETHER THESE developments constitute an immense potential, capable of enabling diverse peoples and sometimes hostile political systems to work and move and have their being on the same planet.

Apparently the main architects of these initiatives discerned the timing almost simultaneously and each made a vital contribution to the sum of what is taking place today.

Premier Chou En-lai saw that, with the cultural revolution having run its course, China would be better off to break its self-imposed isolation.

Chancellor Brandt realized that the unfinished business of World War II — a peace settlement with Moscow and Warsaw — must be concluded.

President Pompidou could see that Europe needed Britain and Britain needed Europe, and wisely reversed De Gaulle's petulant veto.

British Prime Minister Heath has had the vision and the patience to accomplish what previous Labor and Conservative governments have tried but failed — to get acceptable terms to join in building a more unified Western Europe.

Party Chairman Brezhnev overcame the hawks in the Kremlin and opened the way to a wide range of negotiations with the United States and Western Europe.

NIXON'S OWN initiatives have been considerable and unpublicized. In February, 1969, less than a month after he took office, he wrote a memorandum to the State Department laying down his objectives of a detente with mainland China. He encountered resistance by some of the experts who kept saying that being friendly to China would lose him the good will of the Soviet Union. He never wavered from his goal and now is in the process of getting better relations with China and better response from Moscow because of the China detente.

On the SALT talks Nixon has been in direct, personal communication with Premier Kosygin. By not hastily grabbing at the Russian proposal for limiting defensive weapons only — as Senate critics urged him to do — he has won agreement to negotiate on offensive weapons as well.

Peace isn't just around the corner, but the outlines of a more stable world are becoming visible.

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

ROBERTSON, Tex. — He is short, especially if you compare him to the Texan of legend. His hair is off-white and his eyes bright blue. His nose is like a hawk's bill. The skin on his neck is creased and brown, like that on the back of his hands. His voice is not assertive, and it doesn't have to be.

When he walks into the Pioneer-First National Bank in Lubbock, everybody who knows who's who says, "Howdy, Mr. Wheeler," and not merely out of respect for his 70 years.

JOHN WHEELER CAME to the South Plains of Texas the first time in 1920, out of Yall County, Ark., which is about 90 miles west of Little Rock. He came on the train to Plainview and then hitched a ride down the road and found a job driving a team back and forth to a wheat bindery. It paid $5 a day, which was good money in those days, but it didn't last long.

From there he went to another farm job at $3 a day and then another at $2.50. Soon after, a farmer gave him a Jersey heifer for digging all the loco weed out of 160 acres of pasture. That's a lot of loco weed.

With some cash in his pocket he returned to the Ozark foothills, but the open plains called him back. A lot of Texans were moving on farther west, looking for something greener. But to Wheeler, Texas "looked good compared to the hills and sassafras bushes and saw briers." So when he came back in 1923, he rented 200 acres and farmed 150 of it with eight mules, growing cotton and feed. The other 50 he grubbed for wood, which is not sizable enough around here to call it timber.

HE CAN REMEMBER each year since in terms of rainfall and crops. In 1925, for example, the first decent rain came June 7, and there was no cotton.

He also remembers in which year he bought a quarter-section of land, and when he was able to buy 500 acres. In the '30s he expanded when less-stubborn neighbors, or those with less cushion, moved on. In the leanest years he was never too proud to hire himself out. "I always found me something to do. I didn't sit around on my brownie," he says.

So now he is farming 8,000 acres, and owns 3,000 more. He is in cotton, feed and cattle, and owns a grain elevator. That is why the bankhands say, "Howdy, Mr. Wheeler" so deferentially.

HE STOOD THE OTHER day in the schoolyard here at Robertson and talked about how and why life for the farmer has changed since he settled just down the road. But he didn't have to say much, standing there on the cracked dry earth while a turkey gobbler sneaked into the high weeds beside the school.

The school is boarded up. Askew's General Store across the road is abandoned. Most of the houses up and down the road are, too. Tnere is a small cotton gin, but nothing else seems alive in what was once a busy crossroads village.

The people moved away, driven first by hard times that cost the small farmers their land, then by mechanization that cost many farmhands their jobs. Farmers unprotected by the banks or government-guaranteed credit, and hands unprotected by contracts or minimum wages, could not ride out earlier droughts like the one that grips the South Plains again this year.

OF COURSE the drought hurts everybody, large and small, city and country, in this part of the world. Wheeler looked into the brassy sky and estimated that the next two to three weeks would tell whether crops can be made this summer. But he knew that whether it rained or not, he would survive.

He pointed off toward other towns that have been boarded up in Crosby County. He didn't say so, but there was clear pride in the fact that all those others had moved on, but he had stayed and prospered. You had to ask before he acknowledged any outside help, but then he gave credit freely to the Roosevelt administration for starting programs that kept farmers going. He added that those programs had been continued by all the administrations since.

Machinery, repairs and interest are now priced "plumb out of reason," he complained. There was both pride and complaint in his notation that he has to pay his hands a federal minimum wage now, and he would not lay them off even if this was a bad year. He didn't have such protection when he was scrambling for a living, he reminded you, but he always found work to do.

You got the feeling he was about to say something about government interference and handouts, but under the circumstances he never quite did. He is realistic, which is one reason his holdings are scattered over 85 miles of the Texas Plains.

Many Pre-Opening Handicaps For Auditorium That Isn't

Marin's oft-maligned new auditorium-theater at the Civic Center has a couple of strikes against it even before it has come up to bat.

It's going to need all the support is can possibly get because thus far, the odds are heavily stacked against what has been called a "white elephant" and a "row of silos."

HERE ARE SOME of the factors that have given the building its infamous reputation:

A series of delays kept the public wondering when and if the auditorium would ever be completed. Fair-Marin Inc., delegated to administer the auditorium and fairgrounds, was dissolved amid considerable acrimony over who should raise the funds to complete the building, and when.

When the supervisors did take the bull by the horns and poured in money to complete the building, the structure turned up with the wrong end facing the highway.

And finally, the naming of the building created yet another furore, and this issue may not be settled yet.

FROM THE OUTSET, the name Veterans Memorial Auditorium was the generally accepted name. Veterans organizations were represented on the Fair-Marin board of directors and talked hopefully of having meetings in the auditorium.

Use of the building for meetings by local organizations and even for small conferences was being discussed as recently as two years ago.

But sometime between 1969 and today, the "meeting rooms" completely vanished. What were marked off as "meeting room" and "office space" are occupied by the manager and his secretary because there's no other space for them.

IT'S NO WONDER that the veterans organizations, and for that matter, any other group which had hoped to have meetings or small conferences in the building, felt a bit cheated.

Veterans got so peeved, they even asked that the name "veterans" be deleted from the building name. That's how the name of the auditorium got changed last week in a 3-to-2 vote.

Arnold Baptiste suggested that "auditorium" be knocked off, leaving only Marin Veterans Memorial. He got two other votes, and so that's the official name now.

Why not retain the name "auditorium"? Kalimos explains that the building isn't really an auditorium at all. It's not like the Richmond Auditorium with a multi-purpose flat floor area in the center (for basketball, wrestling, or other sports events) with tiered seating surrounding the central floor area.

Marin's new building has only two main components: (1) a theater with 900 fixed seating and almost 1,200 moveable seating, and (2) a flat exhibit area behind the moveable seating. It's a theater-exhibit hall.

WE AGREE THAT "Marin Veterans Memorial Theater-Exhibit Hall" would be too long and awkward. But we'd feel much more comfortable if the name ended with something other than "memorial" — something more concrete like theater, center, building, or hall.

It would be awful tiring to have to keep explaining to visitors from out of county that the Marin Memorial is a functional building where you can sit and enjoy performances, not a landmark like the Washington Monument where you stand and snap souvenir shots.

Headlands Musical Fete Stated Outdoors, June 13

Music and nature lovers will celebrate a new kind of musical experience at the Cushing Memorial Theater on Mount Tamalpais on June 13 at 1 p.m., the Marin Symphony Guild announced today.

The concert, Hymn to the Headlands, is in support of legislation currently before Congress which would officially designate the Golden Gate headlands as a national recreation area. The concert is being presented by the Marin Symphony Guild in collaboration with such conservation groups as Friends of the Earth, Nature Conservancy, California Coastal Alliance, the Sierra Club, Headlands Inc., and People for a Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The program's diversity will mirror the variety of its audience's tastes. It will include Sandor Salgo conducting the Marin Symphony, alternating with the experimental electronic jazz of the Denny Zeitlin Trio; Hugo Rinaldi conducting the Marin Youth Orchestra, followed by special guest artist Ali Akbar Khan playing the sarod and Zakir Huessin, the tablas.

"Our dream has been to give Bay Area music lovers, new and old, the opportunity to share great music together in the incomparable natural beauty of Mount Tamalpais," said Mrs. J. Paul Oppenheim, concert chairman who has spearheaded the drive to make the concert possible.

Six thousand persons can picnic in the amphitheater, which opens at noon, and for those who prefer to buy their food, stands will sell refreshments, including organic food.

Access to the mountain theater may be by foot, ferry, horseback, bus or automobile. Shuttle bus service, at 50 cents each way, will be available at the ferry wharf in downtown Sausalito, the Sausalito ferry parking lot by the Big G supermarket, the Town and Country Village Shopping Center parking lot in Strawberry and from the Mill Valley bus depot.

Popular prices will prevail for reserved admissions, general admissions, admissions for youth under 12 and senior citizens over 65.

Suddenly, Bureaucracy Just Loves The Consumer

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Like teenagers chasing the school's shortest skirt, federal agencies are embracing consumerism in a bureaucratic hug. Some critics consider it more selfish lust than enduring love.

The Commerce Department, which has clashed with consumer advocates on several issues, is shopping for a $17,000 official to write press releases on consumer topics.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), by law a consumer protection agency, has set up a consumer affairs office. It wants a $400,000 budget, the same amount sought by the Commerce Department's new National Business Council for Consumer Affairs.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), FDA's parent agency, has not only an office for consumer services but also a new intradepartmental consumer council.

Similar shoots have sprouted at the Justice and Transportation Departments, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and the General Services Administration (GSA).

"THE BUREAUCRACY recognizes that it's wise to wrap oneself in the banner of consumerism," said Frank E. McLaughlin, director for industry relations in Virginia H. Knauer's White House consumer affairs office.

McLaughlin said it is too early to evaluate the new operations. But Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., chairman of the Democratic Study Group's consumer task force, said some agencies "use the word 'consumer' as a device to cloak their real activities."

"It's an exercise in futility and sleight-of-hand, more a public relations gesture than a legitimate effort at consumer protection," Rosenthal said in an interview.

THE AGENCIES, however, dispuge this with claims of progress. HEW's office of consumer services is helping poor residents of three model cities areas establish buying cooperatives and credit unions.

Dr. Mervin F. Silverman, director of FDA's office of consumer affairs, said his staff has cut a backlog of 2,000 inquiries to a few hundred, and is directing activities of 20 FDA consumer specialists in 18 cities. They advise on topics from nutrition to clothing flammability, Silverman said.

ICC has published a booklet advising families on the financial practices of household movers. GSA, the government's purchasing agent, is indexing the consumer products it buys and releasing information on them. It promises brand by brand identification in some cases.

WILLIAM D. LEE, executive director of Commerce's business council for consumer affairs, said the group will try to convince business that it can best avoid regulation by voluntarily improving advertising, warranties and quality.

Some of the goals are less precise, at least to the nonbureaucrat. In a press release, HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson described the work of his new intradepartmental consumer council in these words:

"All of HEW's consumer services emerged as a meaningful integrated whole. This concept must be recognized throughout the department."

U. S. Troop Level In Vietnam Falls

SAIGON (UPI) —Another 3,600 Americn troops, mostly members of the Marine Corps, were withdrawn from Vietnam last week, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

Command records showed that withdrawals currently are running at a much higher rate than the one needed to achieve the current goal of a 184,000-man troop level in Vietnam by next Dec. 1.

The latest batch of withdrawals, part of the seventh phase of President Nixon's program to pull American troops out of the decade-old Indochina War in easy stages, brought U.S. strength down to just above the quarter-million mark.

Housing Authority Plan On Tap

A controversial proposal to centralize administration of the Marin County Housing Authority will be presented to the housing authority board at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Manzanita Center, Marin City.

The plan, presented by authority executive director Wallace K. Shepherd, would involve combining some administrative positions and moving records and clerical personnel to the authority's main office in Marin City.

The leased housing office would remain in San Rafael under the plan, Shepherd said, but much of the program's paperwork would be taken care of in Marin City. The leased housing director would report to the Marin City office each day, then go to San Rafael to handle lease negotiations and contract work.

The current housing manager for the county's four senior citizens's housing projects would become a roving trouble shooter for all public housing in the county, handling complaints, records and rent collections.

On May 4, the board received the executive director's centralization plan but asked for additional time to study the proposal.

The housing authority board will also select a chairman and vice chairman at the meeting.

Contract Let For Bolinas Center Library

Bolinas Community, Inc. have avoided a $10,780 contract for alterations to the community center for use as a library.

Gordon Baldwin, board treasurer, said the award was based on a low bid submitted by Meil T. Burton, Kentfield contractor. It was one of two offered to the board.

Work is expected to begin in two weeks, Baldwin said.

In a leasing arrangement, $10,000 of the cost will be paid by Marin County. The county will lease the premises for five years and seven months.

In order to meet the additional $780 plus an estimated $2,220 for landscaping, the board plans to hold benefits and ask for public subscriptions, Baldwin said.

The contract was awarded by the Bolinas group Friday.

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The American Red Cross has decided to cut back on its longterm relief services and to concentrate its time and money on the immediate needs of disaster victims —food, clothing and shelter.

The new policy presumes that federal programs and private disaster insurance, which has become increasingly available, will take up the slack left by cutbacks in such Red Cross services as helping victims rebuild homes and businesses, and pay long-term medical and hospital bills.

"We will continue to provide recovery assistance, but the scope of the Red Cross in that phase of disaster operations has been drastically altered," ARC chairman E. Roland Harriman said.

Officials said the policy change made at the organization's 1971 convention in Washington a greater demand for Red Cross disaster services, which has caused a financial drain on the agency's treasury.

ARC's vice president Robert F. Shea, said the policy change also reflected a belief by the group that such voluntary services were not enough to provide for full recovery for disaster-hit families.

The new policy, Shea said, is "a recognition that we were not encouraging development of other family resources to the degree we should have."

In an interview, Harriman said private insurance companies were now writing wind insurance, and the federal government was sponsoring flood and water insurance in 350 areas eligible for it. Both insurance services are expected to reduce the need for Red Cross rehabilitation services, he said.

An even more important development, Harriman added, was passage of the Disaster Relief Act of 1970, which authorizes government agencies to extend long-term, low interest loans "with liberal forgiveness provisions to victims in any disaster area designated by the President.

Shea said the Red Cross had spent $18.5 million on disaster relief so far in the fiscal year ending June 30 —most of it to aid victims of Hurricane Celia that devastated the Corpus Christi, Tex., area; the Los Angeles earthquake, and Mississippi tornadoes.

About 85 per cent of the aid went for emergency help, he estimated, and the rest to long-term aid to help families get back on their feet.

"The long-standing Red Cross policy provided for recovery help to disaster victims who had no other resources or places to turn to for help," Harriman said. "Now, with the available insurance coverage and the availability of government agency assistance, some outside resource is almost universally at hand.

"We will now concentrate in our disaster programs on the all-important subject of preparedness, on immediate emergency relief and on rapid referral to the proper outside resource."

Farallon Bill Passes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill outlawing the shooting of animals and birds and catching of fish within one mile of the Farallon Islands was approved 52-0 by the Assembly Friday and sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

PIANIST Carol Ann Miller tells why she plans to give up her promising music career to become a criminal lawyer — perhaps politician — to help her people. TO HELP HER PEOPLE

Brilliant Black Pianist Wants Career In Law

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Brilliant pianist Carol Ann Miller has decided to give up a promising music career to fight racial prejudice and injustice in a way that really counts.

The only black girl at San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow, 18-year-old Carol says she has experienced no prejudice personally from faculty or students. Known as "Cammy" from her initials, she is popular and has held class offices. But she wants to take up criminal law to help her people.

"Yes," she says, "I am accepted totally on the surface level.

"But there is a part of each individual that is very deep and hidden. I don't think total nonprejudice can exist, because we are subjected to it from the time we are infants. It exists in subtle ways, such as in history books That tell about Africa being barbaric.

"They don't say Africans are inferior, but its inferred, and white students begin to believe it. If prejudice were openly expressed, you could cope with it better, but so much of it is subconscious."

Her expressive hands moving and black eyes flashing, Carol reacted to prejudice and injustice in a torrent of words.

"There are a great many individuals who are being mistreated today," she said, "and injustices will continue. Law is one of the main areas in which they occur. I'm not so idealistic as to think that I'm going to change everything, but I do believe that the way I feel toward the law, I can accomplish something as a lawyer, and any little thing is to the good.

"PREJUDICE IS everywhere — not just black against white, but the other way around. Any differences can cause it.

"When you are young, you are in your own little world, and you are unaware of many things. The less you know, the happier you are. I'm not bitter or cynical, but the older I get the more I see hate, and the less optimistic I am.

"Prejudice has existed such a long time that it's going to take three times as long to erase it. I feel if anything is to be changed, it will have to be through children, and I don't mean my generation but perhaps my children or grandchildren."

Carol says she has experienced some results of racial prejudice personally. She recalls being puzzled when at the age of 9 or 10 a white girl playmate was forbidden to play with her because she was black. Later she saw racial riots in Oakland, where her family lives.

Prejudice in public school is not very evident, she thinks, because, "It is not looked on favorably now — so you try to hide it. Parents may welcome you into their homes, but if a son or daughter starts to date someone of another race, the conflict arises. They are not prejudiced until it hits home.

"I can't blame the parents," she confessed, "because they love their children and don't want to see them have hardships, and it's much easier for them if their child marries someone they think suitable."

HOW, THEN, does she think conditions can be changed.

"I used to think, I respect other people's property, and you can't destroy it to get what you want — but the older I get, the more I come to feel that after violence action is taken. Violence is the thing that gets things done. It is a catalyst.

"The Christian doctrine of turn the other cheek is OK, but you can't keep turning the other cheek forever — pretty soon you can't get back up if you keep being knocked down.

"The trouble with violence is it gets immediate changes, but how long will it be effective is the question. The only lasting changes will come through the law and politics.

"That's why I want to be a lawyer and go into politics. I want to be part of the power structure and law-making body.

"It's so easy to become insensitive to injustice," Carol observed. "I see such a lack of sensitivity among people. I'm so quick to judge others — yet when I evaluate myself, I see myself becoming part of this whole mass of people.

"I have seen a fourth grader high on reds.' If I saw that now, I might think, that's too bad, and later I'd think, how can I say that and not do anything about it?

"This is why I want to run for political office. We need to have more people in office who have the black man's interest at heart — yes, and women's interests too. Women are the other half of the world. Why do we not have equal representation? Women are just as good musicians and artists or anything else they want to be as men.

"I RELATE the women's position to the black position, though they are very different. Women have always been told they are inferior, and after so much repetition they begin to believe it. But women are no longer going to accept the position of the little idiot who sits at home, fixes the meals and talks about what has gone on all day at home.

"Once I get into politics, I'll specialize in whatever field has the most need," Carol said.

She plans to enter Mills College this fall — if she can find a summer job to help pay her expenses. "I like the atmosphere at Mills" she said, "because it is conducive to change, and there is no coverup of problems."

On the subject of marriage and children Carol expressed some very strong beliefs.

"I don't feel marriage is outdated," she said, "but it will not be as my mother or grandmother saw it with the woman half a person. It will be marriage of two whole equal human beings.

AS FOR children — she says, "Sometimes I think I don't want to bring children into a world with so many wrongs and evils, but when I think how much I love life and enjoy my music, the merits of that outweigh my hesitation.

"But it's my moral obligation not to have children until I am mentally and emotionally capable of raising them properly," she emphasized.

Music is responsible for Carol's coming to San Domenico.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Miller of Oakland — her father is a supervisor in the American Patrol Service in Oakland, and her mother is a clerk at the Oakland Army Base — Carol started the study of piano at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music 10 years ago and received a two-year scholarship there.

In 1968 when she played at the Junior Bach Festival in Berkeley, Sister M. Francix Xavier a San Domenico music supervisor was sitting next to her mother. The result was a three-year full scholarship at San Domenico, where she has studied piano with Faith France, head of the music department. As a teaching aide she has supervised piano practive of grade three students.

She has been a member of the Marin Youth Orchestra the last three years and was soloist to critical acclaim at its spring concert. She has also been a soloist twice in San Francisco Symphony youth concerts and is winner of five music scholarships from the California Negro Women's Association.

With all her talent, Carol says she will keep music for her own enjoyment and communication with others while she studies law.

Brides-To-Be Mob Shut Store For Their Gowns

NEW YORK (UPI)—A group of brides-to-be, angered by the thought of walking down the aisle in plain dresses instead of the wedding gowns they paid for, mobbed a Queens bridal salon Friday.

The brides, their mothers and friends massed outside DiCarla's Bridal Salon, which went out of business Tuesday, demanding their gowns or their money back.

The women had expected the store owner, Paul Gilbert of Brooklyn, to be there at 5 p.m. to settle accounts, but he failed to show up.

Queens Assistant District Attorney Arnold Taub, who rushed to the store to try to calm the women, sent a police patrol car to Gilbert's home to bring him to the salon, but the owner refused to come.

Gilbert said the store and the gowns still inside had been turned over to his creditors.

Homemade Food Items Cheaper

A recent experiment showed that homemakers could save 25 hours, 13 minutes by using 41 convenience food items.

On the other hand, when the same foods were prepared from scratch, the cost was 45 per cent less.

Is it worth it? The time saved compared to extra cost amounted to spending 32c an hour, says the National Meat and Livestock Board.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

My wife was one of the biggest midi-skirt fighters. She still has pinned to her bulletin board several of your caustic comments on this miserable style, i.e.: "Or as the father said about his long-haired son, 'It (the midi) hangs around the wrong places and needs a good trimming!' "

She knew she had great legs and she wasn't going to hide them: THEN! Well, she still has great legs, but now all she ever wears are pants suits. I haven't seen her in a dress for so long I'm beginning to wonder if I married a woman. She even wears evening pants to cocktail parties.

I don't go for skirts up to the thigh (on MY wife, that is), but I'd sure like to see a little leg once in a while and I know other men would too. She argues, "It's the style."

Could you please ask the ladies, Helen, to consider us "leg men" and stop covering up the scenery? Great legs are to be seen, not just heard about. — WALLY

DEAR WALLY:

All is not lost: When your wife steps out in thigh-high hot pants, remember, you asked for them, sorta. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Women's liberation has made big headlines, but do the gals really buy it? As a male women's page editor (yes, we do exist), I tried an experiment. I scrounged around and found booklets — good ones — on 1. Women: Equal or Inferior?; 2. How to Get Best Results from your Washing Machine; and 3. Eat Up and Get Thin: The Housewife's Diet.

We ran a story about each subject, giving Women's Liberation the biggest play.

Then we offered the booklets for the usual self-addressed stamped envelope.

Results: Judging from requests, women are twice as interested in getting thin as they are in putting out a good wash (which figures), and liberation barely hangs in there. In all, we sent out five liberation booklets; 164 on washing machines; and 336 on "eat and get thin."

This may help to prove only that females would rather look good than do good. However, I've noticed that the most popular (and solvent) women's magazines stay with household hints, beauty care, family items and how to catch and keep a man. Their editors are pretty hep.

Lib Kids: You still have a long way to go! — MALE EDITOR IN A FEMALE WORLD.

DEAR MALE:

An obvious women's liberation answer to your experiment is: "Liberated women don't read the 'society pages.' Therefore your offers only reached the types who would respond to the second and third-mentioned booklets."

My answer to your letter is: "How can I get a bunch of your booklets No. 3 — Eat Up and Get Thin"? My readers — by the thousands — will want to know! (And, incidentally, a lot of them are pretty well liberated.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Whatever happened to the "Social Security benefits for working wives" bill that was up before the ways and means committee last year? It would enable a married couple to receive greater social security benefits by combining their earnings, so that what a wife pays in to Social Security wouldn't be entirely lost. — MRS. T.

DEAR MRS. T.:

A letter from the bill's chief sponsor, Rep. Edward J. Patten D-N.J., says that the ways and means committee has taken recent action on his bill (H.R. 6500) but has added a major restriction: The committee favors higher social security benefits for working wives but only if the couple worked 20 years after they were married terms this "ridiculous and unfair."

For further information, write to Rep. Edward Patten, 2332 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU.

Let's Hear It For Less Noise, Please

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The latest noise from the nation's capital is the sound of government and industry getting together to reduce the growing level of noise in the environment.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently set up the Office of Noise Abatement and Control to look into the causes and sources of excessive noise and determine their effect on the general public.

The office is expected to determine what physical effects come from various levels of sound, set maximum levels for populated areas and also consider the effects of man-made noises, including sonic booms, on animals and property.

THE OFFICE is empowered to hold public hearings and conduct research. A report of its findings is due to be presented to Congress by the end of the year.

The problem of noise was also attacked in the recent report of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality.

It said, "Noise degrades our environment no less than the more tangible pollutants, particularly in our cities . . ."

And while noting that the government is becoming increasingly concerned, it said much more needs to be done at all levels of government.

It said most of the attention has been concentrated on aircraft noise and suggested that more attention be given to motor vehicles, especially construction equipment, lawnmowers, snowmobiles and mechanical devices.

ONLY A FEW weeks later, a business group issued a report describing the nuisance of noises from "leisure time" products. These include motorcycles, snowmobiles, pleasure boats, golf carts, chain saws, rotary power mowers, riding mowers, edgers and snow blowers.

The report came from a subcommittee of the National Industrial Pollution Control Council, an industry advisory group set up by the Commerce Department to report on what business is doing about pollution. Chairman of the subcommittee is Ralph Evinrude of motorboat fame.

Although admitting that noise "is fast becoming a psychological hazard to many people as well as a physiological problem," the Evinrude panel said noise from leisure products is "not a serious problem."

It also sounded an optimistic note, saying that industry has already made great progress in cutting engine noise, especially in golf carts and pleasure boats. It added that as the public demands less noisy products, industry will be given an incentive to make them.

But the subcommittee recommended that federal standards be set in order to clear up the confusion of varying state laws on the subject. Its list of average noise levels in decibels showed that snowmobiles are loudest with 118 decibels at the user's ear, followed by chain saws at 115, motorcycles with more than 240 cc engines at 112 and motorcycles with less than 240 cc engines and all-terrain vehicles both at 105.

In comparison, the decibel level at the user's ear was listed at 95 for edgers, riding mowers and inboard-outboard boats (at a location eight feet forward of the engine center line); 92 for rotary power mowers and 85 for leaf blowers.

The subcommittee also lists proposed standards for 1973, 1978 and 1983, plus a summary of state laws. Copies of "Leisure Time Product Noise," are available for 25 cents from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Yellowjacket Tip

If yellowjackets threaten to put a sting in yard fun at your house, keep a pan of soap or detergent suds in the yard. The yellowjackets are attracted to the suds and fall into the water, says a suggestion in "It's A Wonderful World" calendar.

Garden Ceremony In Ross

Christine Anne Smith became the bride of Richard Ronald Lines May 22 in a ceremony in the garden of the former home of her parents in Ross. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Smith, now live in Auckland, New Zealand.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Stephen Thompson of Ross, and Craig Marshall of San Rafael was best man.

Christine is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. She is employed by McGraw Hill Book Company in Novato. Mrs. Hazel Mibach of San Francisco is her grandmother, and she has a sister, Kathy, and a brother, Bob, both living in Auckland.

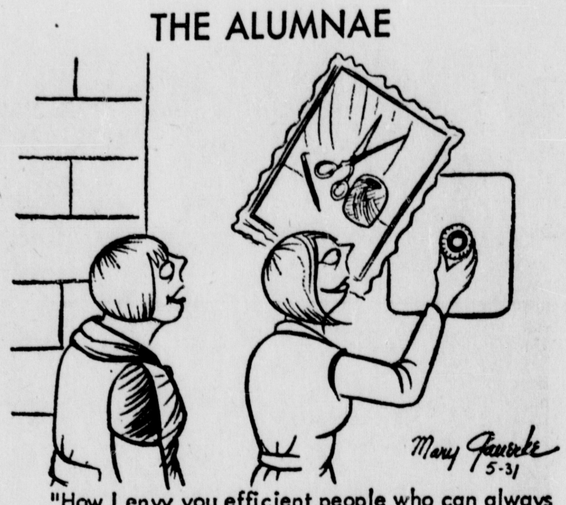
The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Lines of Novato. A graduate of Redwood High School, he is self employed in San Rafael. Mrs. John Manning of Huntington Beach is his sister.

Following a wedding trip to Disneyland the couple will live in San Rafael.

Color For Danger

The Pennsylvania Department of Highways is painting some highways near Harrisburg yellow, red, orange and green. The idea: provide brightly colored pavement at high frequency accident locations.

THE ALUMNAE



"How I envy you efficient people who can always lay your hands on scissors, string or a pencil when you need them."

Visiting The Moon? Why Not Learn About Wash

In many instances the average family is more informed on visits to the moon than in how to properly launder and dryclean clothing. One reason, reports the National Automatic Laundry and Cleaning Council, is the revolution in the thousands of textile and material combinations for clothing and other items. The influx of fake furs, glass fiber, permanent press, knitwear varieties, bonding, plastic and other materials provide many cleaning problems.

In a new educational film, the council will help inform present and future homemakers on "do's" and "dont's" of textile maintenance. Entitled "How To Save Time, Work and Money", the new color film strip features these points:

Know the equipment you are using and what it can do. Don't overload machines and use proper amount of detergent.

Scrutinize the hand-tag on garments and textiles to be sure it can be laundered or drycleaned under normal conditions.

TO HELP HER PEOPLE

Brilliant Black Pianist Wants Career In Law

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Brilliant pianist Carol Ann Miller has decided to give up a promising music career to fight racial prejudice and injustice in a way that really counts.

The only black girl at San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow, 18-year-old Carol says she has experienced no prejudice personally from faculty or students. Known as "Cammy" from her initials, she is popular and has held class offices. But she wants to take up criminal law to help her people.

"Yes," she says, "I am accepted totally on the surface level.

"But there is a part of each individual that is very deep and hidden. I don't think total nonprejudice can exist, because we are subjected to it from the time we are infants. It exists in subtle ways, such as in history books That tell about Africa being barbaric.

"They don't say Africans are inferior, but its inferred, and white students begin to believe it. If prejudice were openly expressed, you could cope with it better, but so much of it is subconscious."

Her expressive hands moving and black eyes flashing, Carol reacted to prejudice and injustice in a torrent of words.

"There are a great many individuals who are being mistreated today," she said, "and injustices will continue. Law is one of the main areas in which they occur. I'm not so idealistic as to think that I'm going to change everything, but I do believe that the way I feel toward the law, I can accomplish something as a lawyer, and any little thing is to the good.

"PREJUDICE IS everywhere — not just black against white, but the other way around. Any differences can cause it.

"When you are young, you are in your own little world, and you are unaware of many things. The less you know, the happier you are. I'm not bitter or cynical, but the older I get the more I see hate, and the less optimistic I am.

"Prejudice has existed such a long time that it's going to take three times as long to erase it. I feel if anything is to be changed, it will have to be through children, and I don't mean my generation but perhaps my children or grandchildren."

Carol says she has experienced some results of racial prejudice personally. She recalls being puzzled when at the age of 9 or 10 a white girl playmate was forbidden to play with her because she was black. Later she saw racial riots in Oakland, where her family lives.

Prejudice in public school is not very evident, she thinks, because, "It is not looked on favorably now — so you try to hide it. Parents may welcome you into their homes, but if a son or daughter starts to date someone of another race, the conflict arises. They are not prejudiced until it hits home.

"I can't blame the parents," she confessed, "because they love their children and don't want to see them have hardships, and it's much easier for them if their child marries someone they think suitable."

HOW, THEN, does she think conditions can be changed.

"I used to think, I respect other people's property, and you can't destroy it to get what you want — but the older I get, the more I come to feel that after violence action is taken. Violence is the thing that gets things done. It is a catalyst.

"The Christian doctrine of turn the other cheek is OK, but you can't keep turning the other cheek forever — pretty soon you can't get back up if you keep being knocked down.

"The trouble with violence is it gets immediate changes, but how long will it be effective is the question. The only lasting changes will come through the law and politics.

"That's why I want to be a lawyer and go into politics. I want to be part of the power structure and law-making body.

"It's so easy to become insensitive to injustice," Carol observed. "I see such a lack of sensitivity among people. I'm so quick to judge others — yet when I evaluate myself, I see myself becoming part of this whole mass of people.

"I have seen a fourth grader high on reds.' If I saw that now, I might think, that's too bad, and later I'd think, how can I say that and not do anything about it?

"This is why I want to run for political office. We need to have more people in office who have the black man's interest at heart — yes, and women's interests too. Women are the other half of the world. Why do we not have equal representation? Women are just as good musicians and artists or anything else they want to be as men.

"I RELATE the women's position to the black position, though they are very different. Women have always been told they are inferior, and after so much repetition they begin to believe it. But women are no longer going to accept the position of the little idiot who sits at home, fixes the meals and talks about what has gone on all day at home.

"Once I get into politics, I'll specialize in whatever field has the most need," Carol said.

She plans to enter Mills College this fall — if she can find a summer job to help pay her expenses. "I like the atmosphere at Mills" she said, "because it is conducive to change, and there is no coverup of problems."

On the subject of marriage and children Carol expressed some very strong beliefs.

"I don't feel marriage is outdated," she said, "but it will not be as my mother or grandmother saw it with the woman half a person. It will be marriage of two whole equal human beings.

AS FOR children — she says, "Sometimes I think I don't want to bring children into a world with so many wrongs and evils, but when I think how much I love life and enjoy my music, the merits of that outweigh my hesitation.

"But it's my moral obligation not to have children until I am mentally and emotionally capable of raising them properly," she emphasized.

Music is responsible for Carol's coming to San Domenico.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Miller of Oakland — her father is a supervisor in the American Patrol Service in Oakland, and her mother is a clerk at the Oakland Army Base — Carol started the study of piano at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music 10 years ago and received a two-year scholarship there.

In 1968 when she played at the Junior Bach Festival in Berkeley, Sister M. Francix Xavier a San Domenico music supervisor was sitting next to her mother. The result was a three-year full scholarship at San Domenico, where she has studied piano with Faith France, head of the music department. As a teaching aide she has supervised piano practive of grade three students.

She has been a member of the Marin Youth Orchestra the last three years and was soloist to critical acclaim at its spring concert. She has also been a soloist twice in San Francisco Symphony youth concerts and is winner of five music scholarships from the California Negro Women's Association.

With all her talent, Carol says she will keep music for her own enjoyment and communication with others while she studies law.

Brides-To-Be Mob Shut Store For Their Gowns

NEW YORK (UPI)—A group of brides-to-be, angered by the thought of walking down the aisle in plain dresses instead of the wedding gowns they paid for, mobbed a Queens bridal salon Friday.

The women had expected the store owner, Paul Gilbert of Brooklyn, to be there at 5 p.m. to settle accounts, but he failed to show up.

Queens Assistant District Attorney Arnold Taub, who rushed to the store to try to calm the women, sent a police patrol car to Gilbert's home to bring him to the salon, but the owner refused to come.

Gilbert said the store and the gowns still inside had been turned over to his creditors.

Homemade Food Items Cheaper

A recent experiment showed that homemakers could save 25 hours, 13 minutes by using 41 convenience food items.

On the other hand, when the same foods were prepared from scratch, the cost was 45 per cent less.

Is it worth it? The time saved compared to extra cost amounted to spending 32c an hour, says the National Meat and Livestock Board.

Atomizer Warning

Researchers at the University of Illinois Hospital in Chicago report that the propellants in atomizers that dispense drugs used by asthma suffere s may cause abnormal heart rhythms, the National Safety Council reports.

MRS. LEE JOHNSON

Arequipa Unit Has New Slate

Mrs. Lee Johnson of San Rafael, elected to a second term as chairman of the Mill Valley Millwood Unit, Marin Foundation, Firends of Arequipa, is an 18-year member of the 19-year-old group.

Each year since its founding the unit has given a barn dance at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley as its major fund raising activity. Membership, by invitation, is open to women who enjoy working with young persons, Mrs. Johnson says.

Florence Johnson has been a resident of Marin since 1937. Before her marriage to Lee Johnson, owner of a grocery store in the Bret Harte area of San Rafael, she worked as a dental assistant. She is a native of San Francisco and is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and College of Marin. Her children are Carl, 15, Eric, 12, and Kathryn, 10 years old.

Mrs. Johnson enjoys gardening in the summer and bridge in the winter, and the entire family enjoys the outdoors and participating in trap shooting, hunting and fishing.

Other officers of the unit are Mmes. Kenneth Stevens, vice chairman; Melvin Klyce, secretary; Francis Keane, treasurer; William Witt, volunteer chairman; Wayne Deatsch, house chairman; and Henry Eckhard, ways and means chairman.

Poison Data Bank

The Food and Drug Administration in the near future will begin a study of a computerized poison information system.

Mrs. Lino To Bring Yoga, Weight Loss Into Church Club Activities

Yoga, women's liberation movement and weight loss programs will be among the social and spiritual activities the new president, Mrs. George Lino, plans to introduce for the Mount Carmel Church Women's Club in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Lino will be installed president at 8 p.m. June 9 at the church. Dinner will follow the officers' installation.

Marianne Lino has been a resident of Marin County for 16 years — all of her married life. She was born in Seattle, and was graduated from Presentation Academy in San Francisco and attended the University of San Francisco before her marriage. Her husband was born and reared in Sausalito, where he now has his construction business.

They are the parents of Eileen, 15, James, 13, John, 10, and Andrew, 7.

Mrs. Lino has been a member of the club four years. While first vice president last year she organized a drive for assistance to the Indians on Alcatraz. Then she and her husband brought the many donations to the island on their boat. Marianne says there is nothing she enjoys more than taking off at 4:30 a.m. with her husband to go fishing for bass in local bay waters.

MRS. GEORGE LINO
To be installed

Marianne enjoys cooking for large groups, which she did the past year as a member of the board of directors of the Mount Carmel School Parent-Teacher Group. She cooked stew for the "Blarney Blast" and luncheon for the domino tournament.

While rearing her family, Mrs. Lino has assisted in her husband's work, making suggestions for conveniences which women wished to have built into a home.

Other officers to be installed with Mrs. Lino are Mmes. Donald Conroy, first vice president; Robert Murray, second vice president; Clayton Ellis, recording secretary; Keith Craemer, corresponding secretary; and Ralph Kellogg, treasurer.

Red, White, Blue Showing Upsurge

Red, white and blue color combinations are having a resurgence in the fashion world and in home furnishings, according to Stella Roach, director of the Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart.

Furniture companies are using the colors in patterns on upholstered chairs, day beds, Tiffany hanging glass lamps, decorative clocks and plaques.

Early Surgery Recommended For Club Feet

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—About 90 per cent of children born with club feet are able to walk normally with prompt medical attention, the chief of the Orthopaedic Hospital's Clubfoot Clinic said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Edkins told a medical alumni meeting that clubfoot was the most common of all congenital diseases, occurring in eight out of 100 births.

The medical approach to treatment of clubfoot in the United States, he said, had been hampered by an unrealistic wish to avoid surgery.

But most children would require some surgery at some point in their treatment, Edkins said.

"The younger the child when this is begun, the better," he said, recommending surgery for children six months or younger.

"The earlier the foot is corrected, the better the final results will be," he added.

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

My wife was one of the biggest midi-skirt fighters. She still has pinned to her bulletin board several of your caustic comments on this miserable style, i.e.: "Or as the father said about his long-haired son, 'It (the midi) hangs around the wrong places and needs a good trimming!' "

She knew she had great legs and she wasn't going to hide them: THEN! Well, she still has great legs, but now all she ever wears are pants suits. I haven't seen her in a dress for so long I'm beginning to wonder if I married a woman. She even wears evening pants to cocktail parties.

I don't go for skirts up to the thigh (on MY wife, that is), but I'd sure like to see a little leg once in a while and I know other men would too. She argues, "It's the style."

Could you please ask the ladies, Helen, to consider us "leg men" and stop covering up the scenery? Great legs are to be seen, not just heard about. — WALLY

DEAR WALLY:

All is not lost: When your wife steps out in thigh-high hot pants, remember, you asked for them, sorta. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Women's liberation has made big headlines, but do the gals really buy it? As a male women's page editor (yes, we do exist), I tried an experiment. I scrounged around and found booklets — good ones — on 1. Women: Equal or Inferior?; 2. How to Get Best Results from your Washing Machine; and 3. Eat Up and Get Thin: The Housewife's Diet.

We ran a story about each subject, giving Women's Liberation the biggest play.

Then we offered the booklets for the usual self-addressed stamped envelope.

Results: Judging from requests, women are twice as interested in getting thin as they are in putting out a good wash (which figures), and liberation barely hangs in there. In all, we sent out five liberation booklets; 164 on washing machines; and 336 on "eat and get thin."

This may help to prove only that females would rather look good than do good. However, I've noticed that the most popular (and solvent) women's magazines stay with household hints, beauty care, family items and how to catch and keep a man. Their editors are pretty hep.

Lib Kids: You still have a long way to go! — MALE EDITOR IN A FEMALE WORLD.

DEAR MALE:

An obvious women's liberation answer to your experiment is: "Liberated women don't read the 'society pages.' Therefore your offers only reached the types who would respond to the second and third-mentioned booklets."

My answer to your letter is: "How can I get a bunch of your booklets No. 3 — Eat Up and Get Thin"? My readers — by the thousands — will want to know! (And, incidentally, a lot of them are pretty well liberated.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Whatever happened to the "Social Security benefits for working wives" bill that was up before the ways and means committee last year? It would enable a married couple to receive greater social security benefits by combining their earnings, so that what a wife pays in to Social Security wouldn't be entirely lost. — MRS. T.

DEAR MRS. T.:

A letter from the bill's chief sponsor, Rep. Edward J. Patten D-N.J., says that the ways and means committee has taken recent action on his bill (H.R. 6500) but has added a major restriction: The committee favors higher social security benefits for working wives but only if the couple worked 20 years after they were married terms this "ridiculous and unfair."

For further information, write to Rep. Edward Patten, 2332 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515. — H.

Let's Hear It For Less Noise, Please

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The latest noise from the nation's capital is the sound of government and industry getting together to reduce the growing level of noise in the environment.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently set up the Office of Noise Abatement and Control to look into the causes and sources of excessive noise and determine their effect on the general public.

The office is expected to determine what physical effects come from various levels of sound, set maximum levels for populated areas and also consider the effects of man-made noises, including sonic booms, on animals and property.

THE OFFICE is empowered to hold public hearings and conduct research. A report of its findings is due to be presented to Congress by the end of the year.

The problem of noise was also attacked in the recent report of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality.

It said, "Noise degrades our environment no less than the more tangible pollutants, particularly in our cities . . . "

And while noting that the government is becoming increasingly concerned, it said much more needs to be done at all levels of government.

It said most of the attention has been concentrated on aircraft noise and suggested that more attention be given to motor vehicles, especially construction equipment, lawnmowers, snowmobiles and mechanical devices.

ONLY A FEW weeks later, a business group issued a report describing the nuisance of noises from "leisure time" products. These include motorcycles, snowmobiles, pleasure boats, golf carts, chain saws, rotary power mowers, riding mowers, edgers and snow blowers.

The report came from a subcommittee of the National Industrial Pollution Control Council, an industry advisory group set up by the Commerce Department to report on what business is doing about pollution. Chairman of the subcommittee is Ralph Evinrude of motorboat fame.

Although admitting that noise "is fast becoming a psychological hazard to many people as well as a physiological problem," the Evinrude panel said noise from leisure products is "not a serious problem."

It also sounded an optimistic note, saying that industry has already made great progress in cutting engine noise, especially in golf carts and pleasure boats. It added that as the public demands less noisy products, industry will be given an incentive to make them.

But the subcommittee recommended that federal standards be set in order to clear up the confusion of varying state laws on the subject. Its list of average noise levels in decibels showed that snowmobiles are loudest with 118 decibels at the user's ear, followed by chain saws at 115, motorcycles with more than 240 cc engines at 112 and motorcycles with less than 240 cc engines and all-terrain vehicles both at 105.

In comparison, the decibel level at the user's ear was listed at 95 for edgers, riding mowers and inboard-outboard boats (at a location eight feet forward of the engine center line); 92 for rotary power mowers and 85 for leaf blowers.

The subcommittee also lists proposed standards for 1973, 1978 and 1983, plus a summary of state laws. Copies of "Leisure Time Product Noise," are available for 25 cents from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Garden Ceremony In Ross

Christine Anne Smith became the bride of Richard Ronald Lines May 22 in a ceremony in the garden of the former home of her parents in Ross. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Smith, now live in Auckland, New Zealand.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Stephen Thompson of Ross, and Craig Marshall of San Rafael was best man.

Christine is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. She is employed by McGraw Hill Book Company in Novato. Mrs. Hazel Mibach of San Francisco is her grandmother, and she has a sister, Kathy, and a brother, Bob, both living in Auckland.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Lines of Novato. A graduate of Redwood High School, he is self employed in San Rafael. Mrs. John Manning of Huntington Beach is his sister.

Following a wedding trip to Disneyland the couple will live in San Rafael.

Visiting The Moon? Why Not Learn About Wash

In many instances the average family is more informed on visits to the moon than in how to properly launder and dryclean clothing. One reason, reports the National Automatic Laundry and Cleaning Council, is the revolution in the thousands of textile and material combinations for clothing and other items. The influx of fake furs, glass fiber, permanent press, knitwear varieties, bonding, plastic and other materials provide many cleaning problems.

In a new educational film, the council will help inform present and future homemakers on "do's" and "dont's" of textile maintenance. Entitled "How To Save Time, Work and Money", the new color film strip features these points:

Know the equipment you are using and what it can do. Don't overload machines and use proper amount of detergent.

Scrutinize the hand-tag on garments and textiles to be sure it can be laundered or drycleaned under normal conditions.

POPULATION PROJECTION

San Rafael Held Growing Rapidly

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The accompanying illustrations prepared by San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner depict the city's growth in area and population)

Five-year-old predictions that Greater San Rafael will have a population of 95,000 by 1990 are likely to be too low, according to San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner.

In a technical report prepared for the city council and reviewing the population and growth of San Rafael, Hotchner points out that the city's general plan, adopted in 1966, predicted the population of San Rafael and neighboring unincorporated areas would not reach 52,000 until 1970. But as of May 1, 1968, the area census already was 55,287, Hotchner said.

"We may well assume that the general plan projections of 75,000 by 1980 and 95,000 by 1990 will in actuality be exceeded," the planner warned. "Either we plan ahead or population growth will lead us by the nose and drain us through the pocketbook.

"Time is not on our side so we must both plan ahead and act now with decision . . . before we are overwhelmed by the rapid changes taking place," Hotchner reported.

The planning director pointed out that the Town of San Rafael was formed in 1874 with a population of 600 persons in an area of one-quarter of a square mile. By 1913, when San Rafael became a charter city, it had grown to 12.07 square miles housing 5,934 persons, Hotchner said.

By 1950, the city limits had grown only another one-tenth of a square mile, but the population had risen to 13,848. Annexations in the next decade of parts of Terra Linda, Glenwood and Peacock Gap increased the area to 16.76 square miles and the population to 20,460.

The past decade brought the area to 20.17 square miles and the city's population to 38,977, but the annexation pattern left San Rafael "in the unenviable position of being composed of three major geographically separated segments each of which is linked by only one road connection with the other," Hotchner said.

His report pointed out that the city's 1966 general plan extends beyond present city limits to encompass all of the San Rafael Creek and Las Gallinas Creek watersheds, practically the same area as the San Rafael High School District.

"Whereas population increased 50,000 over the last 50 years it looks like it's only going to take 20 years for the next 50,000 people to arrive," Hotchner predicted. "If there is a message, it is that we must change our habits from those that served us well during the period from 1910 to 1950. We no longer . . . can afford to sit back and wait for problems to compound themselves to the point where we are forced to act. We must act while we still have alternative courses to choose from" in terms of transportation, schools, and "all the other things that make this an area worth living in or departing from," the planner reported.

Board Due Preliminary Budget Of $45 Million

Marin County Board of Supervisors will formally approve a preliminary county budget of more than $45 million tomorrow morning and set public hearings that will determine the final budget.

The proposal thus far shows an $8 million jump in total budget needs from this year's $37,022,804. This would mean a tax rate increase of about 65 cents over this year's $2.575 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Budget hearings will start on June 14 at the Civic Center.

Tomorrow's meeting of the supervisors will not begin until 10 a.m. because the supervisors will sit as the Marin County Transit District board of directors from 8:30 a.m. until 10 a.m.

Other topics on the supervisors' agenda include:

COURTHOUSE — The county administrator will report on the status of the fire-ravaged courthouse building in downtown San Rafael and plans for demolition and removal of the doughboy statue.

POLICE RELATIONS — A fact-finding committee will submit its final report, commending Bella H. Aaron's Police Community Relations Program and urging more efforts to get Marin City to participate in the program.

GENERAL RELIEF — County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney will explain how a Supreme Court ruling of last month runs counter to Marin's policy of not granting general relief to employable, able-bodied persons.

HOUSEBOATS — Marine Inspector Richard L. Larson will report on the continuing program of abating non-complying houseboats in Richardson Bay.

BAY FILL — A public hearing will be held on a request by Mervin Britto to fill his tideland lot at 12680 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, south of Inverness Motel. Marin County planning commissioners rejected the fill by 4 to 3 vote on May 10.

APARTMENTS — Los Ranchitos Homeowners Association will protest the proposed Parktree Apartments, a 66-unit development on Los Ranchitos Road at Glenside Way. The county planning commissioners approved the apartments by 6 to 1 vote on May 10.

INDIAN VALLEY — A public hearing will determine whether an interim zone for Indian Valley in Southwest Novato, setting minimum lot size at one acre, should be continued for another year. The interim zone, passed in February, expired because it was good for only three months.

AERIAL ADVERTISING — Supervisor Michael Wornum will seek an ordinance banning aerial advertising.

800 County Workers In Bargaining Units

About 800 employees in the Marin County Employees Association general unit will be divided into six new bargaining units.

The county personnel commission Friday set up these new bargaining units on the basis of type of work performed:

Clerical workers, about 370 in all; blue collar workers, about 170 in the trades, vocational and custodial fields; technical, regulatory and related workers, such as engineers, planners, and accountants; public service and related fields such as public health workers, attorneys, and eligibility workers in public social service; first-line supervisors; mid-management employees, directly under department heads.

In each of the first four categories, an election will be held as soon as the State Conciliation Service can arrange it. Each bargaining unit will decide by majority vote whether it wants the Marin County Employees Association to continue representing them or whether a new union like the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, should represent them.

Personnel commissioners decided that no election will be held immediately in the first-line supervisors unit and the mid-management unit because these employees are now represented by the mid-management bargaining unit.

The bargaining units will be in addition to the Probation Workers Union Local 535, Social Workers Union Local 535, California Nurses Association, the Marin Deputy Sheriff's Association, and the Emergency unit (communications workers and firemen) of the Marin County Employees Association.

Historic Mission To Be Auctioned

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)— The historic, Spanish-style Mission Inn, which first opened its doors 12 years after the Civil War and hosted four American Presidents since, has fallen on hard times and will be auctioned Tuesday.

What began in 1876 as a 12-room adobe hotel was expanded in keeping with early California architecture and attracted Presidents Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt.

Hard times and rising debts in recent years made further operations risky and for three days in 1969 the lobby's ornate walnut doors were shut during bankruptcy proceedings.

Novato Council Due Employees' Pay Bid

The Novato City Council will consider a bid by city employees for a 5 per cent across-the-board pay raise at 8 p.m. tomorrow, at the community house.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has recommended a 2.5 per cent across-the-board pay raise, with additional hikes for other positions, including police officers.

Ruling For Reshuffled Roadmen

Marin County road crew members whose jobs were reshuffled without notice should be returned to their former posts, the Marin County Personnel Commission has ruled.

On April 9, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost ordered a reshuffling in the county corporaion yards at Greenbrae, Mill Valley and Nicasio. Sixteen men were assigned to different corporation yards, which meant that some had to travel 20 or 30 miles more to get to work.

The personnel commission suggested Friday that instead of reshuffling the men, a rotation of foremen should be considered if friction develops between a foreman and his crew.

The commission also asked the board of supervisors to adopt a resolution forbidding any county department from illegal wire-tapping or tapping of telephone conversations on recording devices without letting the other party know that the conversation is being recorded.

Robert B. McCreadie, chairman of the personnel commission, asked for action because of allegations made during last month's hearing for Frances I. Jennings, senior typist in the health department. Mrs. Jennings testified that Frank E. Kirby, administrative assistant in the health department, used recording devices to tape incoming phone calls.

Kirby and Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht fired Mrs. Jennings on March 19, but the personnel commission reinstated her on May 17 with back pay and full benefits.

Cranston Wants Lockheed Firings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., says executives who brought Lockheed "to the brink of bankruptcy" should be fired as a condition to federally guaranteed loans of $250 million.

Cranston made the appeal in weekend letters to President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally. He said some senators who oppose the federal guarantee would support it if the dismissal condition is part of the agreement.

The administration is asking Congress to guarantee repayment if Lockheed fails to make good on the bank loans. The Senate Banking Committee opens hearings on the bill June 7.

Marin Transit System Inc. On Board Agenda

The future of Marin Transit Systems Inc., a private bus firm operated by blacks from Marin City headquarters, will be discussed by the Marin County Transit District directors tomorrow morning at the Civic Center.

The transit district meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the supervisors' chambers on the third floor.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. want to know where the private bus firm will fit in when the Golden Gate Bridge District begins operating a comprehensive bus system between San Francisco and Sonoma County.

At present, the Marin Transit Systems Inc. operates the Mill Valley to Tiburon commuter bus service and the Central Marin bus service between Kentfield and Novato.

MRS. LEE JOHNSON
Wins a second term

Arequipa Unit Has New Slate

Mrs. Lee Johnson of San Rafael, elected to a second term as chairman of the Mill Valley Millwood Unit, Marin Foundation, Firends of Arequipa, is an 18-year member of the 19-year-old group.

Each year since its founding the unit has given a barn dance at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley as its major fund raising activity. Membership, by invitation, is open to women who enjoy working with young persons, Mrs. Johnson says.

Florence Johnson has been a resident of Marin since 1937. Before her marriage to Lee Johnson, owner of a grocery store in the Bret Harte area of San Rafael, she worked as a dental assistant. She is a native of San Francisco and is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and College of Marin. Her children are Carl, 15, Eric, 12, and Kathryn, 10 years old.

Mrs. Johnson enjoys gardening in the summer and bridge in the winter, and the entire family enjoys the outdoors and participating in trap shooting, hunting and fishing.

Other officers of the unit are Mmes. Kenneth Stevens, vice chairman; Melvin Klyce, secretary; Francis Keane, treasurer; William Witt, volunteer chairman; Wayne Deatsch, house chairman; and Henry Eckhard, ways and means chairman.

Poison Data Bank

The Food and Drug Administration in the near future will begin a study of a computerized poison information system.

Mrs. Lino To Bring Yoga, Weight Loss Into Church Club Activities

Yoga, women's liberation movement and weight loss programs will be among the social and spiritual activities the new president, Mrs. George Lino, plans to introduce for the Mount Carmel Church Women's Club in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Lino will be installed president at 8 p.m. June 9 at the church. Dinner will follow the officers' installation.

Marianne Lino has been a resident of Marin County for 16 years — all of her married life. She was born in Seattle, and was graduated from Presentation Academy in San Francisco and attended the University of San Francisco before her marriage. Her husband was born and reared in Sausalito, where he now has his construction business.

They are the parents of Eileen, 15, James, 13, John, 10, and Andrew, 7.

Mrs. Lino has been a member of the club four years. While first vice president last year she organized a drive for assistance to the Indians on Alcatraz. Then she and her husband brought the many donations to the island on their boat. Marianne says there is nothing she enjoys more than taking off at 4:30 a.m. with her husband to go fishing for bass in local bay waters.

Marianne enjoys cooking for large groups, which she did the past year as a member of the board of directors of the Mount Carmel School Parent-Teacher Group. She cooked stew for the "Blarney Blast" and luncheon for the domino tournament.

While rearing her family, Mrs. Lino has assisted in her husband's work, making suggestions for conveniences which women wished to have built into a home.

Other officers to be installed with Mrs. Lino are Mmes. Donald Conroy, first vice president; Robert Murray, second vice president; Clayton Ellis, recording secretary; Keith Craemer, corresponding secretary; and Ralph Kellogg, treasurer.

Red, White, Blue Showing Upsurge

Red, white and blue color combinations are having a resurgence in the fashion world and in home furnishings, according to Stella Roach, director of the Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart.

Furniture companies are using the colors in patterns on upholstered chairs, day beds, Tiffany hanging glass lamps, decorative clocks and plaques.

Early Surgery Recommended For Club Feet

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—About 90 per cent of children born with club feet are able to walk normally with prompt medical attention, the chief of the Orthopaedic Hospital's Clubfoot Clinic said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Edkins told a medical alumni meeting that clubfoot was the most common of all congenital diseases, occurring in eight out of 100 births.

The medical approach to treatment of clubfoot in the United States, he said, had been hampered by an unrealistic wish to avoid surgery.

But most children would require some surgery at some point in their treatment, Edkins said.

"The younger the child when this is begun, the better," he said, recommending surgery for children six months or younger.

"The earlier the foot is corrected, the better the final results will be," he added.

Just learning to sew? If you are, choose something very easy to make for a beginning. See if you have sheets to mend, since there is nothing like a few long seams to accustom one's-self to the stitching rate of a machine. The pattern you choose should be very simple the first few times you sew. Choose a style that uses very few pattern pieces. Practice setting in zippers and making buttonholes on old pieces of material before you sew on the real thing: you will save yourself time and money.

DRY RUN

Getting their feet wet in preparation for a kayak trip on the Sacramento River are these Boy Scouts of Troop 71 of Terra Linda. The kayaks being tested in Civic Center Lagoon Saturday were made by the boys themselves and are folding boats of brilliantly painted marine plywood and canvas. Eighteen members of the troop plan to ride their craft this summer about 100 miles downstream from Red Bluff to Colusa under the leadership of G. A. Darling of 730 Knockaboul Way, Terra Linda. The boats fold compactly enough to pile six on top of a car for the trip to Red Bluff.

Drunken Driving Arrest

A 56-year-old San Rafael man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of felony drunken driving after his auto collided with another in Greenbrae and injured the other driver. It was one of four injury accidents during the weekend reported today by the California Highway Patrol.

Arrested was Herbert Parker Sioussat of 1747 Lincoln Ave. who struck the other car after allegedly running a red light at the intersection of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Eliseo Drive.

Injured was Richard John Degan, 49, of 170 Eliseo Drive, who was treated at Marin General Hospital for neck and back sprains and multiple scrapes and bruises.

Officers said Degan was southbound on Eliseo at 2:35 p.m. when his auto was struck by Sioussat's, traveling east on Sir Francis Drake.

Sioussat, who is reportedly unemployed, was transported to Marin County Jail after failing a roadside sobriety test.

He was released on $1,200 bail and is scheduled to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

The highway patrol reported three other injury accidents since Friday.

Officers said Thomas Frederick Valentino, 22, of 348 Riviera Drive, and Ruth Levy, 20, of 116 Picnic Avenue, San Rafael, were injured Friday near the Meadow Club on Fairfax-Bolinas Road, west of Fairfax.

The accident occurred at 8:30 p.m., officers said, when Valentino lost control of his motorcycle on a curve.

Three persons were injured yesterday when their auto struck the rear of another on Highway 101 near Highway 17, officers said.

Driver of the auto, Hans Berger of San Francisco, was treated at Marin General for a bruised knee, while his wife was checked for chest pains. Their passenger, Harry Tsegeletos, 67, of 275 Karen Way, Tiburon, was treated for a neck sprain.

The three were injured at 1:30 p.m., officers said, when Berger, 60, struck the rear of an auto driven by George E. Prentice, 49, of Rumford, Me. Prentice reported no injury.

A 7-year-old Kentfield girl was treated yesterday for injuries sustained in a bicycle-motorcycle accident, the hospital said.

Officers said she was riding east on McAllister Avenue in Kentfield and crossed into the westbound lane in front of a motorcycle driven by William Arvid Grange, 19, of 118 McAllister.

ECHOES OF YESTERDAY'S WARS

The flag flew at half-staff yesterday as Marin residents held annual Memorial Day observances at San Rafael Military Academy. A last-minute switch from the traditional location at the old Courthouse, which burned last week, caused no drop in attendance, according to the publicity chairman, Alfred T. Little, who said that a bigger crowd was present than in previous years. He estimated attendance at about 200 persons. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

Two Injured In Weekend Accidents

Two youngsters were seriously injured in weekend accidents in Marin and Sonoma counties.

A Sleepy Hollow boy was hurt when he fell out of a car and a Cotati girl was injured when a car ran over her.

A Sleepy Hollow man trying to rush his son to the hospital after he fell out of the car ran into a parked car on San Anselmo Avenue near Oak Knoll Avenue, San Anselmo police reported today.

The son, James Young, 14, of 15 Estates Drive, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a concussion and multiple injuries.

John Young told police his son accidentally fell from the car about 5 p.m. and in attempt to get him to the hospital he ran into the parked car, causing minor damage to both cars.

A three-year-old Cotati girl was in satisfactory condition today in the intensive care unit of Santa Rosa Community Hospital after a car ran over her while she played in a driveway.

Christina Chin, address unknown, was injured at 4:30 p.m. Saturday when Ronnie Olson, 18, of 6621 Stony Point Road, Cotati, backed his car into the driveway, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Huge Riot Marks Okinawa Protest Among Japanese

TOKYO (UPI)—A police official said today a riot by 15,000 leftist students in downtown Tokyo Sunday was only the opening round of a series of demonstrations to protest the U.S.-Japanese agreement on Okinawa.

Police said 281 protesters were arrested and at least 136 persons, including 125 police officers, were injured.

Mitsuyoshi Nagata, deputy chief of the security department of the national police agency, said "we expect anti-Okinawa agreement demonstrations to continue until the agreement is initialed. We are hoping they will be peaceful and orderly."

Statue Created 2,600 Years Ago Is Stolen

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI)—A 2,600-year-old statue valued at $500,000 was stolen from a glass display case in the lobby of a planetarium, police disclosed today. "Numerous" people known to have been in the building when the foot-high alabaster figure was first missed Sunday were questioned, but police said they had no suspects.

The statue of King Taharga, discovered in a royal tomb in the Sudan and believed to date back to 650 B.C., was on loan from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

MUSIC REVIEW

Wine, Women, Song For Spicy "Cabaret"

By ROBERT M. NESS

An overflow crowd had a wonderful afternoon of wine, women and song yesterday during the Marin Symphony's "Cabaret Concert" at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Conductor Sandor Salgo opened the fast moving and varied program of French music with the overture to "Orpheus" by Offenbach. Having established a mood of gaiety, maestro Salgo led the orchestra through the whimsical but difficult "Sorcerer's Apprentice" by Dukas.

Soprano Gwen Curatilo provided the musical highlight of the afternoon with "Chants D'Auvergne," a series of French folk songs arranged for soprano and orchestra by Joseph Canteloube.

Mrs. Curatilo, whose stage presence is surpassed only by her elegant singing, introduced each of the five songs with a short explanation of its text. The songs varied in character from the humorous "Malurous Qu'o Uno Fenno" to a most elegant love song, "Bailero." Mrs. Curatilo's voice suffered from the amplification system, but not enough to destroy the charm of her singing.

Donald Beacock, a Marin reator who won the highest bid at the Symphony Guild's "whole world" auction to conduct the orchestra, made a grand entry wearing a white, tie, tails, wig, white tennis shoes and a yellow daisy in his lapel. He conducted an abridged overture to "Carmen" with a truly amazing baton technique.

He never missed a cue or lost a beat, even while wiping a tear from his eye with a red handkerchief during the toreador theme. For his efforts he was presented with a spray of wilted cabbage and loud applause.

Six high-kicking Stanford can-can dancers added spice of another sort to the afternoon. The choreography of Rhoda Martyn made all heads turn — Maestro Salgo even conducted with his back to the orchestra.

Barry Mineah's choir from the Marin Country Day School, with the help of Gwen Curatilo and the orchestra, belted out "La Marseillaise" to close a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon.

Following the concert a fine chicken dinner was served with elegant french pastries baked by symphony guild members. Eddy Walter, from the first violin section of the orchestra, led a trio of violin, accordion and bass serenading among the tables.

Dixie Seeks Move Equal Financing

A campaign to gain support for legislation aimed at statewide school finance equalization is under way in the Dixie School District.

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell, following instructions voted last week by district trustees, has sent each principal in the district materials to be distributed in the community.

Pamphlets to be distributed contain information about Senate Bill 801 by Sen. Albert S. Rodda and Assembly Bill 1406 by Assemblyman Leory F. Greene, both Sacramento Democrats.

The bills, calling for a statewide property tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation, would reduce Dixie's rate by about $1, Campbell said.

Funds collected by the state from a statewide tax would be funneled back to local districts.

Campbell called the bills a "just cause" which would "markedly eliminate the variations . . . that exist now in school districts around (the) state."

Residents of the Dixie district are being asked to write or wire state legislators asking support of the bills, now in the committee stage.

Black Students' Fear Told At Girl's Rites

DREW, Miss. (UPI)—Averting his eyes from the casket, the black youth spoke hesitantly, his voice almost lost in the sobs of many of his 700 listeners.

But, he said, his voice breaking, "we forgot our fear and looked to our future." Then he began sobbing uncontrollably and had to be led away.

It was the most poignant eulogy Sunday to Jo Etha Collier, 18, a black girl shot to death from a passing car last Tuesday night shortly after she had graduated from Drew High School. Three white men have been charged with the slaying.

The high school auditorium, where the girl had received a special award for "good conduct and over-all good attitude" five days before, was jammed. Another 600 persons gathered outside.

The girl's parents, Essie and Paul Love, and her seven brothers sat on the front row of the stuffy auditorium. "Oh, we were so happy," cried Mrs. Love.

The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of Atlanta, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, gave the main eulogy.

"Tragedy has struck again in the state of Mississippi ... the forces of evil and destruction have robbed us of one of our most promising and talented young people," Abernathy told the mourners.

Looking down on the casket from the auditorium stage were Mayor W.O. Williford, Police Chief J.D. Fleming and Sunflower County Sheriff Jack Sessums. Also on the stage were Fayette Mayor Charles Evers, a black candidate for governor; and Aaron Henry, state president of the NAACP.

"In spite of our suffering, trials and tribulations, this is not enough," Abernathy said. "Young white men can still move down a highway and shoot our little black girl, who has sought to be somebody and lift herself up."

"This community, and all communities throughout Mississippi, must band together as never before, not to fight with bricks and bottles or guns and bullets, but to fight nonviolently for our constitutional and God-given rights."

There was continual sobbing in the audience. One woman had to be helped out. Others fanned themselves against the heat—the temperature outside was 80—with hand-fans and copies of the funeral program, which bore a picture of Jo-Etha in her graduation cap.

Youth Hurt In Leap Off Freeway

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Sausalito youth was critically injured in a leap from the elevated Central Freeway, California Highway Patrol reported today.

Patrolmen said that the youth, hitchhiking home, was forced out of a motorist's car at 1 a.m. Saturday. The glare of headlights rushing toward him, scared him and he jumped the railing.

He fell 40 feet into the Division of Highways storage yard at 15th Street and San Bruno Avenue. He was unable to move. He was not found until 8 a.m. when his call for help was finally hear, patrolmen reported.

Parker told patrolmen that the motorist who picked him up demanded money. When Parker said he did not have any, he was forced out of the car, according to patrolmen.

Boat Hits Cable, Three Persons Die

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A small speedboat struck a ferry cable on Steamboat Slough, 20 miles south of here, killing three persons, including an infant, and injuring four others.

The accident occurred when the 16-foot speed boat ripped into the ferry cable stretched across the slough. The boat's cabin was sliced off but the hull remained intact.

Parents' Charge Due Hearing

The Tamalpais High School District board will meet in closed session tomorrow to continue discussion of charges against two teachers in its special education program for mentally retarded students.

Meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge, the board will first discuss salary negotiations with its negotiating team.

At about 8:30 p.m., it will again consider parents' charges of ineptitude against two instructors in the special education program, as well as listen to rebuttal from the teachers.

Sharp Reaction To Nixon Speech

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. John Dow, D-N.Y. criticized President Nixon Sunday for not admitting in a speech to army cadets that the nation's military and civilian leaders had made "serious" mistakes.

Dow, whose congressional district includes the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, said the President should have "admitted candidly and frankly that the civil and military leaders of the nation have made mistakes, serious ones ..."

He asked in a statement: "When the President attacks antimilitarism as he did at West Point (Saturday), does he mean that he favors militarism?"

POPULATION PROJECTION

San Rafael Held Growing Rapidly

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The accompanying illustrations prepared by San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner depict the city's growth in area and population)

Five-year-old predictions that Greater San Rafael will have a population of 95,000 by 1990 are likely to be too low, according to San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner.

In a technical report prepared for the city council and reviewing the population and growth of San Rafael, Hotchner points out that the city's general plan, adopted in 1966, predicted the population of San Rafael and neighboring unincorporated areas would not reach 52,000 until 1970. But as of May 1, 1968, the area census already was 55,287, Hotchner said.

"We may well assume that the general plan projections of 75,000 by 1980 and 95,000 by 1990 will in actuality be exceeded," the planner warned. "Either we plan ahead or population growth will lead us by the nose and drain us through the pocketbook.

"Time is not on our side so we must both plan ahead and act now with decision . . . before we are overwhelmed by the rapid changes taking place," Hotchner reported.

The planning director pointed out that the Town of San Rafael was formed in 1874 with a population of 600 persons in an area of one-quarter of a square mile. By 1913, when San Rafael became a charter city, it had grown to 12.07 square miles housing 5,934 persons, Hotchner said.

By 1950, the city limits had grown only another one-tenth of a square mile, but the population had risen to 13,848. Annexations in the next decade of parts of Terra Linda, Glenwood and Peacock Gap increased the area to 16.76 square miles and the population to 20,460.

The past decade brought the area to 20.17 square miles and the city's population to 38,977, but the annexation pattern left San Rafael "in the unenviable position of being composed of three major geographically separated segments each of which is linked by only one road connection with the other," Hotchner said.

His report pointed out that the city's 1966 general plan extends beyond present city limits to encompass all of the San Rafael Creek and Las Gallinas Creek watersheds, practically the same area as the San Rafael High School District.

"Whereas population increased 50,000 over the last 50 years it looks like it's only going to take 20 years for the next 50,000 people to arrive," Hotchner predicted. "If there is a message, it is that we must change our habits from those that served us well during the period from 1910 to 1950. We no longer . . . can afford to sit back and wait for problems to compound themselves to the point where we are forced to act. We must act while we still have alternative courses to choose from" in terms of transportation, schools, and "all the other things that make this an area worth living in or departing from," the planner reported.

Board Due Preliminary Budget Of $45 Million

Marin County Board of Supervisors will formally approve a preliminary county budget of more than $45 million tomorrow morning and set public hearings that will determine the final budget.

The proposal thus far shows an $8 million jump in total budget needs from this year's $37,022,804. This would mean a tax rate increase of about 65 cents over this year's $2.575 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Budget hearings will start on June 14 at the Civic Center.

Tomorrow's meeting of the supervisors will not begin until 10 a.m. because the supervisors will sit as the Marin County Transit District board of directors from 8:30 a.m. until 10 a.m.

Other topics on the supervisors' agenda include:

COURTHOUSE — The county administrator will report on the status of the fire-ravaged courthouse building in downtown San Rafael and plans for demolition and removal of the doughboy statue.

POLICE RELATIONS — A fact-finding committee will submit its final report, commending Bella H. Aaron's Police Community Relations Program and urging more efforts to get Marin City to participate in the program.

GENERAL RELIEF — County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney will explain how a Supreme Court ruling of last month runs counter to Marin's policy of not granting general relief to employable, able-bodied persons.

HOUSEBOATS — Marine Inspector Richard L. Larson will report on the continuing program of abating non-complying houseboats in Richardson Bay.

BAY FILL — A public hearing will be held on a request by Mervin Britto to fill his tideland lot at 12680 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, south of Inverness Motel. Marin County planning commissioners rejected the fill by 4 to 3 vote on May 10.

APARTMENTS — Los Ranchitos Homeowners Association will protest the proposed Parktree Apartments, a 66-unit development on Los Ranchitos Road at Glenside Way. The county planning commissioners approved the apartments by 6 to 1 vote on May 10.

INDIAN VALLEY — A public hearing will determine whether an interim zone for Indian Valley in Southwest Novato, setting minimum lot size at one acre, should be continued for another year. The interim zone, passed in February, expired because it was good for only three months.

AERIAL ADVERTISING — Supervisor Michael Wornum will seek an ordinance banning aerial advertising.

800 County Workers In Bargaining Units

About 800 employees in the Marin County Employees Association general unit will be divided into six new bargaining units.

The county personnel commission Friday set up these new bargaining units on the basis of type of work performed:

Clerical workers, about 370 in all; blue collar workers, about 170 in the trades, vocational and custodial fields; technical, regulatory and related workers, such as engineers, planners, and accountants; public service and related fields such as public health workers, attorneys, and eligibility workers in public social service; first-line supervisors; mid-management employees, directly under department heads.

In each of the first four categories, an election will be held as soon as the State Conciliation Service can arrange it. Each bargaining unit will decide by majority vote whether it wants the Marin County Employees Association to continue representing them or whether a new union like the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, should represent them.

Personnel commissioners decided that no election will be held immediately in the first-line supervisors unit and the mid-management unit because these employees are now represented by the mid-management bargaining unit.

The bargaining units will be in addition to the Probation Workers Union Local 535, Social Workers Union Local 535, California Nurses Association, the Marin Deputy Sheriff's Association, and the Emergency unit (communications workers and firemen) of the Marin County Employees Association.

Historic Mission To Be Auctioned

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)— The historic, Spanish-style Mission Inn, which first opened its doors 12 years after the Civil War and hosted four American Presidents since, has fallen on hard times and will be auctioned Tuesday.

What began in 1876 as a 12-room adobe hotel was expanded in keeping with early California architecture and attracted Presidents Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt.

Hard times and rising debts in recent years made further operations risky and for three days in 1969 the lobby's ornate walnut doors were shut during bankruptcy proceedings.

Novato Council Due Employees' Pay Bid

The Novato City Council will consider a bid by city employees for a 5 per cent across-the-board pay raise at 8 p.m. tomorrow, at the community house.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has recommended a 2.5 per cent across-the-board pay raise, with additional hikes for other positions, including police officers.

Ruling For Reshuffled Roadmen

Marin County road crew members whose jobs were reshuffled without notice should be returned to their former posts, the Marin County Personnel Commission has ruled.

On April 9, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost ordered a reshuffling in the county corporaion yards at Greenbrae, Mill Valley and Nicasio. Sixteen men were assigned to different corporation yards, which meant that some had to travel 20 or 30 miles more to get to work.

The personnel commission suggested Friday that instead of reshuffling the men, a rotation of foremen should be considered if friction develops between a foreman and his crew.

The commission also asked the board of supervisors to adopt a resolution forbidding any county department from illegal wire-tapping or tapping of telephone conversations on recording devices without letting the other party know that the conversation is being recorded.

Robert B. McCreadie, chairman of the personnel commission, asked for action because of allegations made during last month's hearing for Frances I. Jennings, senior typist in the health department. Mrs. Jennings testified that Frank E. Kirby, administrative assistant in the health department, used recording devices to tape incoming phone calls.

Kirby and Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht fired Mrs. Jennings on March 19, but the personnel commission reinstated her on May 17 with back pay and full benefits.

Cranston Wants Lockheed Firings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., says executives who brought Lockheed "to the brink of bankruptcy" should be fired as a condition to federally guaranteed loans of $250 million.

Cranston made the appeal in weekend letters to President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally. He said some senators who oppose the federal guarantee would support it if the dismissal condition is part of the agreement.

The administration is asking Congress to guarantee repayment if Lockheed fails to make good on the bank loans. The Senate Banking Committee opens hearings on the bill June 7.

Marin Transit System Inc. On Board Agenda

The future of Marin Transit Systems Inc., a private bus firm operated by blacks from Marin City headquarters, will be discussed by the Marin County Transit District directors tomorrow morning at the Civic Center.

The transit district meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the supervisors' chambers on the third floor.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. want to know where the private bus firm will fit in when the Golden Gate Bridge District begins operating a comprehensive bus system between San Francisco and Sonoma County.

At present, the Marin Transit Systems Inc. operates the Mill Valley to Tiburon commuter bus service and the Central Marin bus service between Kentfield and Novato.

DRY RUN

Getting their feet wet in preparation for a kayak trip on the Sacramento River are these Boy Scouts of Troop 71 of Terra Linda. The kayaks being tested in Civic Center Lagoon Saturday were made by the boys themselves and are folding boats of brilliantly painted marine plywood and canvas. Eighteen members of the troop plan to ride their craft this summer about 100 miles downstream from Red Bluff to Colusa under the leadership of G. A. Darling of 730 Knockaboul Way, Terra Linda. The boats fold compactly enough to pile six on top of a car for the trip to Red Bluff.

Drunken Driving Arrest

A 56-year-old San Rafael man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of felony drunken driving after his auto collided with another in Greenbrae and injured the other driver. It was one of four injury accidents during the weekend reported today by the California Highway Patrol.

Arrested was Herbert Parker Sioussat of 1747 Lincoln Ave. who struck the other car after allegedly running a red light at the intersection of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Eliseo Drive.

Injured was Richard John Degan, 49, of 170 Eliseo Drive, who was treated at Marin General Hospital for neck and back sprains and multiple scrapes and bruises.

Officers said Degan was southbound on Eliseo at 2:35 p.m. when his auto was struck by Sioussat's, traveling east on Sir Francis Drake.

Sioussat, who is reportedly unemployed, was transported to Marin County Jail after failing a roadside sobriety test.

He was released on $1,200 bail and is scheduled to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

The highway patrol reported three other injury accidents since Friday.

Officers said Thomas Frederick Valentino, 22, of 348 Riviera Drive, and Ruth Levy, 20, of 116 Picnic Avenue, San Rafael, were injured Friday near the Meadow Club on Fairfax-Bolinas Road, west of Fairfax.

The accident occurred at 8:30 p.m., officers said, when Valentino lost control of his motorcycle on a curve.

Three persons were injured yesterday when their auto struck the rear of another on Highway 101 near Highway 17, officers said.

Driver of the auto, Hans Berger of San Francisco, was treated at Marin General for a bruised knee, while his wife was checked for chest pains. Their passenger, Harry Tsegeletos, 67, of 275 Karen Way, Tiburon, was treated for a neck sprain.

The three were injured at 1:30 p.m., officers said, when Berger, 60, struck the rear of an auto driven by George E. Prentice, 49, of Rumford, Me. Prentice reported no injury.

A 7-year-old Kentfield girl was treated yesterday for injuries sustained in a bicycle-motorcycle accident, the hospital said.

Officers said she was riding east on McAllister Avenue in Kentfield and crossed into the westbound lane in front of a motorcycle driven by William Arvid Grange, 19, of 118 McAllister.

ECHOES OF YESTERDAY'S WARS

The flag flew at half-staff yesterday as Marin residents held annual Memorial Day observances at San Rafael Military Academy. A last-minute switch from the traditional location at the old Courthouse, which burned last week, caused no drop in attendance, according to the publicity chairman, Alfred T. Little, who said that a bigger crowd was present than in previous years. He estimated attendance at about 200 persons. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

Two Injured In Weekend Accidents

Two youngsters were seriously injured in weekend accidents in Marin and Sonoma counties.

A Sleepy Hollow boy was hurt when he fell out of a car and a Cotati girl was injured when a car ran over her.

A Sleepy Hollow man trying to rush his son to the hospital after he fell out of the car ran into a parked car on San Anselmo Avenue near Oak Knoll Avenue, San Anselmo police reported today.

The son, James Young, 14, of 15 Estates Drive, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a concussion and multiple injuries.

John Young told police his son accidentally fell from the car about 5 p.m. and in attempt to get him to the hospital he ran into the parked car, causing minor damage to both cars.

A three-year-old Cotati girl was in satisfactory condition today in the intensive care unit of Santa Rosa Community Hospital after a car ran over her while she played in a driveway.

Christina Chin, address unknown, was injured at 4:30 p.m. Saturday when Ronnie Olson, 18, of 6621 Stony Point Road, Cotati, backed his car into the driveway, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Huge Riot Marks Okinawa Protest Among Japanese

TOKYO (UPI)—A police official said today a riot by 15,000 leftist students in downtown Tokyo Sunday was only the opening round of a series of demonstrations to protest the U.S.-Japanese agreement on Okinawa.

Police said 281 protesters were arrested and at least 136 persons, including 125 police officers, were injured.

Mitsuyoshi Nagata, deputy chief of the security department of the national police agency, said "we expect anti-Okinawa agreement demonstrations to continue until the agreement is initialed. We are hoping they will be peaceful and orderly."

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI)—A 2,600-year-old statue valued at $500,000 was stolen from a glass display case in the lobby of a planetarium, police disclosed today. "Numerous" people known to have been in the building when the foot-high alabaster figure was first missed Sunday were questioned, but police said they had no suspects.

The statue of King Taharga, discovered in a royal tomb in the Sudan and believed to date back to 650 B.C., was on loan from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

MUSIC REVIEW

By ROBERT M. NESS

An overflow crowd had a wonderful afternoon of wine, women and song yesterday during the Marin Symphony's "Cabaret Concert" at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Conductor Sandor Salgo opened the fast moving and varied program of French music with the overture to "Orpheus" by Offenbach. Having established a mood of gaiety, maestro Salgo led the orchestra through the whimsical but difficult "Sorcerer's Apprentice" by Dukas.

Soprano Gwen Curatilo provided the musical highlight of the afternoon with "Chants D'Auvergne," a series of French folk songs arranged for soprano and orchestra by Joseph Canteloube.

Mrs. Curatilo, whose stage presence is surpassed only by her elegant singing, introduced each of the five songs with a short explanation of its text. The songs varied in character from the humorous "Malurous Qu'o Uno Fenno" to a most elegant love song, "Bailero." Mrs. Curatilo's voice suffered from the amplification system, but not enough to destroy the charm of her singing.

Donald Beacock, a Marin reator who won the highest bid at the Symphony Guild's "whole world" auction to conduct the orchestra, made a grand entry wearing a white, tie, tails, wig, white tennis shoes and a yellow daisy in his lapel. He conducted an abridged overture to "Carmen" with a truly amazing baton technique.

He never missed a cue or lost a beat, even while wiping a tear from his eye with a red handkerchief during the toreador theme. For his efforts he was presented with a spray of wilted cabbage and loud applause.

Six high-kicking Stanford can-can dancers added spice of another sort to the afternoon. The choreography of Rhoda Martyn made all heads turn — Maestro Salgo even conducted with his back to the orchestra.

Barry Mineah's choir from the Marin Country Day School, with the help of Gwen Curatilo and the orchestra, belted out "La Marseillaise" to close a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon.

Following the concert a fine chicken dinner was served with elegant french pastries baked by symphony guild members. Eddy Walter, from the first violin section of the orchestra, led a trio of violin, accordion and bass serenading among the tables.

Dixie Seeks Move Equal Financing

A campaign to gain support for legislation aimed at statewide school finance equalization is under way in the Dixie School District.

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell, following instructions voted last week by district trustees, has sent each principal in the district materials to be distributed in the community.

Pamphlets to be distributed contain information about Senate Bill 801 by Sen. Albert S. Rodda and Assembly Bill 1406 by Assemblyman Leory F. Greene, both Sacramento Democrats.

The bills, calling for a statewide property tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation, would reduce Dixie's rate by about $1, Campbell said.

Funds collected by the state from a statewide tax would be funneled back to local districts.

Campbell called the bills a "just cause" which would "markedly eliminate the variations . . . that exist now in school districts around (the) state."

Residents of the Dixie district are being asked to write or wire state legislators asking support of the bills, now in the committee stage.

Black Students' Fear Told At Girl's Rites

DREW, Miss. (UPI)—Averting his eyes from the casket, the black youth spoke hesitantly, his voice almost lost in the sobs of many of his 700 listeners.

But, he said, his voice breaking, "we forgot our fear and looked to our future." Then he began sobbing uncontrollably and had to be led away.

It was the most poignant eulogy Sunday to Jo Etha Collier, 18, a black girl shot to death from a passing car last Tuesday night shortly after she had graduated from Drew High School. Three white men have been charged with the slaying.

The high school auditorium, where the girl had received a special award for "good conduct and over-all good attitude" five days before, was jammed. Another 600 persons gathered outside.

The girl's parents, Essie and Paul Love, and her seven brothers sat on the front row of the stuffy auditorium. "Oh, we were so happy," cried Mrs. Love.

The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of Atlanta, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, gave the main eulogy.

"Tragedy has struck again in the state of Mississippi ... the forces of evil and destruction have robbed us of one of our most promising and talented young people," Abernathy told the mourners.

Looking down on the casket from the auditorium stage were Mayor W.O. Williford, Police Chief J.D. Fleming and Sunflower County Sheriff Jack Sessums. Also on the stage were Fayette Mayor Charles Evers, a black candidate for governor; and Aaron Henry, state president of the NAACP.

"In spite of our suffering, trials and tribulations, this is not enough," Abernathy said. "Young white men can still move down a highway and shoot our little black girl, who has sought to be somebody and lift herself up."

"This community, and all communities throughout Mississippi, must band together as never before, not to fight with bricks and bottles or guns and bullets, but to fight nonviolently for our constitutional and God-given rights."

There was continual sobbing in the audience. One woman had to be helped out. Others fanned themselves against the heat—the temperature outside was 80—with hand-fans and copies of the funeral program, which bore a picture of Jo-Etha in her graduation cap.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The customs bureau announced today the seizure at San Juan, Puerto Rico, of 201 pounds of pure heroin valued at $30.3 million at "street prices."

Youth Hurt In Leap Off Freeway

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Sausalito youth was critically injured in a leap from the elevated Central Freeway, California Highway Patrol reported today.

Patrolmen said that the youth, hitchhiking home, was forced out of a motorist's car at 1 a.m. Saturday. The glare of headlights rushing toward him, scared him and he jumped the railing.

He fell 40 feet into the Division of Highways storage yard at 15th Street and San Bruno Avenue. He was unable to move. He was not found until 8 a.m. when his call for help was finally hear, patrolmen reported.

Parker told patrolmen that the motorist who picked him up demanded money. When Parker said he did not have any, he was forced out of the car, according to patrolmen.

Boat Hits Cable, Three Persons Die

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A small speedboat struck a ferry cable on Steamboat Slough, 20 miles south of here, killing three persons, including an infant, and injuring four others.

The accident occurred when the 16-foot speed boat ripped into the ferry cable stretched across the slough. The boat's cabin was sliced off but the hull remained intact.

Parents' Charge Due Hearing

The Tamalpais High School District board will meet in closed session tomorrow to continue discussion of charges against two teachers in its special education program for mentally retarded students.

Meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge, the board will first discuss salary negotiations with its negotiating team.

At about 8:30 p.m., it will again consider parents' charges of ineptitude against two instructors in the special education program, as well as listen to rebuttal from the teachers.

Sharp Reaction To Nixon Speech

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. John Dow, D-N.Y. criticized President Nixon Sunday for not admitting in a speech to army cadets that the nation's military and civilian leaders had made "serious" mistakes.

Dow, whose congressional district includes the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, said the President should have "admitted candidly and frankly that the civil and military leaders of the nation have made mistakes, serious ones ..."

He asked in a statement: "When the President attacks antimilitarism as he did at West Point (Saturday), does he mean that he favors militarism?"

PLEASE WARM ME UP

I'm a beautiful new 9 room plus home in San Rafael hills with a great view. My owner, the contractor, will not heat me up until someone wants me. In fact, he has recently chopped $3,800 off my price. I have 2 great decks, sunken living room, formal dining room, utility room, huge family room w/wet bar, 3 large bdrms., 2½ baths. I'm quite lonely and I'm sure you won't find anyone as nice as me at $51,950.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Polio Vaccine Is Exception To Rule For Booster Shots

ONE ATTACK of a contagious disease, such as smallpox or German or regular measles, is thought to confer lasting immunity. But immunity wanes, unless periodic reexposure occurs. If the individual was immunized with a vaccine, booster doses or revaccination may be necessary to maintain resistance. This explains the recent resurgence of measles among children who received the vaccine a few years ago.

ORAL POLIO VACCINE is the exception, in that it produces permanent immunity. The live viruses invade the gastrointestinal tract and from here, they may spread to other persons who have not been vaccinated.

This constitutes a risk to the routine use of live polio virus vaccine but one worth taking, considering that polio has almost been completely eradicated. When the virus spreads from vaccinated persons to household contacts it usually produces a harmless infection.

But it also acts as an immunizer. Some investigators believe that it boosts the number of protective antibodies in persons previously vaccinated.

WHAT IS THE CHANCE of developing polio from oral vaccine that contains live, but weakened, polio viruses? In the United States, it is less than one case per million doses of the vaccine. For example, a total of 70 million doses were given from 1965 to 1967. There were eight cases among recipients of oral polio virus vaccine and 16 among people in close contact. All of the recipients who developed polio were children, nine of the 16 contacts were adults.

The risk of the vaccine is well worth the end results. Polio today has almost disappeared in this country. Only 15 years ago, we had 18,308 cases plus the unforgettable anxiety that existed in the summer when polio was rife.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail of stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

MUSTARD USER

G.A. writes: I'm 85 and put mustard on my meat snadwiches. My sister says it will eat away the lining of my stomach. Will it?

REPLY

No. We might paraphrase the remark Abraham Lincoln made when told that Grant drank; "Find out what kind of whisky Grant drinks and give it to the other generals." What kind of mustard do you use? It might help all of us reach 85.

OPEN HEART SURGERY

REPLY

The heart is opened and the defect is corrected under full view of the surgeon. This procedure requires rerouting of the blood around the heart during the few minutes it takes to do the operation. An artificial heart keeps the blood circulating.

VALVE SPASMS

REPLY

Yes and no. Many people with nervous stomach develop spasms of the pyloric valve, which is located at the exit of the structure. However, these spasms also develop in persons with peptic ulcer, gall bladder disease and other infections along the intestines.

COFFEE NERVES

V.O. writes: Why does coffee make some people nervous whereas others are not bothered by it?

REPLY

Some individuals are more sensitive to caffeine than others.

Today's Health Hint — Blankets and quilts should be aired and washed regularly.

Cites Law Leaving Eagle Unprotected

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—A predator law dating back to the last century keeps Wyoming state officials from taking any effective action to protect golden eagles, an outdoor writer said Sunday. "Though federal law gives protection to both bald and golden eagles, Wyoming's predator law names the golden eagle as a bird that deserves no protection," said Charles Farmer.

Farmer criticized existing state law as archaic in the wake of the discovery of 48 dead bald and golden eagles in Wyoming since May 1. Many of the federally protected birds are believed to have fallen victim to Thallium, a poison set out for predator animals such as coyotes. "Wyoming law is years behind on the predator question," Farmer said. "But many of Wyoming's citizens are now giving second thoughts to it — now that a number of eagles have been poisoned."

Slaughtered Pig Gets Revenge

SINGAPORE (UPI)—A pig got revenge of sorts at a Singapore slaughter house Sunday.

Hospital attendants listed See Ee San, 32, as "temporarily unfit to work or talk" after the carcass of a pig he had slaughtered fell from a meat hook and knocked him unconscious. They said See stretched out on the slaughter house floor for a snooze just beneath a row of hanging pigs after he had finished work for the day.

Beat Poet Welch Is Still Sought

NEVADA CITY (UPI)—Beat generation poet Lew Welch, of Marin City, missing for more than a week, still is being sought by sheriff's deputies in the hills above Nevada City.

The 44-year-old San Francisco Bay Area poet left a note at the mountain home of a friend in Nevada County May 23 saying he was a failure and indicating he planned to take his own life.

Pacifist Hits Viet Expediency

NEW YORK (UPI) —Pacifist David Dellinger charged Sunday President Nixon would not end the war in Indochina until it was politically "advantageous."

Speaking at a baccalureate ceremony at Columbia University's St. Paul's Chapel, Dellinger, a defendant in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial said the Vietnam War would continue as long as it suited Nixon's political plans.

"When it will stop depends more than anything else on it is advantageous to the electoral plans of the president," Dellinger said.

Mill Valleyan Takes Bride On City Cable Car

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two Humboldt State College students were married Sunday during a ride from Victoria Park to Green Street aboard the No. 60 Powell-Hyde cable car.

Linda Ann Lindstrom of Modesto and Philip Burns Abbott of Mill Valley took their vows in front of about 15 friends who crowded into the car, which had been rented at the going rate of $90 for three hours.

Municipal Railway supervisor Lutheran Cann played the bridal march on No. 60's brass bell while the groom's father pronounced the couple man and wife.

The young couple wrote their own ceremony and were wed in just a matter of blocks.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Polio Vaccine Is Exception To Rule For Booster Shots

ONE ATTACK of a contagious disease, such as smallpox or German or regular measles, is thought to confer lasting immunity. But immunity wanes, unless periodic reexposure occurs. If the individual was immunized with a vaccine, booster doses or revaccination may be necessary to maintain resistance. This explains the recent resurgence of measles among children who received the vaccine a few years ago.

ORAL POLIO VACCINE is the exception, in that it produces permanent immunity. The live viruses invade the gastrointestinal tract and from here, they may spread to other persons who have not been vaccinated.

This constitutes a risk to the routine use of live polio virus vaccine but one worth taking, considering that polio has almost been completely eradicated. When the virus spreads from vaccinated persons to household contacts it usually produces a harmless infection.

But it also acts as an immunizer. Some investigators believe that it boosts the number of protective antibodies in persons previously vaccinated.

WHAT IS THE CHANCE of developing polio from oral vaccine that contains live, but weakened, polio viruses? In the United States, it is less than one case per million doses of the vaccine. For example, a total of 70 million doses were given from 1965 to 1967. There were eight cases among recipients of oral polio virus vaccine and 16 among people in close contact. All of the recipients who developed polio were children, nine of the 16 contacts were adults.

The risk of the vaccine is well worth the end results. Polio today has almost disappeared in this country. Only 15 years ago, we had 18,308 cases plus the unforgettable anxiety that existed in the summer when polio was rife.

MUSTARD USER

G.A. writes: I'm 85 and put mustard on my meat snadwiches. My sister says it will eat away the lining of my stomach. Will it?

REPLY

No. We might paraphrase the remark Abraham Lincoln made when told that Grant drank; "Find out what kind of whisky Grant drinks and give it to the other generals." What kind of mustard do you use? It might help all of us reach 85.

OPEN HEART SURGERY

REPLY

The heart is opened and the defect is corrected under full view of the surgeon. This procedure requires rerouting of the blood around the heart during the few minutes it takes to do the operation. An artificial heart keeps the blood circulating.

VALVE SPASMS

L.R. writes: Is pylorospasm a fancy name for nervous stomach?

REPLY

Yes and no. Many people with nervous stomach develop spasms of the pyloric valve, which is located at the exit of the structure. However, these spasms also develop in persons with peptic ulcer, gall bladder disease and other infections along the intestines.

COFFEE NERVES

V.O. writes: Why does coffee make some people nervous whereas others are not bothered by it?

REPLY

Cites Law Leaving Eagle Unprotected

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—A predator law dating back to the last century keeps Wyoming state officials from taking any effective action to protect golden eagles, an outdoor writer said Sunday. "Though federal law gives protection to both bald and golden eagles, Wyoming's predator law names the golden eagle as a bird that deserves no protection," said Charles Farmer.

Farmer criticized existing state law as archaic in the wake of the discovery of 48 dead bald and golden eagles in Wyoming since May 1. Many of the federally protected birds are believed to have fallen victim to Thallium, a poison set out for predator animals such as coyotes. "Wyoming law is years behind on the predator question," Farmer said. "But many of Wyoming's citizens are now giving second thoughts to it — now that a number of eagles have been poisoned."

Slaughtered Pig Gets Revenge

SINGAPORE (UPI)—A pig got revenge of sorts at a Singapore slaughter house Sunday.

Hospital attendants listed See Ee San, 32, as "temporarily unfit to work or talk" after the carcass of a pig he had slaughtered fell from a meat hook and knocked him unconscious. They said See stretched out on the slaughter house floor for a snooze just beneath a row of hanging pigs after he had finished work for the day.

Beat Poet Welch Is Still Sought

NEVADA CITY (UPI)—Beat generation poet Lew Welch, of Marin City, missing for more than a week, still is being sought by sheriff's deputies in the hills above Nevada City.

The 44-year-old San Francisco Bay Area poet left a note at the mountain home of a friend in Nevada County May 23 saying he was a failure and indicating he planned to take his own life.

Pacifist Hits Viet Expediency

NEW YORK (UPI) —Pacifist David Dellinger charged Sunday President Nixon would not end the war in Indochina until it was politically "advantageous."

Speaking at a baccalureate ceremony at Columbia University's St. Paul's Chapel, Dellinger, a defendant in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial said the Vietnam War would continue as long as it suited Nixon's political plans.

"When it will stop depends more than anything else on it is advantageous to the electoral plans of the president," Dellinger said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Deadpan Style Of Play Useful, But Don't Put On False Act

It would be improper to put on an act during the play of a hand in the hope of deceiving an opponent by your manner or by the expression on your face. There is nothing wrong with a "deadpan" style of play. You use no manner and no expression, but you are willing to let the opponents draw the wrong conclusion from the cards that you play.

Opening lead — ♠ K

TRY TO HORNSWOGGLE

Declarer took the opening spade lead with dummy's ace and promptly led out the ace and king of trumps. There would be no problem if the queen of trumps fell.

East discarded a low diamond on the second trump, and South thought briefly. If West had as many as three diamonds, the slam was safe: South could lead three top diamonds, discarding a spade from dummy and could then lead his last diamond to get rid of dummy's last spade while West ruffed.

But what to do if West had only two diamonds?

South saw a chance to hornswoggle West by simulating a finesse in diamonds. Declarer therefore led the four of clubs to dummy's king and returned the deuce of diamonds.

NEUTRAL AIR

East Naturally played a low diamond, and South played the queen with a neutral air. He didn't confidently reach for the trick; he simply waited for West's play before making any move at all. It would have been wrong if South had looked fearful, but there was nothing wrong in his looking absolutely free of emotion.

When South's "finesse" succeeded he cashed the ace of diamonds and then continued with the jack of diamonds. West should have stepped in with the queen of trumps to cash his spade trick, but he saw no need to ruff a trick that South was "obviously" going to ruff in the dummy.

JOYFUL THROW

So West discarded a spade, and declarer joyfully threw a spade from dummy. He then led the king of diamonds to discard dummy's last spade, not caring whether West ruffed or not.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 2-NT, the negative response. If the queen of hearts were the king, you bid three hearts since you would then have enough for a positive response.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

American poet Walt Whitman was born May 31, 1819.

On this day in history:

In 1902 the Boer War ended as Great Britain and the South Africans signed a peace treaty.

In 1949 Mary Margaret McBride marked her 15th anniversary as a radio broadcaster and 35,000 fans turned out to honor her at Yankee Stadium in New York City.

In 1962 Adolph Eichmann was hanged for his part in the murders of six million Jews in Nazi Germany during World War II.

A thought for the day: Walt Whitman said: "In the faces of men and women I see God."

Record-Breaking Mays Leads Giants To Big Sweep

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—They tore up home plate at Candlestick Park Sunday and give it to Willie Mays.

If the venerable one keeps on going the way he is right now they may wind up one day giving him the whole stadium.

Mays, who celebrated his 40th birthday three weeks ago, was as frisky as a new born colt Sunday while helping the San Francisco Giants whip the Montreal Expos twice, 5-4 and 8-7.

Mays hit his 10th homer of 1971 and the 638th of his career with a man on in the seventh of the opener and the run he scored then was the 1950th since that day in May in 1951 that the Giants called him up from the minors.

The two RBIs he got on the blow boosted his total to 1,827 and now is tied with Al Simmons for ninth place in the all-time list. Mays may never wind up with the record since it stands at 2,217 and is held by Babe Ruth. But the way he is playing these days don't bet against him

With 1,950 runs scored Mays now is the all-time National League champ, moving one ahead of Stan Musial. Far ahead of him at 2,245 stands Ty Cobb.

Right after the second game, which Tito Fuentes won for the Giants with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the ninth, workmen removed home plate and took it to Mays in the clubhouse.

They caught Mays in the whirlpool bath, one of his favorite hangouts these days, and when a grateful manager Charlie Fox presented it, Willie said "Gee, I'm tired."

He must have been too, since he played the entire 18 innings of the long doubleheader, the first game in center and the second at first in place of the ailing Willie McCovey.

In all, Mays hit a homer and a double, walked three times, scored a run, drove in two and stole his sixth base of the season. No wonder he was tired.

"I played two because Mac is hurting worse than I am," said Mays. "Anyway I don't get as tired at first as I do in the outfield. That standing around is more tiring."

Mays would love a day off today when the Giants, who have won four in a row, seven of their last eight and widened their lead in the N.L. West to 10 1-2 games, entertain the New York Mets, but chances are he'll be in the lineup, because he likes to play against New York.

They took a 4-1 lead into the seventh of the first game only to see Mays snatch victory away from them, and in the nightcap they were ahead 7-5 going into the bottom of the ninth when the roof fell in for the second time in the same day.

Bobby Bonds hit his 13th homer with a mate aboard in the seventh to get the Giants close at 7-5 after the Expos had routed Rich Robertson in the fourth with seven hits and five runs.

Then in the ninth Dick Dietz walked to lead off the inning and Bonds singled. Chris Speier hit into a forceout and Mays flied out deep to right.

Mike Marshall, who had stopped the Giants since Bonds' homer after John Strohmayer was banged out, dug his own grave by walking pinch-hitter Russ Gibson to load the bases. He followed with a wild pitch and compounded things by walking Al Gallagher to refill the bases.

It seemed strange that Montreal manager Gene Mauch stayed with him, but he did, and it all turned sour when Fuentes lined his game-winning hit to center.

Fuentes, long a fringe player for the Giants, has really blossomed of late, especially as a left-handed hitter. Tito had to teach himself to hit left-handed after he discovered he could never make his way in the majors as a righthanded swinger. That was two and a half years ago.

Now, he says, he feels more confident swinging left than right.

"I don't know how to explain it," said Fuentes, "But when I hit lefthanded now I feel I can get a hit every time. I wish I could feel the same way when I bat right."

As a righthanded swinger Tito is batting less than .200 but as a lefty he's close to .300.

Gaylord Perry, with relief help from Jerry Johnson, was the opening game winner and now is 6-2. Steve Hamilton, the last of five pitchers, won the nightcap for his first victory with San Francisco.

RECORD BREAKING 500-MILER

Al Unser Vows All-Out Try For Third Straight

By KURT FREUDENTHAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Nobody has ever won auto racing's richest event, the Indianapolis "500" three times in a row, but Al Unser vowed today he will give it a mighty try.

Dapper Al, a member of the famed racing clan from Albuquerque, N.M., made it two in a row Saturday in a nervy, wreck-marred Memorial Holiday weekend chase that was a record-smasher in everything but his own personal payoff.

"This will be a pretty hard act to follow," he conceded, "but I'll be here next year trying again."

In his royal blue, turbo-charged, Ford-powered machine tuned to near perfection, Unser led 103 of the 200-lap grind, including the last 82, to win by 23 seconds over runner-up Peter Revson of New York, the pole sitter, at an average speed of 157.735 miles per hour. That was nearly a mile faster than the old record set by Mario Andretti two years ago.

Only 12 machines were running at the finish and only the top five went the distance. Revson also beat Andretti's old record, but his was the only M16 British-built McLaren car that held up.

From a financial standpoint, the race before nearly 300,000 fans was a huge success. Speedway owner Tony Hulman Sunday night distributed a record purse of $1,001,604—only slightly more than last year—but it was racing's second million dollar purse.

However, Unser's share of $238,454 was more than $33,000 less than he split with his crew last year when he led 190 of the 200 laps. While the speedway management increased its own jackpot by more than $33,000, accessory prizes fell off nearly that much—from $205,000 to about $174,000.

Revson collected $103,198, third-place A.J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., a three-time race winner, $64,759.

Rounding out the top 10 were Jim Malloy, Denver, Colo., $38,669; Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., $32,447; Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala., $30,093; Bud Tingelstad, Indianapolis, $28,206; Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., also the speedway's "rookie of the year," $27,658; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., $22,980, and Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., $24,419.

All 33 starters shared in the payoff.

Mike Mosley, Brownsburg, Ind., suffered serious injuries, including burns, when his car crashed into the wall and burst into flames late in the race. Former "500" winner Bobby Unser, Al's brother who won the race in 1968, spun and also hit the wall trying to avoid Mosley.

Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., was the other driver injured, although not seriously, in a spectacular wreck triggered when another racer's engine blew, spilling oil in which three cars spun and were eliminated.

Crashes took out seven cars and wrecked that of Mark Donohue, Media, Pa., when Mosley's burning machine crashed into Donohue's while it was parked in the infield.

Donohue, in one of the McLarens, had run away from the field in the first 50 laps but his machine conked out with gear trouble after 66 tours around the 2 1-2-mile oval. He finished 25th.

Al Unser himself had a close call, blazing down the home stretch just after England's Dave Hobbs and Rick Muther, Laguna Beach, Calif., collided in a spectacular wreck in giew of many thousands of fans. He got by, all right, but a piece of debris hit his helmet.

The lead changed hands 13 times, with Bobby Unser, Joe Leonard, and Lloyd Ruby the other front-runners. Donohue recorded the fastest lap ever in the "500", 174.961 m.p.h., just before he dropped out, shattering the old mark of 168.666 by Ruby three years ago.

Al Unser said he felt certain his winning speed easily could have been 165 or 170 m.p.h., had it not been for the nearly one hour running under the yellow caution light.

He made four pit stops, one unscheduled under the yellow light, for a total of 92 seconds, for refueling and to change three tires.

Unser became the fourth speedway champion to win two years running, the first since the late Bill Vukovich in the 1950s.

The pace car, driven by a local auto dealer, went out of control near the end of the pit apron and slammed into a temporary platform on which about 50 photographers were perched at the start of the race.

The men were spilled like ten pins and one of them, Dr. Vincente Alvarez, an orthopedic surgeon from Buenos Aires, Argentina, who has covered the "500" for many years, suffered a basal skull fracture and other injuries.

Teacher Wins Marathon

Richard Delgado, 31, of Woodacre, an articulate spokesman against the athletic establishment with which he runs, proved again Saturday that he's one of the best as he won the 26-mile, 385-yard Golden Gate Marathon in the record time of 2:31.37.

Delgado, a San Rafael High School mathematics teacher, won the Tiburon-to-San Francisco race over the windy course by nearly five minutes over his nearest competitor.

In only his third marathon, Delgado, representing the West Valley Track Club, broke the record that was set last year by Skip Houk by two and one-half minutes.

An outspoken anti-war protester, Delgado once ran a 64-day relay race with three other men across the United States to talk with men from President Johnson's office about the country's Vietnam policy.

He won the Pacific Association of the AAU's annual 20-kilomenter run in January of 1970, and later on in the year won the Novato Ridge Run also in record time.

In August of last year he finished second in the Dipsea run from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach, despite the fact that, as he puts it "The Dipsea is not a fair competitive running test, and it's too dangerous."

In recognition of all these triumphs, Delgado was named Outstanding Runner of the Year in the Pacific Association for 1970.

Despite this honor, Delgado minimizes his chances of making the Olympics, noting that, "One must be at least in the top three in his event, and the best I have ever been ranked is 10th in the 10,000-meter run."

After his marathon win Saturday, Delgado says he plans to rest from marathons for a while, which he says drily, "are quite tiring."

He began running in the Marine Corps, after passing up high school and college athletics because "Coaches and the athletic establishment tend to deaden the creativity of athletics."

CHAMPS TOURNAMENT

Marin Catholic Reaches Finals

By PAUL CANE

Strong-armed Jim Petray provided the relief pitching, and Paul Riccardi and Tom Olson supplied the hitting, as Marin Catholic eased by Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park 10-2, and into the finals of the Redwood High School Baseball Tournament of Champions.

The victory, witnessed by about 1,700 enthusiastic fans at Albert Park in San Rafael Saturday night, swept the Wildcats into the championship game against Kennedy High School of Fremont this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Kennedy Titans, who blasted Sunset High of Hayward 9-0 in their semi-final game Saturday, were led by pitcher Stan Owsely, who tossed the six-hit shutout.

In the losers' bracket, Moreau High of Hayward handed Castlemont High of Oakland its second straight loss, 2-0, while Richmond High edged Ygnacio Valley of Concord 2-1 in Saturday afternoon contests.

Petray, coming in relief for starter Mickey Simmons, struck out seven and did not allow a hit in his two and one-third innings of work for Marin Catholic. In one stretch, he struck out four men out of five, mostly using a wicked curveball, which, according to Wildcat coach Gary Hughes, " . . . was as good as the best he's had all year."

Olson, winning pitcher in the first-round Marin Catholic shutout over Castlemont, starred in right field for the Wildcats Saturday. Olson scored three runs and had two hits, including a mammoth third-inning triple. Hughes said he planned to go with Olson today as Marin Catholic went for its second Tourney of title.

The Wildcats are the only Marin team to win the TOC, back in 1966.

Perhaps the unsung hero all year for Marin Catholic proved to be the star Saturday, as catcher Paul Riccardi sparked the 10-run Wildcat attack with a smashing second-inning triple,

A's Rained Out; Take On Yankees

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Oakland A's, frontrunners in the American League West division, meet the New York Yankees today in a doubleheader.

The A's, who lead second-place Minnesota by 7 1-2 games, left Boston with a split after Sunday's contest was rained out. The Red Sox stopped Vida Blue's win streak Friday night by edging Oakland, 4-3. It was Blue's second loss of the year—against 10 wins.

But the A's came back Saturday to outslug East division leading Boston, 12-8.

Jim Hunter (8-2) was to pitch the first contest for Oakland today against the lefthander Mike Kekich (1-0). John Odom, trying to regain his form after arm problems, will go against another Yankee lefthander, Fritz Peterson (4-4) in the second game. Odom hasn't won a game this season and has one loss.

The A's face New York for a single game Tuesday, then get two days off before moving on to Washington for a three-game weekend series with the Senators. After the Washington series, Oakland returns home June 8 against Boston.

American poet Walt Whitman was born May 31, 1819.

On this day in history:

In 1902 the Boer War ended as Great Britain and the South Africans signed a peace treaty.

In 1949 Mary Margaret McBride marked her 15th anniversary as a radio broadcaster and 35,000 fans turned out to honor her at Yankee Stadium in New York City.

In 1962 Adolph Eichmann was hanged for his part in the murders of six million Jews in Nazi Germany during World War II.

A thought for the day: Walt Whitman said: "In the faces of men and women I see God."

Deadpan Style Of Play Useful, But Don't Put On False Act

It would be improper to put on an act during the play of a hand in the hope of deceiving an opponent by your manner or by the expression on your face. There is nothing wrong with a "deadpan" style of play. You use no manner and no expression, but you are willing to let the opponents draw the wrong conclusion from the cards that you play.

TRY TO HORNSWOGGLE

Declarer took the opening spade lead with dummy's ace and promptly led out the ace and king of trumps. There would be no problem if the queen of trumps fell.

East discarded a low diamond on the second trump, and South thought briefly. If West had as many as three diamonds, the slam was safe: South could lead three top diamonds, discarding a spade from dummy and could then lead his last diamond to get rid of dummy's last spade while West ruffed.

But what to do if West had only two diamonds?

South saw a chance to hornswoggle West by simulating a finesse in diamonds. Declarer therefore led the four of clubs to dummy's king and returned the deuce of diamonds.

NEUTRAL AIR

East Naturally played a low diamond, and South played the queen with a neutral air. He didn't confidently reach for the trick; he simply waited for West's play before making any move at all. It would have been wrong if South had looked fearful, but there was nothing wrong in his looking absolutely free of emotion.

When South's "finesse" succeeded he cashed the ace of diamonds and then continued with the jack of diamonds. West should have stepped in with the queen of trumps to cash his spade trick, but he saw no need to ruff a trick that South was "obviously" going to ruff in the dummy.

JOYFUL THROW

So West discarded a spade, and declarer joyfully threw a spade from dummy. He then led the king of diamonds to discard dummy's last spade, not caring whether West ruffed or not.

Allisons Dominate 600 Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—The brothers Allison of Hueytown, Ala., will keep the World 600 Grand National division stock car racing crown in the family for another year.

This time, "big brother" Bobby is wearing it. And he's counting that $29,400 first prize money that goes with the Charlotte Motor Speedway victory.

He took it from Donnie, the defending champ, Sunday after beating the younger brother by nearly a full lap in the 600-mile event, winning in a record four hours 16 minutes and 20 seconds at an average speed of 140.442 miles per hour.

It was the first time in four Grand National events in which the Mercury-driving brothers finished one-two that Bobby was on top.

A long duel with pole-sitter Charlie Glotzbach in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo ended with Glotzbach smashing into the wall near the first turn on lap 234 and Bobby went ahead to stay.

At that point the nature of the race changed from the Allison versus Glotzbach to Bobby against Donnie. Most of the lead changes up to lap 234 were between Glotzbach and Bobby.

There were 13 lead changes in the race, 10 of them when either Glotzbach or Bobby Allison went to the fore. Three other cars led one lap apiece, but that was when one of the power-houses dove into the pits.

Donnie was second to Bobby most of the race, he got as far behind as two laps at one point, but on lap 367 of the 400-lap event, Donnie went by his older brother to get in the same lap for the finish.

"After he got by me, I decided to stay behind him, but I wanted to keep him in sight," Bobby said.

It was Donnie's second high speed marathon in as many days. Saturday he drove a Coyote in the Indianapolis 500, where he finished sixth. It was because of the Indy 500 commitment that Donnie was unable to make first day qualifying here and had to settle for the 13th starting position in a car that had made six straight poles this year.

"I'm sure that if he had more time to practice, he'd have been a lot tougher to contend with," said Bobby.

Plymouth driver Pete Hamilton, Richard Petty's former factory-backed teammate crossed the line third, one lap down, and Petty finished fourth. Petty, who has won more races than any Grand National driver in history and who will pass the $1 million mark in earnings this year, has never won at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Trevino Triumphs In Memphis Golf

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Lee Trevino, the former Army sergeant who has earned more than a half-million dollars in less than four years on the pro golf tour, won the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic Sunday and promised to end his self-imposed exile from the Masters.

Trevino, a member of the pro tour since mid-1967, pocketed $35,000 for a 12 under par 268 for the 72 holes at Colonial Country Club to boost his winnings for the year to $115,785.

It was good enough to move him into second place on the money winning list behind Jack Nicklaus, who has won $131,788 and skipped the tournament here.

The victory boosted his career earning to $529,000, moving him to 14th on the all-time winners list and making him the 15th golfer to reach the half-million dollar mark.

Trevino played last at the Masters in 1969 and said he would not play again because the course did not suit his game. Sunday, he told newsmen he had changed his mind and would go back next year because of Nicklaus.

Trevino said he and Nicklaus were playing an exhibition match at West Palm Beach, Fla., when Nicklaus told him to go back to the Masters because "You don't really realize how good you can play this game."

Trevino put together 66-66-69-67 on the par 70 course to complete play in the 14th annual tournament here for the final three days. His lead was cut to a single stroke Sunday when he bogied the par four 8th hole.

He still managed to turn the front nine at even par, "according to game plan," birdied No. 10 and was never seriously challenged after that.

Earning $12,760 each for their four-way tie for second place were Jerry Heard, Hale Irwin, Randy Wolff and Lee Elder.

Heard and Wolff, both in their third year on the tour, came in with final round 64s. Elder had a 66 and Irwin had a 68.

Larry Ziegler, who held the first day lead with an eight under par 62, finished the tournament at 273 —five strokes behind Trevino —and tied with Don January for third place.

Trevino began picking up speed on the backside where he trimmed par by three strokes with birdies on two of the three par five holes in addition to the par four 298 10th hole.

"I was playing it cozy on the front nine," Trevino said. "But everything went according to game plan."

"I made the turn even and I made No. 10," he said.

"My goal is to win $1 million playing golf," he said. "Probably when I reach that goal I'll go on and try for something else.

"The gallery and the people who sponsor consider me one of the men who can help make a tournament successful because I draw crowds," Trevino said. "It puts additional pressure on me, but I always try to do well for this reason.

"I want to try to give something back to golf by helping make it more successful in return for what I take from it," he said.

Marin Catholic '9' Shoots For Title

After Riccardi's triple, first baseman Scott Cozza lofted a high fly to center, scoring Riccardi easily for the third Wildcat run.

Starter Simmons was not as sharp as he had been during the league season, but was fairly effective until the third, where Rancho Cotate combined a walk, a single, and an error by shortstop Steve Sherry into its first run.

In the way of atonement, Sherry bombed a 6th inning double into the right-center field alley, scoring Olson who was on via a base-on-balls. Sherry was cut down trying to stretch his hit into a triple, but Olson had scored the 10th and last Marin Catholic run long before.

The only other run for obviously outclassed Rancho Cotate came on a tremendous left-field home run by Cougar third baseman Ron Sproat. The shot followed the foul line all the way and dropped over the fence, 10 yards beyond disgruntled left fielder Don Bianchini.

Olson, who tossed a two-hitter in the shutout win over Castlemont Friday, carried the County's hopes into the finals today, as Kennedy loomed the only threat to a Wildcat first place finish.

Kennedy was impressive in its win over Sunset, as Owsley led the Titans to a 9-0 shutout in six innings. A tournament rule which allows the early termination of any game, if one team is ahead by nine runs was invoked in Kennedy's powerful victory.

The third-place winner was decided at 2 p.m. this afternoon in the contest between Sunset and Rancho Cotate.

Moreau bounced back from a first-round loss to Rancho Cotate with a no-hit victory over Castlemont. Mariner pitchers Rocque Samarron and Bill Mulgrew combined for the no-hit, no-run victory.

Although Moreau only got two hits itself, two errors on Castlemont shortstop Robert Sparks, coupled with a wild pitch from Derek Williams, proved to be enough for two runs and the victory.

A two-run first inning by Richmond offset back-to-back triples by Ygnacio's Ron Thompson and Bill Piona, as Ygnacio dropped the 2-1 decision.

The consolation game was played at noon today between Moreau and Richmond, while at 10 a.m. Ygnacio Valley and Castlemont battled for seventh place in the tourney.

Baylor May Coach Washington

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Elgin Baylor, captain of the Los Angeles Lakers, today had under consideration an offer to become the University of Washington's head basketball coach.

But beyond confirming he had been contacted by the huskies, Baylor declined comment on the bid for him to replace Tex Winter, who resigned to take over the coaching job with the San Diego Rockets of the NBA.

Baylor has been a popular figure in the Seattle area since he starred for the Seattle University as an undergraduate and all American performer.

Record-Breaking Mays Leads Giants To Big Sweep

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— They tore up home plate at Candlestick Park Sunday and give it to Willie Mays.

If the venerable one keeps on going the way he is right now they may wind up one day giving him the whole stadium.

Mays, who celebrated his 40th birthday three weeks ago, was as frisky as a new born colt Sunday while helping the San Francisco Giants whip the Montreal Expos twice, 5-4 and 8-7.

Mays hit his 10th homer of 1971 and the 638th of his career with a man on in the seventh of the opener and the run he scored then was the 1950th since that day in May in 1951 that the Giants called him up from the minors.

The two RBIs he got on the blow boosted his total to 1,827 and now is tied with Al Simmons for ninth place in the all-time list. Mays may never wind up with the record since it stands at 2,217 and is held by Babe Ruth. But the way he is playing these days don't bet against him.

With 1,950 runs scored Mays now is the all-time National League champ, moving one ahead of Stan Musial. Far ahead of him at 2,245 stands Ty Cobb.

Right after the second game, which Tito Fuentes won for the Giants with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the ninth, workmen removed home plate and took it to Mays in the clubhouse.

They caught Mays in the whirlpool bath, one of his favorite hangouts these days, and when a grateful manager Charlie Fox presented it, Willie said "Gee, I'm tired."

He must have been too, since he played the entire 18 innings of the long doubleheader, the first game in center and the second at first in place of the ailing Willie McCovey.

In all, Mays hit a homer and a double, walked three times, scored a run, drove in two and stole his sixth base of the season. No wonder he was tired.

"I played two because Mac is hurting worse than I am," said Mays. "Anyway I don't get as tired at first as I do in the outfield. That standing around is more tiring."

Mays would love a day off today when the Giants, who have won four in a row, seven of their last eight and widened their lead in the N.L. West to 10 1-2 games, entertain the New York Mets, but chances are he'll be in the lineup, because he likes to play against New York.

They took a 4-1 lead into the seventh of the first game only to see Mays snatch victory away from them, and in the nightcap they were ahead 7-5 going into the bottom of the ninth when the roof fell in for the second time in the same day.

Bobby Bonds hit his 13th homer with a mate aboard in the seventh to get the Giants close at 7-5 after the Expos had routed Rich Robertson in the fourth with seven hits and five runs.

Then in the ninth Dick Dietz walked to lead off the inning and Bonds singled. Chris Speier hit into a forceout and Mays flied out deep to right.

Mike Marshall, who had stopped the Giants since Bonds' homer after John Strohmayer was banged out, dug his own grave by walking pinch-hitter Russ Gibson to load the bases. He followed with a wild pitch and compounded things by walking Al Gallagher to refill the bases.

It seemed strange that Montreal manager Gene Mauch stayed with him, but he did, and it all turned sour when Fuentes lined his game-winning hit to center.

Fuentes, long a fringe player for the Giants, has really blossomed of late, especially as a left-handed hitter. Tito had to teach himself to hit left-handed after he discovered he could never make his way in the majors as a righthanded swinger. That was two and a half years ago.

Now, he says, he feels more confident swinging left than right.

"I don't know how to explain it," said Fuentes, "But when I hit lefthanded now I feel I can get a hit every time. I wish I could feel the same way when I bat right."

As a righthanded swinger Tito is batting less than .200 but as a lefty he's close to .300.

Gaylord Perry, with relief help from Jerry Johnson, was the opening game winner and now is 6-2. Steve Hamilton, the last of five pitchers, won the nightcap for his first victory with San Francisco.

RECORD BREAKING 500-MILER

Al Unser Vows All-Out Try For Third Straight

By KURT FREUDENTHAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Nobody has ever won auto racing's richest event, the Indianapolis "500" three times in a row, but Al Unser vowed today he will give it a mighty try.

Dapper Al, a member of the famed racing clan from Albuquerque, N.M., made it two in a row Saturday in a nervy, wreck-marred Memorial Holiday weekend chase that was a record-smasher in everything but his own personal payoff.

"This will be a pretty hard act to follow," he conceded, "but I'll be here next year trying again."

In his royal blue, turbo-charged, Ford-powered machine tuned to near perfection, Unser led 103 of the 200-lap grind, including the last 82, to win by 23 seconds over runner-up Peter Revson of New York, the pole sitter, at an average speed of 157.735 miles per hour. That was nearly a mile faster than the old record set by Mario Andretti two years ago.

Only 12 machines were running at the finish and only the top five went the distance. Revson also beat Andretti's old record, but his was the only M16 British-built McLaren car that held up.

From a financial standpoint, the race before nearly 300,000 fans was a huge success. Speedway owner Tony Hulman Sunday night distributed a record purse of $1,001,604—only slightly more than last year—but it was racing's second million dollar purse.

However, Unser's share of $238,454 was more than $33,000 less than he split with his crew last year when he led 190 of the 200 laps. While the speedway management increased its own jackpot by more than $33,000, accessory prizes fell off nearly that much—from $205,000 to about $174,000.

Revson collected $103,198, third-place A.J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., a three-time race winner, $64,759.

Rounding out the top 10 were Jim Malloy, Denver, Colo., $38,669; Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., $32,447; Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala., $30,093; Bud Tingelstad, Indianapolis, $28,206; Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., also the speedway's "rookie of the year," $27,658; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., $22,980, and Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., $24,419.

All 33 starters shared in the payoff.

Mike Mosley, Brownsburg, Ind., suffered serious injuries, including burns, when his car crashed into the wall and burst into flames late in the race. Former "500" winner Bobby Unser, Al's brother who won the race in 1968, spun and also hit the wall trying to avoid Mosley.

Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., was the other driver injured, although not seriously, in a spectacular wreck triggered when another racer's engine blew, spilling oil in which three cars spun and were eliminated.

Crashes took out seven cars and wrecked that of Mark Donohue, Media, Pa., when Mosley's burning machine crashed into Donohue's while it was parked in the infield.

Donohue, in one of the McLarens, had run away from the field in the first 50 laps but his machine conked out with gear trouble after 66 tours around the 2 1-2-mile oval. He finished 25th.

Al Unser himself had a close call, blazing down the home stretch just after England's Dave Hobbs and Rick Muther, Laguna Beach, Calif., collided in a spectacular wreck in giew of many thousands of fans. He got by, all right, but a piece of debris hit his helmet.

The lead changed hands 13 times, with Bobby Unser, Joe Leonard, and Lloyd Ruby the other front-runners. Donohue recorded the fastest lap ever in the "500", 174.961 m.p.h., just before he dropped out, shattering the old mark of 168.666 by Ruby three years ago.

Al Unser said he felt certain his winning speed easily could have been 165 or 170 m.p.h., had it not been for the nearly one hour running under the yellow caution light.

He made four pit stops, one unscheduled under the yellow light, for a total of 92 seconds, for refueling and to change three tires.

Unser became the fourth speedway champion to win two years running, the first since the late Bill Vukovich in the 1950s.

The pace car, driven by a local auto dealer, went out of control near the end of the pit apron and slammed into a temporary platform on which about 50 photographers were perched at the start of the race.

The men were spilled like ten pins and one of them, Dr. Vincente Alvarez, an orthopedic surgeon from Buenos Aires, Argentina, who has covered the "500" for many years, suffered a basal skull fracture and other injuries.

Teacher Wins Marathon

Richard Delgado, 31, of Woodacre, an articulate spokesman against the athletic establishment with which he runs, proved again Saturday that he's one of the best as he won the 26-mile, 385-yard Golden Gate Marathon in the record time of 2:31.37.

Delgado, a San Rafael High School mathematics teacher, won the Tiburon-to-San Francisco race over the windy course by nearly five minutes over his nearest competitor.

In only his third marathon, Delgado, representing the West Valley Track Club, broke the record that was set last year by Skip Houk by two and one-half minutes.

An outspoken anti-war protester, Delgado once ran a 64-day relay race with three other men across the United States to talk with men from President Johnson's office about the country's Vietnam policy.

He won the Pacific Association of the AAU's annual 20-kilomenter run in January of 1970, and later on in the year won the Novato Ridge Run also in record time.

In August of last year he finished second in the Dipsea run from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach, despite the fact that, as he puts it "The Dipsea is not a fair competitive running test, and it's too dangerous."

In recognition of all these triumphs, Delgado was named Outstanding Runner of the Year in the Pacific Association for 1970.

Despite this honor, Delgado minimizes his chances of making the Olympics, noting that, "One must be at least in the top three in his event, and the best I have ever been ranked is 10th in the 10,000-meter run."

After his marathon win Saturday, Delgado says he plans to rest from marathons for a while, which he says drily, "are quite tiring."

He began running in the Marine Corps, after passing up high school and college athletics because "Coaches and the athletic establishment tend to deaden the creativity of athletics."

CHAMPS TOURNAMENT

Marin Catholic Reaches Finals

By PAUL CANE

Strong-armed Jim Petray provided the relief pitching, and Paul Riccardi and Tom Olson supplied the hitting, as Marin Catholic eased by Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park 10-2, and into the finals of the Redwood High School Baseball Tournament of Champions.

The victory, witnessed by about 1,700 enthusiastic fans at Albert Park in San Rafael Saturday night, swept the Wildcats into the championship game against Kennedy High School of Fremont this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Kennedy Titans, who blasted Sunset High of Hayward 9-0 in their semi-final game Saturday, were led by pitcher Stan Owsely, who tossed the six-hit shutout.

In the losers' bracket, Moreau High of Hayward handed Castlemont High of Oakland its second straight loss, 2-0, while Richmond High edged Ygnacio Valley of Concord 2-1 in Saturday afternoon contests.

Petray, coming in relief for starter Mickey Simmons, struck out seven and did not allow a hit in his two and one-third innings of work for Marin Catholic. In one stretch, he struck out four men out of five, mostly using a wicked curveball, which, according to Wildcat coach Gary Hughes, " ... was as good as the best he's had all year."

Olson, winning pitcher in the first-round Marin Catholic shutout over Castlemont, starred in right field for the Wildcats Saturday. Olson scored three runs and had two hits, including a mammoth third-inning triple. Hughes said he planned to go with Olson today as Marin Catholic went for its second Tourney of title.

The Wildcats are the only Marin team to win the TOC, back in 1966.

Perhaps the unsung hero all year for Marin Catholic proved to be the star Saturday, as catcher Paul Riccardi sparked the 10-run Wildcat attack with a smashing second-inning triple,

A's Rained Out; Take On Yankees

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Oakland A's, frontrunners in the American League West division, meet the New York Yankees today in a doubleheader.

The A's, who lead second-place Minnesota by 7 1-2 games, left Boston with a split after Sunday's contest was rained out. The Red Sox stopped Vida Blue's win streak Friday night by edging Oakland, 4-3. It was Blue's second loss of the year—against 10 wins.

But the A's came back Saturday to outslug East division leading Boston, 12-8.

Jim Hunter (8-2) was to pitch the first contest for Oakland today against the lefthander Mike Kekich (1-0). John Odom, trying to regain his form after arm problems, will go against another Yankee lefthander, Fritz Peterson (4-4) in the second game. Odom hasn't won a game this season and has one loss.

The A's face New York for a single game Tuesday, then get two days off before moving on to Washington for a three-game weekend series with the Senators. After the Washington series, Oakland returns home June 8 against Boston.

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver probably had Mike Cuellar in mind when he said that his pitching staff this season is better than the staff that led the Orioles to the world championship in 1970.

Although the Orioles have had sub-par performances from both Dave McNally and Pat Dobson thus far, Cuellar keeps rolling right along. He recorded his fifth straight victory and seventh of the season Sunday as the Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5.

The other members of the Orioles starting rotation are either keeping pace or are behind their totals of last season. McNanlly is 6-4 for the season compared to the 8-3 mark he had at this time last year. Jim Palmer has kept pace with the 7-2 record he posted last season. Dobson, the fourth member of the starting rotation, spent last season with the San Diego Padres in the National League.

But the veteran Baltimore skipper still contends that his mound corps this season is superior to his 1970 staff.

"I've said all along that I think our pitching staff is better than last year's," Weaver said, but Cuellar is the only member lending support to his manager's contention, showing a marked improvement over last season. Cuellar, who finished last season with a 24-8 record, was only 5-4 at this stage last year. But the Cuban lefthander posted his seventh victory in eight decisions with his win over the Twins as the Orioles moved to within 2 1-2 games of the league-leading Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

Cuellar was tagged for a two-run homer by Tony Oliva and solo homers by Leo Cardenas and Steve Braun before being relieved by Eddie Watt in the ninth inning.

Brooks Robinson scored the third run in a three-run eighth inning outburst thanks to reliever Jim Strickland's wild pitch. The Orioles filled the bases in the eighth on two walks by Ron Perranoski and a bunt single by Robinson. Ellie Hendricks drove in one run with an infield out and Mark Belanger singled home the second run before Strickland's wild pitch.

In other American League games, Detroit defeated Milwaukee 9-5, Chicago edged Cleveland 3-2 in 10 innings, and New York whipped California, 7-4. Kansas City at Washington and Oakland at Boston were postponed because of rain.

Al Kaline's three-run homer climaxed a five-run ninth inning and paced Detroit to victory.

Willie Mays' records continue to grow and grow —just like that San Francisco Giant lead in the National League West.

Mays took another step toward baseball immortality and the Giants another toward a runaway division title victory Sunday in a 5-4 and 8-7 sweep of the Montreal Expos.

Mays hit his 10th homer of the season and the 638th of his career in the first game to raise his career runs scored total to an N.L. high of 1,950. The total surpassed by one the previous mark held by Stan Musial and he scored No. 1,951 in the second game. The major league record of 2,244 is held by Ty Cobb.

Tito Fuentes' bases-filled single with two out in the ninth inning enabled the Giants to win the second game and ballooned their West Division lead to 10 1-2 games —one of the largest ever held by a team on Memorial Day.

Mays' two-run homer climaxed a three-run seventh inning rally which earned Gaylord Perry his sixth win of the season in the opener. The two RBIs also raised Mays' career total to 1,827 —tying him with Al Simmons for ninth place on the all-time list. Jerry Johnson finished up for the Giants and received credit for his sixth save.

Joe Hauge and Jose Cardenal each drove in three runs and Lou Brock ran his consecutive-game hitting streak to 26 as the Cardinals bombed Phil Niekro and three relievers with a 12-hit attack. Steve Carlton, 10-19 in 1970, pitched an eight-hitter to raise his 1971 mark to 9-2. Brock has now hit safely in 42 of the Cardinals' 48 games.

Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente and Bob Robertson led a 16-hit Pittsburgh attack with homers as the Cubs' Ken Holtzman was saddled with his sixth defeat against two victories. Bob Moose pitched a three-hitter and struck out seven, raising his record to 4-2. Dave Cash had four hits for the Pirates.

First baseman John Mayberry's error on Bernie Carbo's seven-inning grounder enabled Johnny Bench to score the winning run for the Reds and give rookie Ross Grimsley his second win. Bench was 0-for-21 when he beat out an infield hit with one out in the seventh and he went to second when Tony Perez, hitless in 20 trips, beat out a hit to short prior to Mayberry's error. Jack Billingham was the loser.

The Dodgers pulled out their victory over the Phillies when pinch-hitter Willie Crawford delivered a sacrifice fly with one out in the 12th inning. Richie Allen, who singled with none out for his third hit of the game, and went to third on a single by Jim Lefebvre, scored the run that gave reliever Jim Brewer his third win against one defeat. Darrell Brandon, pitching in relief of starter Ken Reynolds, suffered his second setback.

Ivan Murrell's two-run, tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning enabled San Diego's Clay Kirby to win his third game of the season while dealing the Mets' Ray Sadecki his first loss. Murrell's second homer of the season came after Nate Colbert walked. Ed Kranepool homered for the Mets in a two-run second inning.

Cal Relays Heroes To Bypass Berkeley

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Modesto gang will be in Berkeley this week for the Kennedy Games, a major tuneup for the NCAA and AAU track and field championships now less than three weeks away.

But among the missing will be Red Milburn and Arne Kvalheim, who were the individual stars of the California relays at Modesto Saturday.

Milburn won meet honors as the outstanding athlete after he beat Tommy White and Olympic hero Willie Davenport in the 120 high hurdles while Kvalheim, the durable Norweigian via the University of Oregon, took the two mile run in 8:30.2, second fastest in the world this year.

Milburn, a sophomore at Southern University who burst on the national scene when he won the drake relays high hurdles in 13.3, took the event in Modesto in 13.5. Earlier he ran a heat in 13.4, which topped the meet record of 13.5 held by Hayes Jones since, 1962.

Milburn is going home for a rest before coming West again for the NCAA Championships at Seattle and the AAU Championships at Eugene, Ore., in mid-June. The AAU is an important meet this year for athletes interested in a busy summer. A one-two finish in the AAU will win berths for the bit United States-Russian meet, also at Berkeley, on July 2-3, and the Pan American Games, starting on July 30 in Cali, Colombia.

Milburn definitely has his heart set on the Russian meet and the Pan-Am games. Although he says he is not impressed with setting records.

Also missing at Berkeley this Saturday will be Jean-Louis Ravelomanantsoa of Madagascar and Westmont (Calif.) College. He won the Cal Relays 100 in a fine 9.3, which is only one tenth off the best in the world this year.

One of the men who has done 9.2 this year is Willie Deckard of Southern California. Deckard scratched from the 100 and 220 in the Cal Relays but ran anchor for the Trojan 440 and 880 relay teams. He helped USC take the shorter relay in the meet equalling time of 39.4 but was passed by Don Quarrie of UCLA in the final strides of the 880 as a team from the Southern California Striders won in 1:22.3, which set a meet record.

Deckard and Quarrie resume the rivalry in the Kennedy Games' 100 and 220 as well as the 440 and 880 relays.

John Smith of UCLA, winner of the Cal Relays 440 in 46.1; Randy Matson, who took the shot with a throw of 67-10; George Frenn, who took the hammer at 224-8, which is the second best throw in the world this year; Jay Silvester, who won the discus at 208-5; Arnie Robinson, winner of the long jump at 26-4 3-4; Milan Tiff, who took the triple jump at 52-1 1-4, and Reynaldo Brown, winner of the high jump at 7-2, all come back for the Kennedy Games.

Fox Okays Trade With Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The decision by the San Francisco Giants to trade rookie outfielder George Foster to Cincinnati drew some criticism from Giants' players, but manager Charlie Fox defended the exchange.

Foster, who was batting .267 for the year, was traded Saturday to the Reds for shortstop Frank Duffy, a former Stanford player, and pitcher Vern Geishert. Both Duffy and Geishert were on the Reds' Indianapolis farm team.

Players critical of the trade obviously chose to remain unidentified, but they said the club needs outfield help more than pitching and infield strength.

"Who's going to play the outfield?" one player asked. "The trade deadline is June 15. At least they could have waited until Ken Henderson was ready to play."

But Fox said the acquisition of Duffy would give the Giants some backup insurance in the infield.

"We had good reports on Duffy when he was at Stanford," Fox said. "He has great lateral movement, which is a requisite at Candlestick on the astroturf. We feel he can help us at third and second bases, as well as shortstop."

Geishert, 25, has been assigned to the Giants' Phoenix farm team. Originally signed by the California Angels, Geishert, a righthander, went to the Reds in 1969 as part of the trade that sent Alex Johnson to the Angels. Last season, he was 12-13 with Indianapolis and he was 3-2 there this year.

Mel Kenyon of Lebanon, Indiana, runs from his demolished car after a three-car accident on the third turn of the Indianapolis 500-mile race. Mario Andretti and Gordon Johndock were also knocked from the race in this accident. Al Unser went on the win Saturday's annual race in record fashion. Story on page 25.

Allisons Dominate 600 Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—The brothers Allison of Hueytown, Ala., will keep the World 600 Grand National division stock car racing crown in the family for another year.

This time, "big brother" Bobby is wearing it. And he's counting that $29,400 first prize money that goes with the Charlotte Motor Speedway victory.

He took it from Donnie, the defending champ, Sunday after beating the younger brother by nearly a full lap in the 600-mile event, winning in a record four hours 16 minutes and 20 seconds at an average speed of 140.442 miles per hour.

It was the first time in four Grand National events in which the Mercury-driving brothers finished one-two that Bobby was on top.

A long duel with pole-sitter Charlie Glotzbach in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo ended with Glotzbach smashing into the wall near the first turn on lap 234 and Bobby went ahead to stay.

At that point the nature of the race changed from the Allison versus Glotzbach to Bobby against Donnie. Most of the lead changes up to lap 234 were between Glotzbach and Bobby.

There were 13 lead changes in the race, 10 of them when either Glotzbach or Bobby Allison went to the fore. Three other cars led one lap apiece, but that was when one of the power-houses dove into the pits.

Donnie was second to Bobby most of the race, he got as far behind as two laps at one point, but on lap 367 of the 400-lap event, Donnie went by his older brother to get in the same lap for the finish.

"After he got by me, I decided to stay behind him, but I wanted to keep him in sight," Bobby said.

It was Donnie's second high speed marathon in as many days. Saturday he drove a Coyote in the Indianapolis 500, where he finished sixth. It was because of the Indy 500 commitment that Donnie was unable to make first day qualifying here and had to settle for the 13th starting position in a car that had made six straight poles this year.

"I'm sure that if he had more time to practice, he'd have been a lot tougher to contend with," said Bobby.

Plymouth driver Pete Hamilton, Richard Petty's former factory-backed teammate crossed the line third, one lap down, and Petty finished fourth. Petty, who has won more races than any Grand National driver in history and who will pass the $1 million mark in earnings this year, has never won at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Trevino Triumphs In Memphis Golf

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Lee Trevino, the former Army sergeant who has earned more than a half-million dollars in less than four years on the pro golf tour, won the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic Sunday and promised to end his self-imposed exile from the Masters.

Trevino, a member of the pro tour since mid-1967, pocketed $35,000 for a 12 under par 268 for the 72 holes at Colonial Country Club to boost his winnings for the year to $115,785.

It was good enough to move him into second place on the money winning list behind Jack Nicklaus, who has won $131,788 and skipped the tournament here.

The victory boosted his career earning to $529,000, moving him to 14th on the all-time winners list and making him the 15th golfer to reach the half-million dollar mark.

Trevino played last at the Masters in 1969 and said he would not play again because the course did not suit his game. Sunday, he told newsmen he had changed his mind and would go back next year because of Nicklaus.

Trevino said he and Nicklaus were playing an exhibition match at West Palm Beach, Fla., when Nicklaus told him to go back to the Masters because "You don't really realize how good you can play this game."

Trevino put together 66-66-69-67 on the par 70 course to complete play in the 14th annual tournament here for the final three days. His lead was cut to a single stroke Sunday when he bogied the par four 8th hole.

He still managed to turn the front nine at even par, "according to game plan," birdied No. 10 and was never seriously challenged after that.

Earning $12,760 each for their four-way tie for second place were Jerry Heard, Hale Irwin, Randy Wolff and Lee Elder.

Heard and Wolff, both in their third year on the tour, came in with final round 64s. Elder had a 66 and Irwin had a 68.

Larry Ziegler, who held the first day lead with an eight under par 62, finished the tournament at 273 —five strokes behind Trevino —and tied with Don January for third place.

Trevino began picking up speed on the backside where he trimmed par by three strokes with birdies on two of the three par five holes in addition to the par four 298 10th hole.

"I was playing it cozy on the front nine," Trevino said. "But everything went according to game plan."

"I made the turn even and I made No. 10," he said.

"My goal is to win $1 million playing golf," he said. "Probably when I reach that goal I'll go on and try for something else.

"The gallery and the people who sponsor consider me one of the men who can help make a tournament successful because I draw crowds," Trevino said. "It puts additional pressure on me, but I always try to do well for this reason.

"I want to try to give something back to golf by helping make it more successful in return for what I take from it," he said.

After Riccardi's triple, first baseman Scott Cozza lofted a high fly to center, scoring Riccardi easily for the third Wildcat run.

Starter Simmons was not as sharp as he had been during the league season, but was fairly effective until the third, where Rancho Cotate combined a walk, a single, and an error by shortstop Steve Sherry into its first run.

In the way of atonement, Sherry bombed a 6th inning double into the right-center field alley, scoring Olson who was on via a base-on-balls. Sherry was cut down trying to stretch his hit into a triple, but Olson had scored the 10th and last Marin Catholic run long before.

The only other run for obviously outclassed Rancho Cotate came on a tremendous left-field home run by Cougar third baseman Ron Sproat. The shot followed the foul line all the way and dropped over the fence, 10 yards beyond disgruntled left fielder Don Bianchini.

Olson, who tossed a two-hitter in the shutout win over Castlemont Friday, carried the County's hopes into the finals today, as Kennedy loomed the only threat to a Wildcat first place finish.

Kennedy was impressive in its win over Sunset, as Owsley led the Titans to a 9-0 shutout in six innings. A tournament rule which allows the early termination of any game, if one team is ahead by nine runs was invoked in Kennedy's powerful victory.

The third-place winner was decided at 2 p.m. this afternoon in the contest between Sunset and Rancho Cotate.

Moreau bounced back from a first-round loss to Rancho Cotate with a no-hit victory over Castlemont. Mariner pitchers Rocque Samarron and Bill Mulgrew combined for the no-hit, no-run victory.

Although Moreau only got two hits itself, two errors on Castlemont shortstop Robert Sparks, coupled with a wild pitch from Derek Williams, proved to be enough for two runs and the victory.

A two-run first inning by Richmond offset back-to-back triples by Ygnacio's Ron Thompson and Bill Piona, as Ygnacio dropped the 2-1 decision.

The consolation game was played at noon today between Moreau and Richmond, while at 10 a.m. Ygnacio Valley and Castlemont battled for seventh place in the tourney.

Baylor May Coach Washington

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Elgin Baylor, captain of the Los Angeles Lakers, today had under consideration an offer to become the University of Washington's head basketball coach.

But beyond confirming he had been contacted by the huskies, Baylor declined comment on the bid for him to replace Tex Winter, who resigned to take over the coaching job with the San Diego Rockets of the NBA.

Baylor has been a popular figure in the Seattle area since he starred for the Seattle University as an undergraduate and all American performer.

Housing At Record High Of 21 Years

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Nationwide housing starts during the first quarter of 1971 reached the highest level in 21 years.

This forecasts probably housing starts for the year at approximately 1.8 million units. Comparable activity in 1950 produced 1.9 million units.

The April rate was 63 per cent higher than the same month last year.

These facts were revealed by Richard B. Levine, president of the New York Mercantile Exchange, in his speech to the Commodity Club of San Francisco.

His talk, titled "The Outlook for the Plywood Industry," was heard by 52 major lumber and plywood producers who attended the lumber and plywood futures workshop.

Levine outlined a number of advantages of the New York Mercantile Exchange's new plywood futures contract as including price protection against highly volatile and unpredictable prices, hedging advantages to the producer, wholesaler, exporter and mass builder, and profit protection in the face of large inventory needs.

Bank Honored For Aid To Art

WASHINGTON, D.C. (BW) — Crocker-Citizens National Bank has received an award for support of the fine and performing arts in the fifth annual Esquire Magazine-Business Committee for the Arts "Business in the Arts" awards program.

The bank was one of 29 winners.

Crocker-Citizens supported a program in 1970 which included a grant for a new production of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" to the San Francisco Opera Co.; presentation of both the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra and the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in special concerts; and the assembling of a commemorative exhibition, "A Century of California Painting," which was viewed by some 500,000 persons while on display in major California cities.

German-U.S. Trade Rises

German-U.S. trade rose sharply during the first two months of this year, the German-American Chamber of Commerce reported on April 27.

American exports to the Federal Republic increased by 30 per cent to a total of $623.6 million in January and February of 1971, compared to the same months last year.

East Bay Steel Mill Seeks Water Purity

PITTSBURG (BW) — Construction has begun on a new plantwide water treatment system for U.S. Steel's Pittsburg works, (Contra Costa County), John V. Dorman, plant superintendent, has announced.

"We're making a multimillion dollar investment to help improve the environment," Dorman said, "which is a big step beyond just pollution control."

The industrial treatment facilities will include three sewer systems to collect process and cooling water, a new central chemical treatment plant equipped with two larged clarifiers and a sludge drying system for accumulation of waste solids.

Excavation work at the western end of the plant has started and contracts for most of the complex system have already been awarded.

"We will move ahead with construction work as rapidly as possible," Dorman announced. "This is a top priority project which is now scheduled for completion by the end of next year."

Present water quality control facilities will continue to operate while the new system is being built. These include new settling basins and treatment facilities added last fall.

Profit Rise By Leisure Firm Told

MINNEAPOLIS (BW) — Leisure Dynamics Inc. has reported net income from operations for the fiscal year ended March 31 increased 157 per cent over the previous year's results.

Net income from operations totaled $1,380,797, equal to 63 cents per share, for the 1971 fiscal year, up from $536,695, or 26 cents per share, in fiscal 1970. Extraordinary items added $269,000, or 13 cents per share, to net income in fiscal 1970.

Net sales were $30,109,120 for fiscal 1971, up 36 per cent from $22,201,395 in the previous year.

"We are pleased with this strong sales and profit performance in the face of a very difficult economic climate," said L. Preston Gise Jr., president, and M. Allen Hatfield, executive vice president, in a joint statement.

Leisure Dynamics was formed in January 1969 to acquire, develop and manage established businesses in leisure activity fields. Its two main operating units are L. M. Cox Manufacturing Co. Inc., of Santa Ana, the nation's leading producer of gas engine powered model airplanes, cars and boats; and Lakeside Industries, Minneapolis, which produces family games, toys and advertising displays.

Operations of three other firms acquired by the company — Merry Manufacturing Co., CO-5 Co., and the Funtastic Division of KMS Industries — have been consolidated into the Lakeside facility.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Keep Shares Until Exchange Offered

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased shares of Kentucky Fried Chicken at 48½. Even if I exchange them for Heublein shares, I will realize a loss. Should I sell or hold for the excnange offer? — H.C.

A. If you sell your shares of Kentucky Fried Chicken, at current quotes you would receive $21.75 per share. However, should the revised merger terms between Heublein and Kentucky be approved by directors and shareholders of both firms, you would receive .53 Heublein share for each Kentucky share, equal to $25.63 - a 17 per cent premium - based on Heublein's recent price. Moreover, not only would you be further ahead financially, but your new shares in the merged company would represent a more attractive investment.

Heublein dominates the U.S. vodka market and is leading producer of bottled and canned cocktails, while Kentucky Fried Chicken is a major fast food franchiser. Aided by four mergers since 1964, Heublein's sales and earnings have increased significantly in each year of the past decade. Prospects for a continuation of this trend are enhanced by KFC's established growth pattern and strong market penetration. Hold for the exchange.

Q. I plan to retire next year at 65 on Social Security of $210 monthly. I have $30,000 in savings, part of which I would like to help cover 2 years' college tuition for my son and for retirement income afterward. What do you think of high coupon BB-rated bonds? — M.Z.

A. The risk inherent in this class of bond is apt to be greater than you should assume under the circumstances. However, there are other better quality high coupon bonds available which would be suitable.

Boise Cascade Credit 10s of 1975 and Walter Heller 9½s of 1989, rated BBB and A respectively, would serve your purpose. Both sell at a premium, pay interest in June and December and would return $1,950 on a $21,000 investment, the maximum I would advise you to invest.

McKesson Share Earnings Drop

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — For its fiscal year ended March 31 Foremost-McKesson Inc. reported sales of $1,738,349,000 as compared with $1,691,609,000 for the previous fiscal year.

Income from operations was $24,993,000, or $1.60 of primary earnings per common share, as compared with $29,203,000, or $2 per share, for the previous year.

Fiscal 1971 results included a provision for extraordinary charge of $7.5 million, equivalent to 58 cents per common share. Fully diluted earnings after the extraordinary charge were $1.01 per common share.

'Nameless, Faceless' Migrant Flounders In Adverse Straits

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The plight of the "nameless, faceless" migrant worker is one of America's most serious problems, according to a two-year research project.

"The migrant is a nameless, faceless individual, both while traveling in the 'stream' and while living in his home state," Margaret Garrity told reporters Friday in releasing the Manpower Evaluation and Development Institute's Migrant Research Project (MRP).

"You can understand how migrants could turn up missing and no one would know. Their relatives would not report them missing to public agencies. They don't go to public agencies."

MRP used $200,000 of a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity to conduct the study. It was based on interviews with 13,000 farm worker families, 100 state and county welfare administrators and 175 crew-leaders and growers.

The 67-page report was written by Miss Garrity, a native of Brookfield, Mo., former deputy director of OEO's migratory worker division, and Mrs. Shirley Sandage, Mason City, Iowa, MRP deputy director.

The study pictured the 500,000 migrant workers in the United States as persons who make far below poverty-level wages, get little benefit from the nation's welfare programs —and may be totally mechanized out of a job by the mid-1970s.

The average size of the migrant family is 6.4 and its average annual income is $2,100 a year. The Agriculture Department's poverty income level for a family of 4 is $3,720.

Six out of 10 migrants are children, and 40 per cent of these children will travel at least five years of their lives in the migrant stream.

The study found:

—Only 9 per cent of the migratory workers had ever applied for social welfare benefits.

—Many of them did not know about such programs.

—"Emotional barriers" kept them from participating in the programs.

—Regulatory barriers also kept them from receiving benefits.

The families were handicapped by not being able to speak English very well. They face the simple, but often overwhelming problem of working all day, and not being able to apply for benefits because the welfare offices were closed when they were off work.

Often they could not get food stamps because the food stamps were kept in bank vaults that had to be locked up in mid-afternoon each day when the banks got ready to close.

Miss Garrity said the study made two main recommendations:

—That once-a-year national certifications be established for food stamp eligibility. Now migrant workers must re-apply each time they move into another county and their eligibility is based on the current month's income that may be higher than usual during the peak earning months of July and August.

—That county welfare offices issue vouchers that migrant workers could present at food stores at any time.

MRP found that by 1975, mechanization for sugar beets, sour cherries, grapes and tomatoes will be about 100 per cent complete, and 80 per cent for sweet cherries and pickles.

"For the migrant worker, displaced from his employment by the machine, deprived by lack of education and training, the determination of states to cut back on welfare assistance may mean a death sentence unparalleled in history since the industrial revolution of the 19th Century," it said.

Bank Move On IRS Tax Levy

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Wells Fargo Bank has announced it is negotiating with the Internal Revenue Service to have levies on bank accounts for unpaid phone taxes served annually rather than on a quarterly basis.

In recent weeks the IRS has ordered the bank to deduct small amounts from customer accounts for unpaid telephone excise taxes. The bank has been charging its standard $7.50 for the cost of the paperwork which involves drafts and reports through different departments and verification of the levy to the IRS and to the customer.

The IRS had primarily used this option in the past to recover unpaid income taxes amounting to hundreds of dollars or more.

"The $7.50 charge is out of line with a $2 or $3 collection of an unpaid telephone tax bill," said a bank spokesman, "yet the paperwork is identical to a thousand dollar attachment for back taxes."

The spokesman pointed out that families who withhold their phone federal excise taxes as a war protest are reportedly increasing, especially in the San Francisco Bay Area and if the levies were to continue on a quarterly basis, the paperwork costs in the majority of the cases would far exceed the amounts collected.

Environment Firm Lists Profit Rise

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Environmental Systems International Inc. (ESI) earned $302,622, or 30 cents per share, on revenues of $3,015,747 in the fiscal year ended March 31, B.A. Berkus, president and chairman, has announced.

The figures represented gains from earnings of $187,076, or 23 cents per share, on fewer shares, and revenues of $1,427,039 in the preceding year.

Earnings Jump

ANAHEIM, Calif. (BW) — California Computer Products Inc. has reported earnings for the nine months ended March 28 were $1,604,481 on revenues of $25,587,822, or 70 cents per share.

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver probably had Mike Cuellar in mind when he said that his pitching staff this season is better than the staff that led the Orioles to the world championship in 1970.

Although the Orioles have had sub-par performances from both Dave McNally and Pat Dobson thus far, Cuellar keeps rolling right along. He recorded his fifth straight victory and seventh of the season Sunday as the Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5.

The other members of the Orioles starting rotation are either keeping pace or are behind their totals of last season. McNanlly is 6-4 for the season compared to the 8-3 mark he had at this time last year. Jim Palmer has kept pace with the 7-2 record he posted last season. Dobson, the fourth member of the starting rotation, spent last season with the San Diego Padres in the National League.

But the veteran Baltimore skipper still contends that his mound corps this season is superior to his 1970 staff.

"I've said all along that I think our pitching staff is better than last year's," Weaver said, but Cuellar is the only member lending support to his manager's contention, showing a marked improvement over last season. Cuellar, who finished last season with a 24-8 record, was only 5-4 at this stage last year. But the Cuban lefthander posted his seventh victory in eight decisions with his win over the Twins as the Orioles moved to within 2 1-2 games of the league-leading Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

Cuellar was tagged for a two-run homer by Tony Oliva and solo homers by Leo Cardenas and Steve Braun before being relieved by Eddie Watt in the ninth inning.

Brooks Robinson scored the third run in a three-run eighth inning outburst thanks to reliever Jim Strickland's wild pitch. The Orioles filled the bases in the eighth on two walks by Ron Perranoski and a bunt single by Robinson. Ellie Hendricks drove in one run with an infield out and Mark Belanger singled home the second run before Strickland's wild pitch.

In other American League games, Detroit defeated Milwaukee 9-5, Chicago edged Cleveland 3-2 in 10 innings, and New York whipped California, 7-4. Kansas City at Washington and Oakland at Boston were postponed because of rain.

Al Kaline's three-run homer climaxed a five-run ninth inning and paced Detroit to victory.

Willie Mays' records continue to grow and grow —just like that San Francisco Giant lead in the National League West.

Mays took another step toward baseball immortality and the Giants another toward a runaway division title victory Sunday in a 5-4 and 8-7 sweep of the Montreal Expos.

Mays hit his 10th homer of the season and the 638th of his career in the first game to raise his career runs scored total to an N.L. high of 1,950. The total surpassed by one the previous mark held by Stan Musial and he scored No. 1,951 in the second game. The major league record of 2,244 is held by Ty Cobb.

Tito Fuentes' bases-filled single with two out in the ninth inning enabled the Giants to win the second game and ballooned their West Division lead to 10 1-2 games —one of the largest ever held by a team on Memorial Day.

Mays' two-run homer climaxed a three-run seventh inning rally which earned Gaylord Perry his sixth win of the season in the opener. The two RBIs also raised Mays' career total to 1,827 —tying him with Al Simmons for ninth place on the all-time list. Jerry Johnson finished up for the Giants and received credit for his sixth save.

Joe Hauge and Jose Cardenal each drove in three runs and Lou Brock ran his consecutive-game hitting streak to 26 as the Cardinals bombed Phil Niekro and three relievers with a 12-hit attack. Steve Carlton, 10-19 in 1970, pitched an eight-hitter to raise his 1971 mark to 9-2. Brock has now hit safely in 42 of the Cardinals' 48 games.

Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente and Bob Robertson led a 16-hit Pittsburgh attack with homers as the Cubs' Ken Holtzman was saddled with his sixth defeat against two victories. Bob Moose pitched a three-hitter and struck out seven, raising his record to 4-2. Dave Cash had four hits for the Pirates.

First baseman John Mayberry's error on Bernie Carbo's seven-inning grounder enabled Johnny Bench to score the winning run for the Reds and give rookie Ross Grimsley his second win. Bench was 0-for-21 when he beat out an infield hit with one out in the seventh and he went to second when Tony Perez, hitless in 20 trips, beat out a hit to short prior to Mayberry's error. Jack Billingham was the loser.

The Dodgers pulled out their victory over the Phillies when pinch-hitter Willie Crawford delivered a sacrifice fly with one out in the 12th inning. Richie Allen, who singled with none out for his third hit of the game, and went to third on a single by Jim Lefebvre, scored the run that gave reliever Jim Brewer his third win against one defeat. Darrell Brandon, pitching in relief of starter Ken Reynolds, suffered his second setback.

Ivan Murrell's two-run, tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning enabled San Diego's Clay Kirby to win his third game of the season while dealing the Mets' Ray Sadecki his first loss. Murrell's second homer of the season came after Nate Colbert walked. Ed Kranepool homered for the Mets in a two-run second inning.

Cal Relays Heroes To Bypass Berkeley

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Modesto gang will be in Berkeley this week for the Kennedy Games, a major tuneup for the NCAA and AAU track and field championships now less than three weeks away.

But among the missing will be Red Milburn and Arne Kvalheim, who were the individual stars of the California relays at Modesto Saturday.

Milburn won meet honors as the outstanding athlete after he beat Tommy White and Olympic hero Willie Davenport in the 120 high hurdles while Kvalheim, the durable Norweigian via the University of Oregon, took the two mile run in 8:30.2, second fastest in the world this year.

Milburn, a sophomore at Southern University who burst on the national scene when he won the drake relays high hurdles in 13.3, took the event in Modesto in 13.5. Earlier he ran a heat in 13.4, which topped the meet record of 13.5 held by Hayes Jones since, 1962.

Milburn is going home for a rest before coming West again for the NCAA Championships at Seattle and the AAU Championships at Eugene, Ore., in mid-June. The AAU is an important meet this year for athletes interested in a busy summer. A one-two finish in the AAU will win berths for the bit United States-Russian meet, also at Berkeley, on July 2-3, and the Pan American Games, starting on July 30 in Cali, Colombia.

Milburn definitely has his heart set on the Russian meet and the Pan-Am games. Although he says he is not impressed with setting records.

Also missing at Berkeley this Saturday will be Jean-Louis Ravelomanantsoa of Madagascar and Westmont (Calif.) College. He won the Cal Relays 100 in a fine 9.3, which is only one tenth off the best in the world this year.

One of the men who has done 9.2 this year is Willie Deckard of Southern California. Deckard scratched from the 100 and 220 in the Cal Relays but ran anchor for the Trojan 440 and 880 relay teams. He helped USC take the shorter relay in the meet equalling time of 39.4 but was passed by Don Quarrie of UCLA in the final strides of the 880 as a team from the Southern California Striders won in 1:22.3, which set a meet record.

Deckard and Quarrie resume the rivalry in the Kennedy Games' 100 and 220 as well as the 440 and 880 relays.

John Smith of UCLA, winner of the Cal Relays 440 in 46.1; Randy Matson, who took the shot with a throw of 67-10; George Frenn, who took the hammer at 224-8, which is the second best throw in the world this year; Jay Silvester, who won the discus at 208-5; Arnie Robinson, winner of the long jump at 26-4 3-4; Milan Tiff, who took the triple jump at 52-1 1-4, and Reynaldo Brown, winner of the high jump at 7-2, all come back for the Kennedy Games.

Fox Okays Trade With Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The decision by the San Francisco Giants to trade rookie outfielder George Foster to Cincinnati drew some criticism from Giants' players, but manager Charlie Fox defended the exchange.

Foster, who was batting .267 for the year, was traded Saturday to the Reds for shortstop Frank Duffy, a former Stanford player, and pitcher Vern Geishert. Both Duffy and Geishert were on the Reds' Indianapolis farm team.

Players critical of the trade obviously chose to remain unidentified, but they said the club needs outfield help more than pitching and infield strength.

"Who's going to play the outfield?" one player asked. "The trade deadline is June 15. At least they could have waited until Ken Henderson was ready to play."

But Fox said the acquisition of Duffy would give the Giants some backup insurance in the infield.

"We had good reports on Duffy when he was at Stanford," Fox said. "He has great lateral movement, which is a requisite at Candlestick on the astroturf. We feel he can help us at third and second bases, as well as shortstop."

Geishert, 25, has been assigned to the Giants' Phoenix farm team. Originally signed by the California Angels, Geishert, a righthander, went to the Reds in 1969 as part of the trade that sent Alex Johnson to the Angels. Last season, he was 12-13 with Indianapolis and he was 3-2 there this year.

LAST REMEMBRANCE

The Doughboy statue in front of the old courthouse, destroyed by fire last week, was still surrounded with wreaths after yesterday's Memorial Day observances. Veterans attending the ceremonies, moved at the last minute to San Rafael Military Academy, placed the wreaths around the statue after the service, marking probably the last Memorial Day the old statue will stand on Fourth Street. Pilgrims Shot In Clash Between Viets, Reds

162 Enemy Dead In Shrine Battle

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops fleeing from a battle plunged into a throng of 60,000 Roman Catholics visiting a shrine near Da Nang Sunday. Some of the pilgrims were caught in a crossfire between the Communists and the pursuing South Vietnamese.

One of the pilgrims was killed and 10 wounded in the action around Pra Kieu hamlet, UPI photographer Willie Vicoy reported. An estimated 60,000 pilgrims were visiting the hamlet 730 miles north east of Saigon.

Military spokesmen said at least 162 Communist troops were killed in fighting in the region Sunday, with South Vietnamese losses put at eight dead and 30 wounded.

Initial police reports, however, listed only three persons injured and no dead in the blast at a four-story brick and mortar building in the downtown area.

U.S. officials said there were no American casualties.

The explosion scattered thousands of official documents in the streets and touched off a blaze that sent flames leaping from the windows and burned out the interior of the four-story building.

Vicoy said at least six U.S. helicopter gunships raked Communist positions outside the hamlet with fire. He said the Communist troops at one point came within 200 yards of the Ave Maria Cathedral.

A group of about 15 U.S. soldiers in five armored vehicles and three South Vietnamese armored personnel carriers surrounded the plaza. Vicoy said government regulars, militiamen and national police were involved in the fighting.

Vicoy said the civilians scattered or dropped to the ground when the North Vietnamese soldiers suddenly appeared in their midst, firing aimlessly. Banners and signs were ripped to shreds by the bullets and the grey cement wall of the church was pockmarked by a dozen rounds.

The religious gathering has taken place at Para Kieu every three years since 1885 when the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared before villagers. It was canceled last year because of heavy fighting in the area.

Near the northern end of the A Shau Valley in South Vietnam's northern sector, Communist forces shelled and made a heavy ground attack against a hilltop South Vietnamese artillery base, military spokesmen reported.

Field reports said at least 61 Communists were killed in an hour of fighting at the base. Fifteen South Vietnamese were reported killed and 28 wounded.

Twelve civilians were killed and 11 wounded early Sunday when Communist troops sent 13 rounds of 122mm rockets into Da Nang. Eight of the rockets hit the Da Nang air base but no casualties or damage were reported there.

A U.S. Army OH6 observation helicopter was shot down Sunday over Kompong Cham province in Cambodia and military sources said three allied choppers were downed during the weekend near Snuol, Cambodia, but no casualties were reported in any of the incidents.

Military officers in the field said North Vietnam has moved a 2,900-man regiment across the demilitarized zone (DMZ) into South Vietnam within striking distance of major allied bases.

"We are concerned about it and we are watching carefully," military officers told UPI correspondent Kenneth J. Braddick at the northern provincial capital of Quang Tri.

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of a 10,000-man government operation to clear the northern provinces, told newsmen if he needs U.S. ground units to help push the Communists back into North Vietnam "I'll call them in." "I have been told that American ground troops would be at my disposal if needed," he said. "We need more of everything —troops, air strikes, supplies — to prevent the North Vietnamese from coming to South Vietnam. We would like to drive them back to North Vietnam."

The Communists shelled government positions in South Vietnam 30 times late Saturday and early Sunday, the largest number of such attacks in a 24-hour period in more than a month, military sources reported.

More than sixteen Americans were wounded Sunday in three attacks. Thirteen of the casualties were in an all-day battle between U.S. paratroopers and an enemy force of unknown size on the Central Coast 255 miles northeast of Saigon, spokesmen said.

The spokesmen said three U.S. soldiers were wounded in an assault on Army engineers 25 miles northwest of Saigon and "light casualties with no fatalities" were inflicted by a 10-round mortar barrage on a U.S. artillery position at the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese military headquarters reported an-

Mariner 9 Is Racing To Mars

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Mariner 9 raced two distant Russian probes toward Mars today to orbit the planet, map its battered surface and search from its icy poles to dusty equator for clues of life.

The American spacecraft trailed the farthest Soviet craft by more than 1 million miles, but still was given a chance of reaching Mars first. Officials called the accuracy of Mariner's course "fantastic."

Mariner 9 is scheduled to brake into orbit around Mars Nov. 14. It carries two television cameras and other instruments to survey two-thirds of the Martian surface, analyze its thin atmosphere and look for low, warm and damp spots that might shelter primitive forms of life.

Soviet commentators have hinted Russia's heavy Mars 2 and Mars 3 spacecraft might land on Mars with biological sensors. Mariner will not be able to detect living things from orbit, but may turn up evidence indicating the existence of extraterrestrial life.

Of particular interest to scientists is a mysterious "wave of darkening" suggestive of vegetation moving with the seasons. Mariner 9 is designed to operate in Mars orbit for at least three months to watch for seasonal changes.

Two Die As Auto Rolls Into Ditch

A Mill Valley man and a San Rafael woman were killed today when their car ran off Tiburon Boulevard, rolled into a ditch and caught fire, Tiburon police reported.

Dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 3:15 a.m. were Rod Ray Young, 27, of 45 Lomita Drive and Paulette Tauer, 23, of 55 Fairfax Street.

They were the twelfth and thirteenth to die on Marin highways this year as compared to 15 at this time last year.

Police said the car, a 1957 Chevrolet, was traveling east on Tiburon Boulevard when it crossed the highway and ran off the road into a drain culvert ditch. Officers extinguished the fire.

Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas said death was instantaneous and neither occupant was burned in the fire.

Young owned Rod's Exclusive Dry Cleaning Service in Mill Valley.

Ripon Sees GOP Clash On Reagan For 1972 Race

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Ripon Society says Republican conservatives are unhappy about administration policies and may encourage Gov. Ronald Reagan of California into a showdown with President Nixon for the GOP nomination next year.

"There is one conservative candidate who is not merely waiting in the wings for a call to audition before the GOP convention," the liberal republican society said in the June issue of its magazine, Forum. "He appears to be preparing for a dramatic entrance onto the stage in what may be the last major performance of his career ...

"The California governor is making sure that the President can't ignore him as he plans for 1972."

Fails To Name Son After Derby Winner

PALMIRA, Venezuela (UPI) —Farmer Celestino de la Cruz Paredes tried to register his newborn son with the name Canonero II in honor of the Venezuelan horse that won both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Authorities refused.

Local authorities said they felt Paredes was carrying his admiration for horses too far and convinced him to name his son Gustavo —in honor of jockey Gustavo Avila, who rode Canonero II in both races.

Wider Search Underway For More Slaying Victims

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)— Mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona ate a steak dinner and visited with his family and a lawyer in his new jail cell Sunday while authorities widened their search for more bodies.

In 10 days sheriff's deputies have unearthed 23 bodies of itinerant farm workers from crude graves along the serene Feather River in this agricultural area 125 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The 22nd and 23rd bodies were found Saturday. None were uncovered Sunday despite an increase in the force of diggers from 15 to 25 men.

Sutter County Sheriff Roy Whitaker said the search would be expanded to "one or two" adjacent ranches today and would "continue for some time ... several days."

"I don't believe the end is in sight right now," he said. "I just believe there's more out there." He said some of the suspected grave sites were under water from a week of rain and "it will be at least a week under bright sun" before they can be excavated.

Weary deputies, who have been wearing gauze masks, smoking cigars and burning their work clothes and work shoes "to ward off the stench of death," excavated three new "indentations" Sunday and

War Hero Missing On Flight

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (UPI) —Civil Air Patrol planes searched the Blue Ridge Mountain foothills today for a missing private plane carrying actor Audie Murphy, World War II's most decorated American soldier, and four others on a business flight from Atlanta.

The twin-engine Aerocommander last was heard from a few minutes before noon Friday when the pilot, Herman Butler of Crossville, Tenn., asked the Roanoke Flight Service Center for weather information and reported he had overflown his destination, the Blue Ridge Airport at Martinsville.

The CAP set up A command post here and planes began searching a wide area extending from Roanoke southward to Hickory, N.C.—an area about 100 miles long and 75 miles wide. The area is hilly and is bordered on the west by the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The Eastern Air Search and Rescue Center at Warner Robins, Ga., coordinating the search, said the plane had encountered bad weather after taking off from Atlanta's Peachtree-DeKalb Airport at 9:09 a.m. EDT Friday. It has rained in Virginia since early Friday morning.

Pair Holds Hostage, Threatened By Mob

KARTAL, Turkey (UPI)—An angry mob gathered today outside a house and called for the execution of two men holding a 14-year-old girl as hostage inside. The two men wanted for the kidnap-murder of the Israeli Consul General demanded free passage from the country in exchange or her release.

A police spokesman said one of the gunmen said "The only way to save the girl is to let us and the girl travel to Nicosia, Russia or (Palestine) guerrilla bases in Jordan, where on arrival we will release the girl."

While the crowd milled around the three-story house and women yelled "let us crush the vermin," Brig. Gen. Celal Bulutlar told the two gunmen by megaphone he would turn them over to the mob if the girl was harmed.

Police and army units surrounded the whitewalled house where the men barricaded themselves Sunday morning while soldiers rigged ropeladders from the roof in hopes of entering the house and subduing the men.

The young men, who fired occasionally at police, were identified tentatively as Mahir Cayan and Huseyin Cevahir, wanted as suspects in the slaying of Ephraim Elrom, the Israeli consul-general who was kidnaped and then killed eight days ago when the Turkish government refused his abductors' demands.

A woman in this seaside resort 22 miles from Istanbul saw the two youths leave a house. She recognized them from wanted posters, and when she began calling for police one of the men shot and wounded her. A man also as injured.

They ran into the home of Turkish Army Maj. Dincer Erkan. They held his wife Sevim; his son, Tamer, 10; and four female servants for a time before letting them go. However, they kept his daughter, Sebil, 14.)

Housing At Record High Of 21 Years

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Nationwide housing starts during the first quarter of 1971 reached the highest level in 21 years.

This forecasts probably housing starts for the year at approximately 1.8 million units. Comparable activity in 1950 produced 1.9 million units.

The April rate was 63 per cent higher than the same month last year.

These facts were revealed by Richard B. Levine, president of the New York Mercantile Exchange, in his speech to the Commodity Club of San Francisco.

His talk, titled "The Outlook for the Plywood Industry," was heard by 52 major lumber and plywood producers who attended the lumber and plywood futures workshop.

Levine outlined a number of advantages of the New York Mercantile Exchange's new plywood futures contract as including price protection against highly volatile and unpredictable prices, hedging advantages to the producer, wholesaler, exporter and mass builder, and profit protection in the face of large inventory needs.

Bank Honored For Aid To Art

WASHINGTON, D.C. (BW) — Crocker-Citizens National Bank has received an award for support of the fine and performing arts in the fifth annual Esquire Magazine-Business Committee for the Arts "Business in the Arts" awards program.

The bank was one of 29 winners.

Crocker-Citizens supported a program in 1970 which included a grant for a new production of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" to the San Francisco Opera Co.; presentation of both the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra and the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in special concerts; and the assembling of a commemorative exhibition, "A Century of California Painting," which was viewed by some 500,000 persons while on display in major California cities.

German-U.S. Trade Rises

German-U.S. trade rose sharply during the first two months of this year, the German-American Chamber of Commerce reported on April 27.

American exports to the Federal Republic increased by 30 per cent to a total of $623.6 million in January and February of 1971, compared to the same months last year.

East Bay Steel Mill Seeks Water Purity

PITTSBURG (BW) — Construction has begun on a new plantwide water treatment system for U.S. Steel's Pittsburg works, (Contra Costa County), John V. Dorman, plant superintendent, has announced.

"We're making a multimillion dollar investment to help improve the environment," Dorman said, "which is a big step beyond just pollution control."

The industrial treatment facilities will include three sewer systems to collect process and cooling water, a new central chemical treatment plant equipped with two larged clarifiers and a sludge drying system for accumulation of waste solids.

Excavation work at the western end of the plant has started and contracts for most of the complex system have already been awarded.

"We will move ahead with construction work as rapidly as possible," Dorman announced. "This is a top priority project which is now scheduled for completion by the end of next year."

Present water quality control facilities will continue to operate while the new system is being built. These include new settling basins and treatment facilities added last fall.

Profit Rise By Leisure Firm Told

MINNEAPOLIS (BW) — Leisure Dynamics Inc. has reported net income from operations for the fiscal year ended March 31 increased 157 per cent over the previous year's results.

Net income from operations totaled $1,380,797, equal to 63 cents per share, for the 1971 fiscal year, up from $536,695, or 26 cents per share, in fiscal 1970. Extraordinary items added $269,000, or 13 cents per share, to net income in fiscal 1970.

Net sales were $30,109,120 for fiscal 1971, up 36 per cent from $22,201,395 in the previous year.

"We are pleased with this strong sales and profit performance in the face of a very difficult economic climate," said L. Preston Gise Jr., president, and M. Allen Hatfield, executive vice president, in a joint statement.

Leisure Dynamics was formed in January 1969 to acquire, develop and manage established businesses in leisure activity fields. Its two main operating units are L. M. Cox Manufacturing Co. Inc., of Santa Ana, the nation's leading producer of gas engine powered model airplanes, cars and boats; and Lakeside Industries, Minneapolis, which produces family games, toys and advertising displays.

Operations of three other firms acquired by the company — Merry Manufacturing Co., CO-5 Co., and the Funtastic Division of KMS Industries — have been consolidated into the Lakeside facility.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased shares of Kentucky Fried Chicken at 48½. Even if I exchange them for Heublein shares, I will realize a loss. Should I sell or hold for the excnange offer? — H.C.

A. If you sell your shares of Kentucky Fried Chicken, at current quotes you would receive $21.75 per share. However, should the revised merger terms between Heublein and Kentucky be approved by directors and shareholders of both firms, you would receive .53 Heublein share for each Kentucky share, equal to $25.63 - a 17 per cent premium - based on Heublein's recent price. Moreover, not only would you be further ahead financially, but your new shares in the merged company would represent a more attractive investment.

Heublein dominates the U.S. vodka market and is leading producer of bottled and canned cocktails, while Kentucky Fried Chicken is a major fast food franchiser. Aided by four mergers since 1964, Heublein's sales and earnings have increased significantly in each year of the past decade. Prospects for a continuation of this trend are enhanced by KFC's established growth pattern and strong market penetration. Hold for the exchange.

Q. I plan to retire next year at 65 on Social Security of $210 monthly. I have $30,000 in savings, part of which I would like to help cover 2 years' college tuition for my son and for retirement income afterward. What do you think of high coupon BB-rated bonds? — M.Z.

A. The risk inherent in this class of bond is apt to be greater than you should assume under the circumstances. However, there are other better quality high coupon bonds available which would be suitable.

Boise Cascade Credit 10s of 1975 and Walter Heller 9½s of 1989, rated BBB and A respectively, would serve your purpose. Both sell at a premium, pay interest in June and December and would return $1,950 on a $21,000 investment, the maximum I would advise you to invest.

McKesson Share Earnings Drop

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — For its fiscal year ended March 31 Foremost-McKesson Inc. reported sales of $1,738,349,000 as compared with $1,691,609,000 for the previous fiscal year.

Income from operations was $24,993,000, or $1.60 of primary earnings per common share, as compared with $29,203,000, or $2 per share, for the previous year.

Fiscal 1971 results included a provision for extraordinary charge of $7.5 million, equivalent to 58 cents per common share. Fully diluted earnings after the extraordinary charge were $1.01 per common share.

'Nameless, Faceless' Migrant Flounders In Adverse Straits

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The plight of the "nameless, faceless" migrant worker is one of America's most serious problems, according to a two-year research project.

"The migrant is a nameless, faceless individual, both while traveling in the 'stream' and while living in his home state," Margaret Garrity told reporters Friday in releasing the Manpower Evaluation and Development Institute's Migrant Research Project (MRP).

"You can understand how migrants could turn up missing and no one would know. Their relatives would not report them missing to public agencies. They don't go to public agencies."

Then she added: "What is happening to the migrant and his children is one of the most serious problems the nation faces."

MRP used $200,000 of a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity to conduct the study. It was based on interviews with 13,000 farm worker families, 100 state and county welfare administrators and 175 crew-leaders and growers.

The 67-page report was written by Miss Garrity, a native of Brookfield, Mo., former deputy director of OEO's migratory worker division, and Mrs. Shirley Sandage, Mason City, Iowa, MRP deputy director.

The study pictured the 500,000 migrant workers in the United States as persons who make far below poverty-level wages, get little benefit from the nation's welfare programs —and may be totally mechanized out of a job by the mid-1970s.

The average size of the migrant family is 6.4 and its average annual income is $2,100 a year. The Agriculture Department's poverty income level for a family of 4 is $3,720.

Six out of 10 migrants are children, and 40 per cent of these children will travel at least five years of their lives in the migrant stream.

The study found:

—Only 9 per cent of the migratory workers had ever applied for social welfare benefits.

—Many of them did not know about such programs.

—"Emotional barriers" kept them from participating in the programs.

—Regulatory barriers also kept them from receiving benefits.

The families were handicapped by not being able to speak English very well. They face the simple, but often overwhelming problem of working all day, and not being able to apply for benefits because the welfare offices were closed when they were off work.

Often they could not get food stamps because the food stamps were kept in bank vaults that had to be locked up in mid-afternoon each day when the banks got ready to close.

Miss Garrity said the study made two main recommendations:

—That once-a-year national certifications be established for food stamp eligibility. Now migrant workers must re-apply each time they move into another county and their eligibility is based on the current month's income that may be higher than usual during the peak earning months of July and August.

—That county welfare offices issue vouchers that migrant workers could present at food stores at any time.

MRP found that by 1975, mechanization for sugar beets, sour cherries, grapes and tomatoes will be about 100 per cent complete, and 80 per cent for sweet cherries and pickles.

"For the migrant worker, displaced from his employment by the machine, deprived by lack of education and training, the determination of states to cut back on welfare assistance may mean a death sentence unparalleled in history since the industrial revolution of the 19th Century," it said.

Bank Move On IRS Tax Levy

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Wells Fargo Bank has announced it is negotiating with the Internal Revenue Service to have levies on bank accounts for unpaid phone taxes served annually rather than on a quarterly basis.

In recent weeks the IRS has ordered the bank to deduct small amounts from customer accounts for unpaid telephone excise taxes. The bank has been charging its standard $7.50 for the cost of the paperwork which involves drafts and reports through different departments and verification of the levy to the IRS and to the customer.

The IRS had primarily used this option in the past to recover unpaid income taxes amounting to hundreds of dollars or more.

"The $7.50 charge is out of line with a $2 or $3 collection of an unpaid telephone tax bill," said a bank spokesman, "yet the paperwork is identical to a thousand dollar attachment for back taxes."

The spokesman pointed out that families who withhold their phone federal excise taxes as a war protest are reportedly increasing, especially in the San Francisco Bay Area and if the levies were to continue on a quarterly basis, the paperwork costs in the majority of the cases would far exceed the amounts collected.

Environment Firm Lists Profit Rise

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Environmental Systems International Inc. (ESI) earned $302,622, or 30 cents per share, on revenues of $3,015,747 in the fiscal year ended March 31, B.A. Berkus, president and chairman, has announced.

The figures represented gains from earnings of $187,076, or 23 cents per share, on fewer shares, and revenues of $1,427,039 in the preceding year.

Earnings Jump

ANAHEIM, Calif. (BW) — California Computer Products Inc. has reported earnings for the nine months ended March 28 were $1,604,481 on revenues of $25,587,822, or 70 cents per share.

FILIBUSTER RECORD? — Texas state Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth does some knee bends to relieve the strain after apparently setting a world record of filibustering. Kennard talked for 29 hours and 22 minutes against a bill that would have changed the University of Texas at Dallas from a two-year to a four-year school. Former Oregon Sen. Wayne Morse previously held the record of 22 hours, 26 minutes.

Vice President Ky Plans To Run For President

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who has had ideological differences with President Nguyen Van Thieu, said Sunday he will run for president in the Oct. 3 elections.

He said that events between now and the election date may change matters, but at the moment he has decided to be a candidate.

Ky also said he believes it is "too late" for a military solution in Vietnam because of the change of public opinion in the United States. He said that six or seven years ago "we had the best conditions to win the military war ... I told President (Lyndon B.) Johnson and all American officials, if you want victory then you must fight the enemy in North Vietnam."

Ky said "the situation today proves what I said. Now it's too late. There has been a changing of public opinion in America."

Ky, once a leading hawk, said the objectives of his country "are still to keep South Vietnam free ... If we cannot achieve it by the military way, then we have to go a different way."

Ky is expected to oppose Thieu, although the president has not announced formally his plans to seek a second term. A third candidate may be Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, hero of the 1963 coup which overthrew the regime of the late Ngo Dinh Diem.

Essentially, Thieu advocates a military victory. Ky prefers a political settlement and Minh wants peaceful coexistence, although not a coalition, with the Communists.

Ky's announcement was greeted calmly by U.S. officials determined to stay removed from the election. U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, long a supporter of Thieu, has been aware for some months Ky was trying to gain enough support and money to enter the race.

Ky, a flamboyant 40-year-old air ace, has considerable appeal among the armed forces and among veterans. He served as prime minister in 1965, but he lost to Thieu for top spot on the ticket in 1967. The two men have grown increasingly farther apart in recent years.

Hijacked Plane With 69 Aboard Still Is Held; Appeal To Castro

MIAMI (UPI)—Despite a direct appeal to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro from airline president Najeeb Halaby, a hijacked Pan American World Airways jetliner spent its second straight night in Havana Sunday with all 69 passengers and crewmen.

A Pan Am spokesman said there was no explanation for the delay in the return of the Boeing 707 hijacked to Cuba Saturday while en route to Miami from Caracas, Venezuela.

"This isn't a record for delayed return yet," said Robert Bonet of Pan Am's Miami office. "In the past planes have been kept up to three days."

He branded as speculation any suggestion the delay was linked to U.S. seizure Wednesday of four Cuban fishing launches with eight crewmen off the Florida coast. "We haven't heard anything that would indicate that," Bonet said.

Four of the fishermen are being held in Key West for trial June 7 on a federal charge of illegal fishing inside the 12-mile U.S. fishing zone off Dry Tortugas. The four were identified as skippers of the four 16 foot boats.

Authorities planned to deport the remaining four fishermen to Cuba as soon as transportation could be arranged.

The Cuban Radio monitored in Miami has denounced the arrest of the fishermen as "illegal, provocative and absolutely unjustified" and claimed the launches were in international waters when seized by the U.S. Coast Guard. However, the broadcasts have not linked the fishing incident to the Pan Am hijacking.

In Caracas, where the hijacker apparently boarded the flight, Pan Am released the text of a cable Halaby sent to Castro Sunday.

"I need not tell you that we feel immensely concerned for the well being of the passengers and crew," Halaby's message said. "We trust that it will be possible to permit the plane, its passengers and crew members to resume their trip without further delay and I would appreciate your personal efforts to achieve this."

Pilot George Ashley announced the hijacking Saturday less than an hour out of Caracas, as the plane was over Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies. The jetliner, which had begun its flight in Buenos Aires, Argentina, touched down at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 6:23 p.m. Saturday.

PROTEST IN LEXINGTON

Philip LaBois of Dighton, Mass., makes his way down stairs at Lexington Town House District Court after his arraignment for staging an anti-Vietnam war protest on Lexington Green. He and about 100 other war veteran protesters were arrested along with 400 townspeople yesterday. Meanwhile, in Boston about 75 veterans camped on Bunker Hill and planned a protest march later today. Police said they expected to make no arrests. (UPI Telephoto)

Church Moderator Defends Angela Aid

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UPI)—The head of the United Presbyterian Church Sunday defended a $10,000 grant by the church toward the defense fund for Angela Davis.

"We need to support young blacks," Mrs. Lois Stair, Waukesha, first woman ever elected moderator of the 3.1 million member church, said in an interview.

"I don't think Angela Davis was right, but the grant was merely to pursue justice," Mrs. Stair told the Milwaukee Sentinel at a reception for her at her home church here.

"I appreciate the grief this brings to those who do not understand the action. We all want to support justice," she told the newspaper.

Mrs. Stair made the comments in answer to objections she has heard since returning from Rochester, N.Y., where she presided over the 183rd General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church.

Announcement of the grant for the defense fund by the church's Emergency Fund for Legal Aid had sparked heated debate on the General Assembly floor.

Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnapping and criminal conspiracy arising from the killing of Judge Harold J. Haley and three other persons last August at the Marin County Civic Center.

Mrs. Stair said the grant was "not just an attempt to buy affection of blacks and young people." She said it was "quite a positive statement that the Christian faith has the power to withstand Communism."

"I've seen first hand the bitterness of young blacks raised in Christian families who were never permitted to take full advantage of their abilities," Mrs. Stair said. "Angela Davis is one of these."

A week ago, Mrs. Stair sent a special letter to presbyterian pastors across the country explaining the reasons for the grant. She pointed out the funds were granted at the request of the St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City, Calif., without prejudging Miss Davis guilty or innocent of the charges against her.

The letter also explained "serious questions" about the propriety of the grant were expressed in the General Assembly.

Argentine Hostage Freed After Food, Goods Deal

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)—The most unusual ransom in the recent worldwide rash of kidnapings—food and goods for the poor —won the release of honorary British Consul Stanley Sylvester after a week as a hostage.

Sylvester was released Sunday and returned home in a cab, telling newsmen on his front lawn "Good morning, gentlemen. As you can see, I am well and I am happy to return home and be with my family."

The kidnapers, who said they were from the leftist People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), made good on their promise to let Sylvester go after officials of the meat packing plant he managed began distributing $62,000 worth of food, clothing and household goods to the poor.

Though Sylvester, 58, is honorary British consul in Rosario, the kidnapers made it plain they abducted him because of his role as manager of the Swift packing plant which had laid off 4,000 workers in the past year because of a beef shortage.

In addition to distributing the goods, the plant officials agreed to hire back hundreds of workers, provide back pay for them and make a number of internal changes at the plant.

The food and goods, wrapped in brown paper, were passed out to shantytown residents from the backs of trucks Friday and Saturday. The ransom included coats, blankets, milk, bread, salt, tea, coffee and other household basics. There were also school supplies for the children.

Many of the residents who crowded around the trucks to get the parcels said they agreed with the demands of the kidnapers, but most also agreed with Jose Almada who said as he received a package "I'm in agreement with this. But only if they don't kill the consul."

Sylvester was released Sunday morning in a quiet part of Rosario and hailed a cab to take him home. He was kidnaped the previous Sunday by three armed men who accosted him in front of his home.

Few Reds Agree To Go Back

SAIGON (UPI)—The International Red Cross screened 660 sick and wounded Communist prisoners in South Vietnam and only 13 want to be repatriated to North Vietnam on June 4, U.S. sources said today.

The repatriation, which was to have been the largest group of Communist prisoners to be returned north during the Indichina War, still will be held at the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing Vietnam if the North Vietnamese agree to accept the reduced number of men.

The sources added that the prisoners will have until June 2 to change their mind about going home. On that date, the South Vietnamese foreign ministry will hold a news conference to announce further details.

The decision of the 647 other prisoners to remain in the south surprised American, South Vietnamese and Red Cross officials and was seen as a diplomatic coup for the allies.

It was unclear what would happen to the prisoners who decided to remain in the south, but most of them have been hospitalized at the half dozen POW camps around the country.

1,000 Fans Given LSD At Concert

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—About 1,000 young people attending a rock concert billed "The Grateful Dead" got stoned Sunday night when they drank LSD-spiked "liquid refreshments" provided during an intermission.

Alison McDonald, a Berkeley woman who attended the concert by the Dead, the New Riders of the Purple Sage and R. J. Fox at the Winterland Arena, said that during a band break an anonymous voice announced over the PA system:

"Those of you who are going to get some liquid refreshment pass it on so your neighbor can have some."

Miss McDonald said, "When it was passed around, it tasted like watered down apple juice—I took a sip because I was very thirsty."

She said in less than an hour she knew she had taken something more than apple cider.

"It was okay acid," she said, "but I feel sorry for anyone who took more than two sips."

Police later reported that the nearby Mount Zion Hospital treated more than 30 persons during a five-hour period who complained of going through a "bad trip." No one was hospitalized.

Police who estimated 1,000 of the 4,500 attending the rock concert were affected by the spiked drinks, said they arrested six men and one woman for investigation.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Peace Corps Director Joseph H. Blatchford says the Indochina War marks the end of "a brief in an omniscient, omnipresent, all-powerful America."

Blatchford predicted in a commencement address at American University that "a new day of clearer perspective, with a keener sense of scale, is ahead."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Ancient Tomb Found

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet archeologists have found intact a burial site containing two bodies that reveals new information about the nomads who roamed southern Russia before the birth of Christ, spilling blood but encouraging culture.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Sunday the discovery dating back to the Scythian civilization of the 4th century B.C. was made in a burial mound near the Ukrainian city of Dnepropetrovsk.

"It gives a full idea of the Scythian rites and the social status of those buried in it," Tass said of the tomb.

Antireform March

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Some 2,000 Roman Catholic traditionalists headed by 180 children in white communion robes marched on St. Peter's Basilica Sunday night in their strongest demonstration yet against liberal church reforms.

Pope Paul VI ignored them. The traditionalists said he refused to grant them an audience. The Vatican tried to minimize news coverage of the demonstration by banning photographers and television cameramen from St. Peter's Square.

Sadat Burns Tapes

CAIRO (UPI)—President Anwar Sadat today made a bonfire of tape recordings and documents containing bugged conversations of private citizens, Cairo radio said.

For 30 minutes the head of state threw tapes onto a blazing pyre as thousands of Egyptians shouted "burn, burn."

The radio said the tapes and documents were collected from the offices of ex-presidential affairs minister Sami Sharaf and the secret police.

ACLU Mission

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) undertook the chore today of notifying 2,400 defendants arrested in antiwar demonstrations here early this month that the government has dropped charges against them.

The District of Columbia Corporation Counsel's office said the charges were dropped because it did not have enough information to prosecute.

A spokesman for the ACLU reported there were few addresses for the 2,400 against whom charges were dropped. But he encouraged any person who was arrested and subsequently released to get in touch with the ACLU.

Baez Cut Short

TOULON, France (UPI)—Charging she was planning to brand France as a "Fascist country," the state-run French television network cut short a live appearance by folk singer Joan Baez Sunday.

Miss Baez had been billed as the star of the afternoon show "Tele-Dimanche" but had completed only one song "Blowing in the Wind" when the show was taken off the air and replaced by a sports program.

Producer Raymond Marcillac said he took the action because Miss Baez insisted on reading a statement before going on with her recital.

Crisis Warning Lag

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon's multibillion dollar Defense Communications System (DCS) takes 69 minutes to send a "flash" message in a crisis because of poor management, according to a congressional report.

The DCS also needs an average of 100 minutes to send a message stamped "immediate," said the report, which questioned:

"What could be expected from Department of Defense communications generally, and the defense communications system specifically, in a general war situation?"

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., a member of the Armed Services Investigating subcommittee that prepared the report released over the weekend, concluded, "We are in a hell of a mess."

Strike Threatened

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A nationwide strike of Western Union employes was threatenec for Tuesday after bargaining between the telegraph company and a union representing 17,000 employes broke off.

A company spokesman said the bargaining committee for the United Telegraph Workers (UTW) broke off talks after rejecting a management offer of a 20 per cent pay boost.

KATE WEBB'S SAGA

By KATE WEBB
U.P. International

Editor's Note: Following is the seventh in a series of personal impressions written by UPI's 28-year-old Phnom Penh bureau chief about her capture and release 23 days later by North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia.

The frankness of our captors amazed and puzzled me. Toshiichi Suzuki of Nihon Denpa News and I both requested interviews, and it was we who subsequently ran out of questions. The Vietnamese never tired of talking. It indicated, I personally concluded, the confidence which they kept expressing that public opinion was on their side throughout the world. Through the interviews and chats with guards, as well as what we saw, we obtained a glimpse of what has puzzled the world — how and why they fight.

We spent two weeks in a place we called Phum Kasat (Press Village). It seemed to be some kind of transient camp, a collection of thatched roof "hootches" huts scattered under thickets of trees between two villages. We were confined to two small huts, one built on the second day when it became obvious the six of us were too cramped in the first.

They put Suzuki and me in one hootch, the Cambodians in the other. There was a manger-type wooden water trough, small bamboo table, hammocks and mosquito nets. We were permitted to walk only to a "squat-hole" type toilet about 50 yards away through some trees at the rear. A lean-to bath house, with a crock of water filled only three times before we were released, backed onto the small hut Suzuki and I shares on those interminably long days and nights.

We had no idea why we were there or for how long. We sometimes lost track of the days and never saw our faces in a mirror. I made a crude sun dial out of a stick in the ground. We gauged when our twice daily meals would come by when the cows from the east village walked past.

The monotony was broken only during our conversations with the officers and casual chats with our guards. Otherwise, it was nightly Radio Hanoi broadcasts, rising before dawn for exercises and speculating on the movements of the villagers and 20 or so military personnel in the camp.

One night the guards gave Suzuki and me half a coconut shell filled with rank, firey rice wine. It was the only night we slept well. One day we saw them pull a motorcycle out of a haystack. There were days we huddled in a bunker while U.S. AH1 "Cobra" helicopter gunships and "slicks" (UH1 Hueys) circled overhead. Sweating, we were aware that the black pajamas they had provided for me and the green uniforms given the men would identify us as part of the Communist outfit if ever there was an attack.

I made some daily entries on the back of a cigarette package:

"Friday 16th. S. Chhim Sarath, UPI driver interpreter in depths of all-time low. After yesterday's interrogation he sure he going to be zapped. He told me he told not to talk to me. But said I was English and always very good. He huddles in corner silent all day. If had more paper would write essay on prisoners as domestic pets. New house means we must be in for long stay."

"Saturday 17th. Ten days now and days do not vary. We told that interpreter fighting at Pich Nil. My feet worse. Suz and I questioned by "dad", thin man with bad eyes and girl in black pajamas, speaking bad French. We told to answer in writing 29 questions, and asked if anything want. Tailor measures us for clothes. What the hell is this? Hot, hot."

"Sunday 18th. Interrogated all day by young man with screwed-up index finger with wound. I call him The Finger. Notice girl has wedding ring, tough face, soft voice. Dad there and two old men, one in civilian clothes and specs speaking very good french. The other squat in mil. unif. They all laugh when I ask of their difficulties with Sihanoukists. Splitting headache after interrogation. All in French."

UAR Claims Army Of One Million Men

By United Press International

An Egyptian officer said today his country has nearly one million men under arms — three times more than previously estimated by Western experts.

The unidentified officer was quoted by the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram in a story dealing with the reported dismissals of officers in the government purge by President Anwar Sadat. The newspaper reported the officer said the government shakeup "did not lead to the pensioning off or dismissal of any member of these forces, whose number is approaching one million."

Western military sources have estimated the Egyptian armed forces at 288,000. Egyptian leaders recently claimed they can put 750,000 men in the field, but the figure of nearly a million was the highest estimate to date.

In Beirut, the rightwing newspaper An Nahar's Cairo correspondent reported that Syria has agreed to let Egypt station 25 of its fighter-bombers on Syrian territory. He said the aim was to give Egypt easier striking ability against targets in Israel.

The newspaper also reported that Israel has established "napalm pumping stations" in the occupied Sinai for use should the Egyptians try to cross the Suez Canal. It said Egyptian and Soviet officers have discussed means of dealing with these napalm stations.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said the current negotiations may be the last chance to reopen the Suez Canal.

Eban, in a prerecorded interview with the armed forces radio broadcast Sunday, said "the world is becoming used to the absence of this property, to the nonexistence of the Suez Canal, and this may be the last opportunity for saving the canal."

The canal has been closed since the 1967 war and the United States currently is acting as middleman in negotiations for some form of agreement between Israel and Egypt to reopen it.

Fresh fighting between Arab guerrillas and government forces was reported in Jordan over the weekend. An army officer was killed and two other persons injured when two mines planted by the Palestinian guerrillas went off Sunday.

In Damascus, the guerrilla newspaper Fatah said King Hussein's troops were mobilizing large forces to attack remaining commando bases north of the Jordanian capital of Amman. And in Beirut a guerrilla spokesman said Jordanian forces supported by heavy artillery began shelling guerrilla positions near Sumya. The commandos returned the fire, he said.

BODIES

Whitaker said his office has received "about 800" telephone calls, "some at the rate of one a minute," from all over the country and Canada since Friday. They were from persons inquiring if a missing relative or friend might be among the victims.

Stacks of mail also were piled on the sheriff's desk from persons offering advice on possible motives and telling him how to handle the case . . . Whiteaker said he hasn't had time to look at the mail. He saw his wife and children for the first time in four days Saturday night.

All the victims were caucasians ranging in age from 40 to 63. Most had been clubbed about the back of the head and face and stabbed in the chest.

Corona, 37, a stocky Mexican-American farm contractor with four young daughters and a history of mental illness, has been charged with 10 counts of murder. Public defender Roy Van Den Heuvel said Corona would plead innocent when arraigned on the charges Wednesday in Yuba City.

Most damning evidence against Corona appeared to be two receipts made out to him from a meat company where he bought food for his farm workers. The receipts were found in one of the victim's graves.

Court affidavits filed over the weekend pictured the suspect as a man of violent temper who at times had to be restrained by tying him with ropes; and as a man who owned weapons smeared with "possible blood stains."

Motive for the multiple slayings remained unclear. The district attorney and other authorities were investigating reports Corona became enraged when his application for aid to dependent children was rejected and he possibly vented his wrath on non-Mexican farm workers, some of whom were collecting welfare checks.

Corona was transferred early Sunday across the Feather River to the larger county seat jail at Marysville "for security purposes and more adequate facilities."

Corona was visited at his new jail cell by his mother, Candida Corona, 68, who arrived Saturday night from Autlan, Mexico; his wife, Gloria, a native of India; his brother Pedro and the Public Defender.

Corona ate a hearty meal of steak, potatoes, corn, coffee and bread Sunday evening.

three-story white house. With them was Erkan, who was carrying a machinegun and vowed that "if those thugs kill Sebil, I will go in and kill them."

Although the youths shot at the government forces surrounding the house, police and soldiers did not fire back for fear of hitting the girl. Sebil was paraded before a third-floor window occasionally so onlookers could see she was all right. Police controlled the first two stories of the house.

Army Maj. Hayri Cevik talked to the two suspects early today and told them to surrender. They said they would, but wanted passports and free passage out of the country guaranteed before they would release their hostage.

As the night dragged on, police set up powerful searchlights around the house and by dawn a large crowd was gathered behind the circle of government forces.

Officers using megaphones shouted for the gunmen to surrender. Brig. Gen. Celal Bulutlar said "surrender and you will not be mistreated. Do not (surrender) and I will turn you over to the people."

The 2,200-pound, $65 million spacecraft was launched late Sunday. It performed one important maneuver after another before settling down for its curving, 247-million mile interplanetary voyage.

Mariner 9 was operating on its own today, using the bright star Canopus as a celestial reference point along with the sun and the shrinking earth. A central computer that can be cued from earth controlled routine operations. "It appears as though we have a very successful and promising mission for Mariner 9", said a spokesman at the Mariner Control Center at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif. "The spacecraft behavior is completely normal."

Still ahead is an important course correction scheduled Saturday. It will compensate for a deliberate trajectory error programmed into Mariner's rocket to eliminate the possibility that the probe or rocket would hit and contaminate Mars.

The Atlas-Centaur rocket that launched Mariner 9 was identical to the one that carried Mariner 8 to destruction May 8. But it worked smoothly Sunday, accelerating Mariner 9 to 24,500 miles per hour in 13 minutes to break Earth's gravitational grip.

Dr. George M. Low, deputy Space Agency administrator, said Mariner 9's mission racked second only to Apollo moonlightS in importance to the agency this year. It marked the beginning of a planetary exploration program covering all eight other planets in 10 years. all eight other planets in 10 years.

"Where You Try Before You Buy"

Tracy Wood, UPI reporter, interviews William T. Bagley, assemblyman from Marin County

What's going on in Sacramento?

It's a new legislature facing new problems and issues which will have a direct effect upon you and your family. Keeping informed is critical to your best interests.

How the I-J lifts the lid of the state Capitol to keep you informed of legislation

You have double representation in Sacramento. First, politically, through your assemblyman and senators. Second, through the large and competent news bureau of United Press International which reports for the I-J and hence for you. At least seven top political reporters sit through legislative sessions, question the legislators, examine the issues and keep you "on top" of legislation and coming events.

As George Skelton, UPI bureau manager, states, "Despite myth, most stories are not developed in dimly lit bars. The good ones, more often than not, are produced by sitting patiently through boring committee hearings or sifting through dull reports, reading small type. This is the unglamorous part of the job, but the one which often results in a big story in your evening newspaper." Comment: read the I-J and be well-represented. Our first job is to keep you informed.

Park Plaza Plan On Sausalito Agenda

A proposal to put Sausalito's controversial park plaza plan to voters next April will be considered by the Sausalito City Council at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

Because it calls for the eventual elimination of most of the city's largest parking lot, Municipal Lot No. 1, in order to create an open space park in the area, businessmen and some residents oppose the plan.

Last week, the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce, Sausalito Citizens Council and Sausalito Businessmen's Association joined forces to seek a referendum, probably in a special election, on the park plan. When it adopted the plan, the council agreed to discuss the possibility of placing the measure on the ballot at the city's next regular election in April, but made no final decision.

Prepared by San Mateo planning consultant William E. Spangle, the three-stage proposal would create a series of parks, malls and pedestrian walkways in the center of Sausalito's commercial district.

The council will also consider a plan to extend the review powers of the Sausalito appearance advisory board to include single-family residential structures. Currently, the board reviews plans for new construction and additions to commercial, and industrial properties and multiple dwellings.

The Sausalito Recreation Commission will present a recommendation on the proposal to redesign and reopen Vina Del Mar Park. The park has been closed for more than a year because heavy foot traffic in the small area.

Redwood Empire Events

"Where the West begins" appears to be the Redwood Empire, if the many western fairs and riding events scheduled for June in this northwestern California vacation-land are signals.

The "Levi Ride and Tie Race", a 25-mile competitive horseback ride between St. Helena and Sonoma for prizes, starts early June 6 from St. Helena. Later in the day, a western "Ox Roast" is planned for the public at the Plaza in Sonoma. Also on June 6 the Rincon Riders' Horse Show will take place at the county fairgrounds in Santa Rosa at 8:30 p.m.

Novato's Western Country Fair will be June 17-20 at Rowland Avenue and South Novato Boulevard. The Golden Gate Arabian Show will be at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds, Santa Rosa, June 17-20. The Oregon State Square Dance Festival at Grants Pass, June 18-20, continues the western flavor, as does the West Marin Junior Livestock Show at Point Reyes Station, June 19-20.

A rodeo, sheepdog trials and gymkhana are planned for juniors at the annual Buckaroo Days at Boonville, June 19-20. In Lake county, a "horse-drawn vehicle" parade and gymkhana are part of "Middletown Days" at the community's Central Park, June 19-20. Two fairs also feature livestock events: Redwood Acres Fair and Rodeo at the Redwood Acres Fairgrounds, Eureka, June 23-27.

Water sports herald summer June 5-6, with the annual Marin Ballet Aquacade at McNears Beach, San Rafael, and Boat and Water-Ski races at Nice, Lake County, June 12. Much anticipated is the Salmon Festival at Klamath, Delnorte County, June 27, which event includes a salmon barbeque, Indian ceremonies and dancing.

Summer flora will be much in evidence at the "Old Sonoma Tour" of Sonoma gardens, June 2; at the Novato Garden Club Show, the Community House, June 5-6; at the Art and Garden Show at Guerneville, June 26-27, and at the Cloverdale Art and Garden Fair on Owl Plaza, Highway 101, Cloverdale, June 26-27.

The Second Annual Skating Marathon takes place at the Redwood Empire Ice Arena, Santa Rosa, June 5, starting at 7 a.m. and tennis tournaments are scheduled at Konocti Inn, Kelseyville, June 4-5, and at Mill Valley Tennis Club, June 16-20.

Some musical events include the free summer Sunday concerts at Stern Grove, San Francisco, beginning June 6, the 35th annual Bach Festival in San Francisco, June 6-14, and the opening Marin Music Chest concert series at Forest Meadows, Dominican College, June 29. Santa Rosa Junior College will hold the Sixth Annual Atrium Festival of the Visual and Performing Arts, June 17-20, on campus.

Squirrel Sightseeing bus tours along the Avenue of the Giants in Humboldt County begin triweekly, June 15, and Skunk train tours of the redowod country offer three trips a day from Fort Bragg, commencing June 11.

Goodwin, who had been out on $1,000 bail, was arrested April 14 in San Francisco along with two Mill Valley residents, Roger G. Leibowitz of 40 Hillside Lane and Charles S. Wismer, 21, of 342 Live Oak Drive, in connection with the sale of 36,000 tablets of LSD to undercover agents.

Candy Sales Operator Due For Fine Or Jail

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The owner of a house-to-house candy selling operation that was run out of San Anselmo a year ago has been scheduled to appear in court Thursday either to pay $500 or begin serving 50 days in jail for five labor code violations.

Fritz Thus, head of the Student Opportunity of Lafayette which employed juveniles as salesmen, was sentenced May 25 in Oakland-Piedmont Judicial municipal court.

He was arrested last August by Oakland police on suspicion of 34 labor code violations. At that time, Thus pleaded innocent. Several hearings were held before April 21 at which time he changed his plea to guilty.

The five sections of the labor code violated concern working a child under age 15 as a street peddler; working a minor more than eight hours in one day or before 5 a.m. or ofter 10 p.m.; failure to carry workmen's compensation insurance and itemizing deductions with paychecks.

San Anselmo police picked up two 16-year-old peddlers in July and told them to leave town. The youths identified Thus as head of the company and police warned him that his activities violated the anti-peddling ordinance in that city. His employes reappeared later in the month and again were ordered from the town.

The candy which sold at $1.35 a box, was netting more than $8,000 profit monthly, police estimated. Thus's traveling teams were working from Santa Cruz to Bel-Marin Keys.

High-Speed Chase Ends In Arrest

A high speed chase down Highway 101 at speeds of 90 to 100 miles per hour ended when the chased car went into a ditch on Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, police reported today.

Ralph James Clifford, 21, of 126 Trellis Drive, San Rafael, was booked into Marin County Jail Saturday on suspicion of reckless driving and evading arrest. He posted $120 bail to appear Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police started chasing Clifford on Highway 101 at the Lucas Valley Road, at 1:30 a.m. Clifford momentarily lost police and turned down Los Gallinas Avenue. When police saw his car in a ditch, Clifford got out and started after Patrolman James A. Cunha to fight him. Sgt. John F. Riordon stopped Clifford by firing a warning bullet into the ground, police reported.

The first modern safety pin was patented in 1849.

State Trying To Save Bald Eagle

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The state government has begun a new campaign to save the once-plentiful bald eagle from doom in California.

The graceful but bashful eagle—America's national emblem—has been rapidly disappearing from the California wildlife scene in recent years, the victim of people and pollution.

Recognizing that the soaring bird with a 6-to-8-foot wng span may be near extinction, the California Fish and Game Commission has placed the eagle on a list of 19 endangered wildlife species.

The move clears the way for state action to help the bald eagle survive in California.

Robert Mallette, associate wildlife manager-biologist for the State Fish and Game Department, notes that many bald eagles existed here until the 1920s and 1930s when people began migrating to California in large numbers.

Now, he says, the number of resident bald eagles in California is down to "probably around 100."

Mallette attributes the decline of the bald eagle to loss of habitat, scarcity of food and pollution.

"The influx of civilization has caused encroachment of habitat," he said in an interview.

Mallette said the eagle has been driven from its living quarters by people such as loggers who cut trees containing nests. Sometimes, he eaid, people also inadvertantly scare eagles away from nests which contain eggs.

"In some cases disturbances at the nest will cause chicks to starve to death when adult birds won't come in," he said.

Another contributor to the bald eagle's demise is the declining spawning runs of fish which migrate from the ocean to fresh water. Eagles traditionally feed on the carcasses of fish who die after spawning.

"Sometimes they eat live fish, too, but usually they take the easy way out and feed on the dead spawners," said Mallette.

The wildlife expert said fish food for eagles not only is dwindling but some fish contain poisonous pollutants which are eaten by the huge birds.

State wildlife personnel spotted only 24 California nesting sites of bald eagles from 1967 through 1970. Almost all were in the northern point of the state.

The nests were sighted in relatively remote sections of Del Norte, Shasta, Trinit;, Alpine, Amador, Butte, Plumas, Lake, Napa, Fresno and Siskiyou counties.

Mallette is not disclosing the exact nest locations for fear the birds will be disturbed by persons rushing to photograph or just view them.

He said the department has begun an intensive effort to count bald eagles and other declining birds to "get an index of breeding population and nesting success."

"With our knowledge of where the eagles are, we can give them protection so that persons won't disturb them, he said.

The bald eagle also is on the U.S. Department of Interior's endangered species list. Officially, it is known as the southern bald eagle. Its northern cousin still thrives in upper Canada and Alaska.

With the southern bald eagle now on the endangered list, the department will report on it status to the legislature and the governor every two years and recommend action to preserve and possibly even enhance its population.

Harriman Says Russ 'Immature'

NEW YORK (UPI)—W. Averell Harriman, former chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, said Sunday the lead in arms control must come from the United States because the Soviet Union is too immature.

Harriman said in an interview the Russians were "awfully afraid" world opinion regarded them as not strong enough to build more weapons and still attain domestic improvements.

"We're mature enough to be able to take that kind of criticism," he said.

If Academy Closes, San Rafael Is Loser

The academy, faced with imminent closing for lack of funds, undertook a campaign to raise $200,000 to see it through the summer — with hope that a guarantor for a new loan can be obtained to keep it in operation next fall. The campaign has met scant success.

The Episcopal Diocese of California has promised to see the school through the final weeks of the current term, according to Col. Derrick Whiting, the school's headmaster. But it will not guarantee a new loan. Unless some other guarantor can be found, or the church can sell the property to some other organization that wishes to keep the school going, there will be no San Rafael Military Academy after June.

FINANCIAL TROUBLES are not new for the school. It has had them recurrently during its 80 years of existence. Twenty years ago, it was faced with closing, but managed to rally new support. A few years later, financial strictures forced sale of much of its property — now occupied by medical offices and the Odd Fellows Hall. A decade ago, it was saved again when purchased by the Episcopal Church. It ceased to be an Episcopal diocesan institution last fall.

This time, the trouble is compounded by the anti-military feeling so widespread in the United States. The discipline of military schools, highly regarded in the past, has become an object of ridicule among a generation brought up in the opposite philosophy of freedom to "do your thing" with little or no discipline, fostered by the so-called progressive education approach in public and many private schools.

As a result, the number of military prep schools has been declining sharply. Only four are left in California: Army and Navy Academy at Carlsbad, San Diego County; San Diego Military Academy at Del Mar; Lake Elsinore Military Academy in Riverside County, and that in San Rafael — the only remaining military school in Northern California.

WHETHER OR NOT an individual believes that military discipline is good for growing boys, the existence of such schools is good for the educational system. They provide an alternative approach — something that educators in and out of the public schools believe is important. The need to preserve such alternatives has been stressed by Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction. It is behind the bills by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-South San Francisco, to permit trial of the "voucher plan" in California.

Complicating the local situation further is the fact that San Rafael Military Academy sits on a very desirable piece of real estate. Developers would like to get the property for apartment house or other use — which would be profitable where a school is not.

San Rafael, however, would be the loser.

By JOHN KELSEY

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Well, the cornerstone of the nation surely must be the right of every man to go to law school, or study under a lawyer.

And nobody is going to take away that right, because once a young man manages to pass those tough bar exams, no matter how he got his law education, he's got the stuff and the right to hang his shingle. Rich or poor, any boy in the union can grow up to be president — or a lawyer — or, like Richard M. Nixon and others, both.

That was the tone of the debate in the Assembly, when the 60 or so members present spent 40 minutes of a one and one-half hour session debating legislation that would affect the state bar examinations.

Not that the legislation was particularly sweeping. It's just that lawyering is very close to the hearts of almost a majority of assemblymen.

ONE OF THE TWO bills involved, in the words of its author Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, doesn't do anything at all; and the other, according to its author Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, makes bar examinations a little more efficient. Legialation of far greater import has gone through the same chamber so fast the air shimmers.

See, 32 of the 80 assemblymen are lawyers themselves. It's even worse in the Senate, where 22 attorneys make a majority of the 39 sitting senators.

The background to the two bills is simple, interesting, and not alarming. Bill Greene, who started the debate with AB 597, isn't a lawyer. He describes himself as a full-time legislator, and he represents a black district in Los Angeles. Some time ago, some young constituents came to him with a pressing worry — they attended a non-accredited law school at night, and had heard (correctly) that the state bar examiners were contemplating two different bar exams — one for students who can afford to attend big, shiny accredited law schools, and a tougher one for those who go at night to little, non-accredited law schools, or take their torts by correspondence course. They didn't think that was right, so they wanted a bill to make sure the state bar keeps on giving the same exam to everyone. Meantime, between the complaint and the bill, the bar examiners agreed and dropped the two-test turkey.

So the total effect of Green's bill was to make sure everything stays the way it is now. Some of the dozen speeches that ensued were hailing the preservation of the hard-work ethic by which any boy could become a real, live lawyer. Some damned the dastardly bar examiners as a closed corporation trying to squeeze the little guy. Some haw-hawed the bill as needless.

THE DEBATE COULD have gone on all day, from the temperature the eloquence was reaching, particularly from Oakland night-school lawyer Robert Crown; but cooler heads called the question and Greene won handily by 62 to 7.

Maddy's bill (AB 1557) also passed, by a much narrower margin of 42 to 25. It would permit the bar examiners to use true-or-false and multiple choice questions, to replace some of the essay questions. After a long debate, Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, moved reconsideration of the aye vote.

Needless to say, when the reconsideration move reached the floor several days later, the lawyers hove to and repeated themselves again, for more than half of a 40-minute session. Reconsideration lost.

THE POINT, HOWEVER, is not the merits of either bill. The point is that both of them are pretty small potatoes transformed into weighty issues simply because the lawyers outnumber everybody else. Bill Bagley, R-San Rafael, put it best at the close of the reconsideration debate when he said he was sorry the bar exams had to take up the time of the legislature at all, for surely the bar examiners could be trusted with determining the form of their own examinations.

Probalby, the lawyers would argue that it is for the best to have a great many practitioners of the law making the law. But we don't think so. The hell of it is that another law to limit the number of lawyers and get a few more ordinary men in there would, of course, tromp on the constitutional rights of the lawyers themselves.

Conflict Of Interest On Selection Committee

The proposed one per cent payroll tax is now under review by the San Francisco supervisors' finance committee. As Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste has stated, this will inflict a terrific burden on the Marin County commuter.

San Francisco's chief administrative officer, Thomas Mellon, is a staunch supporter of this tax. He has been appointed to serve on the committee to select a new chief administrative officer for Marin County. I heartily agree with Supervisor Baptiste, that Thomas Mellon, due to his bias regarding this tax, should be removed from this committee.

What's It All About Regarding Eel River?

It is encouraging to see our Senator Behr pushing for legislation to declare the Eel, Klamath and Trinity rivers as "Wild Rivers". It is unfortunate that our local county government and agencies are in fact, supporting the opposite effort.

Annual dues to the Eel River Water Council are $5500 per year, of which 10 per cent is paid by Marin County, the North Marin Water Council pays one-third of the balance and the Marin Municipal Water District pays $3,300.

It is also interesting to note that in January of 1970, Mr. William P. Seeger, general manager of the MMWD was directed by Mr. (Robert G.) Anderson, president of the MMWD board, to have a representative of the Eel River Water Council make a presentation to the board to "find out what it's all about."

Both newly elected directors (Eugene A.) Miller and (Ray W.) Foreaker stated publicly that they would ask the Marin County Board of Supervisors to conduct public hearings on the participation of Marin County in the Eel River Water Council. No such request has been forthcoming from them nor the MMWD.

Are Mr. Behr and the county on opposite courses?

Motorcycling Parks Would Provide Answer

Reference is made to Harlan G. Koch's letter to you of May 26. Just to set the record straight, I decried only the county supervisors' actions in passing another ordinance when there are already sufficient laws on the books.

I agree 100 per cent with Mr. Koch. Passing another ordinance banning motorcycles when there are adequate ordinances not being enforced accomplishes nothing and does not address itself to the real problem, that is, a place for cyclists to pursue their form of recreation or elimination of the noise problem. Mr. Arnold H. Baptiste's action, as a member of the board of supervisors, in forming an ad-hoc committee to study the problem and to recommend areas for public riding, is progressive and commendable. I understand the committee is anxious to receive views from the community on the subject. The people need more of this kind of positive approach. Legislation to control off-road indiscrimative use of motorcycles is not the answer. Community support is needed for public motorcycle parks for this type of recreation. Several parks situated throughout the county will help solve the problem Mr. Koch and others in the community face.

Would Suppress Victims' Identities

I am writing this letter on behalf of the board of directors of the Kent Woodlands Property Owners Association and the residents of our areas whom we represent.

It is our wish that you reconsider your current policy of identifying each week, by name and address, residents of the county who have been robbed. It is our feeling that by divulging this specific information you are directing attention to homes that perhaps are more easily burglarized. I should point out that this feeling is based upon the fact that a number of our residents have suffered more than one robbery in recent years. According to a recent edition of the Independent-Journal you have stated that this information is taken verbatim from the police report. My suggestion would be that you could draw attention to the number of crimes in the community by identifying these burglaries only in terms of street location and amount stolen. In this manner you would obtain the publicity that you and the police feel is necessary while at the same time protecting the identity of the individuals.

Grand Jury Should Probe School Funds

During 1964-66 and '68, the Marin County superintendent of schools received grants from the Ford and Kettering Foundations totaling $34,500 to be used by the Reed School District to establish an innovative educational program.

For some unknown reason, these grants were given to the Reed district with no check or accounting as to how these funds were to be expended.

In the meanwhile, personnel of the Reed School District seemed to be using these grants for their own personal use and gains.

When Gordon C. Wright and Kenneth G. Wells were elected as new members of the Reed school board, they started an investigation into the misuse of these funds.

In order to stop this audit as to whom and why this money was taken from these grants, the same group who have been running the Reed district, with the help of one of the Reed trustees, started bringing false and petty charges against Gordon Wright, which ended up in a recall election, which was successful . . .

Thanks to Reed trustee Kenneth G. Wells, all the facts of this misuse of school funds were printed in the I-J of May 20.

. . . As a taxpayer in the Reed district, I strongly suggest that the Marin County Grand Jury investigate this mess . . .

Not Generation Gap But False Philosophy

There is no "generation gap." There is only the horrible results of what so many children were taught to become.

It's no credit to this society that the human horrors that pass as "beautiful people," spaced out, disease ridden, with drug exploded minds, are in the minority. What is tragic are the many children who today are mere mediocrities of their once potential selves (by children I mean from progressive nursery school age to college level).

If you doubt this just check out the next "confrontation" between students and police. There is where you see the well trained sheep willingly follow the first thug with the lung capacity to cut through their foggy minds.

The only "gap" that can possibly exist is the gap between reality and the unreality offered our children via social-orientated schools with little or no regard for the individual, religions that claim entrance to an unknown heaven by destruction of your self-esteem, political thinking that puts social requisites above the rights of individuals with the result that if you work, own property and keep it looking nice you are penalized for your initiative by taxation while welfare recipients scream about blood baths if they don't receive their unearned eyeglasses by next week . . .

Unwilling to face reality, the leaders on all levels in this country have faked it for too long and now the bill is due and payable.

Good News Comes In Bunches With Chance For Better World

It's coming — in bunches.

Six men from six countries primarily deserve credit and recognition. They are President Richard Nixon of the United States; Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist leader; Georges Pompidou, president of France; Edward Heath, British prime minister, Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, and Cou En-lai, premier of the People's Republic of China.

They are laying the building blocks of a more stable world and at last these are beginning to fit.

It has been a long time coming but now the most breathtakingly significant beginnings are going forward all at once.

The United States-Russian decision to move toward reducing both defensive and offensive nuclear weapons.

The decision by the NATO and Soviet-Warsaw Pact countires to negotiate a mutual reduction of the two million combat troops which confront each other in Europe.

The prospect of a stronger and wider European Common Market with admission of Britain, Ireland, Norway and Denmark.

The action of West Germany to uproot the seeds of hostility between it and Poland and to improve relations with Moscow.

TOGETHER THESE developments constitute an immense potential, capable of enabling diverse peoples and sometimes hostile political systems to work and move and have their being on the same planet.

Apparently the main architects of these initiatives discerned the timing almost simultaneously and each made a vital contribution to the sum of what is taking place today.

Premier Chou En-lai saw that, with the cultural revolution having run its course, China would be better off to break its self-imposed isolation.

Chancellor Brandt realized that the unfinished business of World War II — a peace settlement with Moscow and Warsaw — must be concluded.

President Pompidou could see that Europe needed Britain and Britain needed Europe, and wisely reversed De Gaulle's petulant veto.

British Prime Minister Heath has had the vision and the patience to accomplish what previous Labor and Conservative governments have tried but failed — to get acceptable terms to join in building a more unified Western Europe.

Party Chairman Brezhnev overcame the hawks in the Kremlin and opened the way to a wide range of negotiations with the United States and Western Europe.

NIXON'S OWN initiatives have been considerable and unpublicized. In February, 1969, less than a month after he took office, he wrote a memorandum to the State Department laying down his objectives of a detente with mainland China. He encountered resistance by some of the experts who kept saying that being friendly to China would lose him the good will of the Soviet Union. He never wavered from his goal and now is in the process of getting better relations with China and better response from Moscow because of the China detente.

On the SALT talks Nixon has been in direct, personal communication with Premier Kosygin. By not hastily grabbing at the Russian proposal for limiting defensive weapons only — as Senate critics urged him to do — he has won agreement to negotiate on offensive weapons as well.

Peace isn't just around the corner, but the outlines of a more stable world are becoming visible.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

ROBERTSON, Tex. — He is short, especially if you compare him to the Texan of legend. His hair is off-white and his eyes bright blue. His nose is like a hawk's bill. The skin on his neck is creased and brown, like that on the back of his hands. His voice is not assertive, and it doesn't have to be.

When he walks into the Pioneer-First National Bank in Lubbock, everybody who knows who's who says, "Howdy, Mr. Wheeler," and not merely out of respect for his 70 years.

JOHN WHEELER CAME to the South Plains of Texas the first time in 1920, out of Yall County, Ark., which is about 90 miles west of Little Rock. He came on the train to Plainview and then hitched a ride down the road and found a job driving a team back and forth to a wheat bindery. It paid $5 a day, which was good money in those days, but it didn't last long.

From there he went to another farm job at $3 a day and then another at $2.50. Soon after, a farmer gave him a Jersey heifer for digging all the loco weed out of 160 acres of pasture. That's a lot of loco weed.

With some cash in his pocket he returned to the Ozark foothills, but the open plains called him back. A lot of Texans were moving on farther west, looking for something greener. But to Wheeler, Texas "looked good compared to the hills and sassafras bushes and saw briers." So when he came back in 1923, he rented 200 acres and farmed 150 of it with eight mules, growing cotton and feed. The other 50 he grubbed for wood, which is not sizable enough around here to call it timber.

HE CAN REMEMBER each year since in terms of rainfall and crops. In 1925, for example, the first decent rain came June 7, and there was no cotton.

He also remembers in which year he bought a quarter-section of land, and when he was able to buy 500 acres. In the '30s he expanded when less-stubborn neighbors, or those with less cushion, moved on. In the leanest years he was never too proud to hire himself out. "I always found me something to do. I didn't sit around on my brownie," he says.

So now he is farming 8,000 acres, and owns 3,000 more. He is in cotton, feed and cattle, and owns a grain elevator. That is why the bankhands say, "Howdy, Mr. Wheeler" so deferentially.

HE STOOD THE OTHER day in the schoolyard here at Robertson and talked about how and why life for the farmer has changed since he settled just down the road. But he didn't have to say much, standing there on the cracked dry earth while a turkey gobbler sneaked into the high weeds beside the school.

The school is boarded up. Askew's General Store across the road is abandoned. Most of the houses up and down the road are, too. Tnere is a small cotton gin, but nothing else seems alive in what was once a busy crossroads village.

The people moved away, driven first by hard times that cost the small farmers their land, then by mechanization that cost many farmhands their jobs. Farmers unprotected by the banks or government-guaranteed credit, and hands unprotected by contracts or minimum wages, could not ride out earlier droughts like the one that grips the South Plains again this year.

OF COURSE the drought hurts everybody, large and small, city and country, in this part of the world. Wheeler looked into the brassy sky and estimated that the next two to three weeks would tell whether crops can be made this summer. But he knew that whether it rained or not, he would survive.

He pointed off toward other towns that have been boarded up in Crosby County. He didn't say so, but there was clear pride in the fact that all those others had moved on, but he had stayed and prospered. You had to ask before he acknowledged any outside help, but then he gave credit freely to the Roosevelt administration for starting programs that kept farmers going. He added that those programs had been continued by all the administrations since.

Machinery, repairs and interest are now priced "plumb out of reason," he complained. There was both pride and complaint in his notation that he has to pay his hands a federal minimum wage now, and he would not lay them off even if this was a bad year. He didn't have such protection when he was scrambling for a living, he reminded you, but he always found work to do.

You got the feeling he was about to say something about government interference and handouts, but under the circumstances he never quite did. He is realistic, which is one reason his holdings are scattered over 85 miles of the Texas Plains.

Many Pre-Opening Handicaps For Auditorium That Isn't

Marin's oft-maligned new auditorium-theater at the Civic Center has a couple of strikes against it even before it has come up to bat.

It's going to need all the support is can possibly get because thus far, the odds are heavily stacked against what has been called a "white elephant" and a "row of silos."

HERE ARE SOME of the factors that have given the building its infamous reputation:

A series of delays kept the public wondering when and if the auditorium would ever be completed. Fair-Marin Inc., delegated to administer the auditorium and fairgrounds, was dissolved amid considerable acrimony over who should raise the funds to complete the building, and when.

When the supervisors did take the bull by the horns and poured in money to complete the building, the structure turned up with the wrong end facing the highway.

And finally, the naming of the building created yet another furore, and this issue may not be settled yet.

FROM THE OUTSET, the name Veterans Memorial Auditorium was the generally accepted name. Veterans organizations were represented on the Fair-Marin board of directors and talked hopefully of having meetings in the auditorium.

Use of the building for meetings by local organizations and even for small conferences was being discussed as recently as two years ago.

But sometime between 1969 and today, the "meeting rooms" completely vanished. What were marked off as "meeting room" and "office space" are occupied by the manager and his secretary because there's no other space for them.

IT'S NO WONDER that the veterans organizations, and for that matter, any other group which had hoped to have meetings or small conferences in the building, felt a bit cheated.

Veterans got so peeved, they even asked that the name "veterans" be deleted from the building name. That's how the name of the auditorium got changed last week in a 3-to-2 vote.

Arnold Baptiste suggested that "auditorium" be knocked off, leaving only Marin Veterans Memorial. He got two other votes, and so that's the official name now.

Why not retain the name "auditorium"? Kalimos explains that the building isn't really an auditorium at all. It's not like the Richmond Auditorium with a multi-purpose flat floor area in the center (for basketball, wrestling, or other sports events) with tiered seating surrounding the central floor area.

Marin's new building has only two main components: (1) a theater with 900 fixed seating and almost 1,200 moveable seating, and (2) a flat exhibit area behind the moveable seating. It's a theater-exhibit hall.

WE AGREE THAT "Marin Veterans Memorial Theater-Exhibit Hall" would be too long and awkward. But we'd feel much more comfortable if the name ended with something other than "memorial" — something more concrete like theater, center, building, or hall.

It would be awful tiring to have to keep explaining to visitors from out of county that the Marin Memorial is a functional building where you can sit and enjoy performances, not a landmark like the Washington Monument where you stand and snap souvenir shots.

Headlands Musical Fete Stated Outdoors, June 13

Music and nature lovers will celebrate a new kind of musical experience at the Cushing Memorial Theater on Mount Tamalpais on June 13 at 1 p.m., the Marin Symphony Guild announced today.

The concert, Hymn to the Headlands, is in support of legislation currently before Congress which would officially designate the Golden Gate headlands as a national recreation area. The concert is being presented by the Marin Symphony Guild in collaboration with such conservation groups as Friends of the Earth, Nature Conservancy, California Coastal Alliance, the Sierra Club, Headlands Inc., and People for a Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The program's diversity will mirror the variety of its audience's tastes. It will include Sandor Salgo conducting the Marin Symphony, alternating with the experimental electronic jazz of the Denny Zeitlin Trio; Hugo Rinaldi conducting the Marin Youth Orchestra, followed by special guest artist Ali Akbar Khan playing the sarod and Zakir Huessin, the tablas.

"Our dream has been to give Bay Area music lovers, new and old, the opportunity to share great music together in the incomparable natural beauty of Mount Tamalpais," said Mrs. J. Paul Oppenheim, concert chairman who has spearheaded the drive to make the concert possible.

Six thousand persons can picnic in the amphitheater, which opens at noon, and for those who prefer to buy their food, stands will sell refreshments, including organic food.

Access to the mountain theater may be by foot, ferry, horseback, bus or automobile. Shuttle bus service, at 50 cents each way, will be available at the ferry wharf in downtown Sausalito, the Sausalito ferry parking lot by the Big G supermarket, the Town and Country Village Shopping Center parking lot in Strawberry and from the Mill Valley bus depot.

Popular prices will prevail for reserved admissions, general admissions, admissions for youth under 12 and senior citizens over 65.

Suddenly, Bureaucracy Just Loves The Consumer

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Like teenagers chasing the school's shortest skirt, federal agencies are embracing consumerism in a bureaucratic hug. Some critics consider it more selfish lust than enduring love.

The Commerce Department, which has clashed with consumer advocates on several issues, is shopping for a $17,000 official to write press releases on consumer topics.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), by law a consumer protection agency, has set up a consumer affairs office. It wants a $400,000 budget, the same amount sought by the Commerce Department's new National Business Council for Consumer Affairs.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), FDA's parent agency, has not only an office for consumer services but also a new intradepartmental consumer council.

Similar shoots have sprouted at the Justice and Transportation Departments, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and the General Services Administration (GSA).

"THE BUREAUCRACY recognizes that it's wise to wrap oneself in the banner of consumerism," said Frank E. McLaughlin, director for industry relations in Virginia H. Knauer's White House consumer affairs office.

McLaughlin said it is too early to evaluate the new operations. But Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., chairman of the Democratic Study Group's consumer task force, said some agencies "use the word 'consumer' as a device to cloak their real activities."

"It's an exercise in futility and sleight-of-hand, more a public relations gesture than a legitimate effort at consumer protection," Rosenthal said in an interview.

THE AGENCIES, however, dispuge this with claims of progress. HEW's office of consumer services is helping poor residents of three model cities areas establish buying cooperatives and credit unions.

Dr. Mervin F. Silverman, director of FDA's office of consumer affairs, said his staff has cut a backlog of 2,000 inquiries to a few hundred, and is directing activities of 20 FDA consumer specialists in 18 cities. They advise on topics from nutrition to clothing flammability, Silverman said.

ICC has published a booklet advising families on the financial practices of household movers. GSA, the government's purchasing agent, is indexing the consumer products it buys and releasing information on them. It promises brand by brand identification in some cases.

WILLIAM D. LEE, executive director of Commerce's business council for consumer affairs, said the group will try to convince business that it can best avoid regulation by voluntarily improving advertising, warranties and quality.

Some of the goals are less precise, at least to the nonbureaucrat. In a press release, HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson described the work of his new intradepartmental consumer council in these words:

"All of HEW's consumer services emerged as a meaningful integrated whole. This concept must be recognized throughout the department."

U. S. Troop Level In Vietnam Falls

SAIGON (UPI) —Another 3,600 Amerien troops, mostly members of the Marine Corps, were withdrawn from Vietnam last week, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

Command records showed that withdrawals currently are running at a much higher rate than the one needed to achieve the current goal of a 184,000-man troop level in Vietnam by next Dec. 1.

The latest batch of withdrawals, part of the seventh phase of President Nixon's program to pull American troops out of the decade-old Indochina War in easy stages, brought U.S. strength down to just above the quarter-million mark.

Housing Authority Plan On Tap

A controversial proposal to centralize administration of the Marin County Housing Authority will be presented to the housing authority board at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Manzanita Center, Marin City.

The plan, presented by authority executive director Wallace K. Shepherd, would involve combining some administrative positions and moving records and clerical personnel to the authority's main office in Marin City.

The leased housing office would remain in San Rafael under the plan, Shepherd said, but much of the program's paperwork would be taken care of in Marin City. The leased housing director would report to the Marin City office each day, then go to San Rafael to handle lease negotiations and contract work.

The current housing manager for the county's four senior citizens's housing projects would become a roving trouble shooter for all public housing in the county, handling complaints, records and rent collections.

On May 4, the board received the executive director's centralization plan but asked for additional time to study the proposal.

The housing authority board will also select a chairman and vice chairman at the meeting.

Contract Let For Bolinas Center Library

Bolinas Community, Inc. have avoided a $10,780 contract for alterations to the community center for use as a library.

Gordon Baldwin, board treasurer, said the award was based on a low bid submitted by Meil T. Burton, Kentfield contractor. It was one of two offered to the board.

Work is expected to begin in two weeks, Baldwin said.

In a leasing arrangement, $10,000 of the cost will be paid by Marin County. The county will lease the premises for five years and seven months.

In order to meet the additional $780 plus an estimated $2,220 for landscaping, the board plans to hold benefits and ask for public subscriptions, Baldwin said.

The contract was awarded by the Bolinas group Friday.

Red Cross Shifting To Immediate Needs

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The American Red Cross has decided to cut back on its longterm relief services and to concentrate its time and money on the immediate needs of disaster victims —food, clothing and shelter.

The new policy presumes that federal programs and private disaster insurance, which has become increasingly available, will take up the slack left by cutbacks in such Red Cross services as helping victims rebuild homes and businesses, and pay long-term medical and hospital bills.

"We will continue to provide recovery assistance, but the scope of the Red Cross in that phase of disaster operations has been drastically altered," ARC chairman E. Roland Harriman said.

Officials said the policy change made at the organization's 1971 convention in Washington a greater demand for Red Cross disaster services, which has caused a financial drain on the agency's treasury.

ARC's vice president Robert F. Shea, said the policy change also reflected a belief by the group that such voluntary services were not enough to provide for full recovery for disaster-hit families.

The new policy, Shea said, is "a recognition that we were not encouraging development of other family resources to the degree we should have."

In an interview, Harriman said private insurance companies were now writing wind insurance, and the federal government was sponsoring flood and water insurance in 350 areas eligible for it. Both insurance services are expected to reduce the need for Red Cross rehabilitation services, he said.

An even more important development, Harriman added, was passage of the Disaster Relief Act of 1970, which authorizes government agencies to extend long-term, low interest loans "with liberal forgiveness provisions to victims in any disaster area designated by the President.

Shea said the Red Cross had spent $18.5 million on disaster relief so far in the fiscal year ending June 30 —most of it to aid victims of Hurricane Celia that devastated the Corpus Christi, Tex., area; the Los Angeles earthquake, and Mississippi tornadoes.

About 85 per cent of the aid went for emergency help, he estimated, and the rest to long-term aid to help families get back on their feet.

"The long-standing Red Cross policy provided for recovery help to disaster victims who had no other resources or places to turn to for help," Harriman said. "Now, with the available insurance coverage and the availability of government agency assistance, some outside resource is almost universally at hand.

"We will now concentrate in our disaster programs on the all-important subject of preparedness, on immediate emergency relief and on rapid referral to the proper outside resource."

TO HELP HER PEOPLE

Brilliant Black Pianist Wants Career In Law

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Brilliant pianist Carol Ann Miller has decided to give up a promising music career to fight racial prejudice and injustice in a way that really counts.

The only black girl at San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow, 18-year-old Carol says she has experienced no prejudice personally from faculty or students. Known as "Cammy" from her initials, she is popular and has held class offices. But she wants to take up criminal law to help her people.

"Yes," she says, "I am accepted totally on the surface level.

"But there is a part of each individual that is very deep and hidden. I don't think total nonprejudice can exist, because we are subjected to it from the time we are infants. It exists in subtle ways, such as in history books That tell about Africa being barbaric.

"They don't say Africans are inferior, but its inferred, and white students begin to believe it. If prejudice were openly expressed, you could cope with it better, but so much of it is subconscious."

Her expressive hands moving and black eyes flashing, Carol reacted to prejudice and injustice in a torrent of words.

"There are a great many individuals who are being mistreated today," she said, "and injustices will continue. Law is one of the main areas in which they occur. I'm not so idealistic as to think that I'm going to change everything, but I do believe that the way I feel toward the law, I can accomplish something as a lawyer, and any little thing is to the good.

"PREJUDICE IS everywhere — not just black against white, but the other way around. Any differences can cause it.

"When you are young, you are in your own little world, and you are unaware of many things. The less you know, the happier you are. I'm not bitter or cynical, but the older I get the more I see hate, and the less optimistic I am.

"Prejudice has existed such a long time that it's going to take three times as long to erase it. I feel if anything is to be changed, it will have to be through children, and I don't mean my generation but perhaps my children or grandchildren."

Carol says she has experienced some results of racial prejudice personally. She recalls being puzzled when at the age of 9 or 10 a white girl playmate was forbidden to play with her because she was black. Later she saw racial riots in Oakland, where her family lives.

Prejudice in public school is not very evident, she thinks, because, "It is not looked on favorably now — so you try to hide it. Parents may welcome you into their homes, but if a son or daughter starts to date someone of another race, the conflict arises. They are not prejudiced until it hits home.

"I can't blame the parents," she confessed, "because they love their children and don't want to see them have hardships, and it's much easier for them if their child marries someone they think suitable."

HOW, THEN, does she think conditions can be changed.

"I used to think, I respect other people's property, and you can't destroy it to get what you want — but the older I get, the more I come to feel that after violence action is taken. Violence is the thing that gets things done. It is a catalyst.

"The Christian doctrine of turn the other cheek is OK, but you can't keep turning the other cheek forever — pretty soon you can't get back up if you keep being knocked down.

"The trouble with violence is it gets immediate changes, but how long will it be effective is the question. The only lasting changes will come through the law and politics.

"That's why I want to be a lawyer and go into politics. I want to be part of the power structure and law-making body.

"It's so easy to become insensitive to injustice," Carol observed. "I see such a lack of sensitivity among people. I'm so quick to judge others — yet when I evaluate myself, I see myself becoming part of this whole mass of people.

"I have seen a fourth grader high on reds.' If I saw that now, I might think, that's too bad, and later I'd think, how can I say that and not do anything about it?

"This is why I want to run for political office. We need to have more people in office who have the black man's interest at heart — yes, and women's interests too. Women are the other half of the world. Why do we not have equal representation? Women are just as good musicians and artists or anything else they want to be as men.

"I RELATE the women's position to the black position, though they are very different. Women have always been told they are inferior, and after so much repetition they begin to believe it. But women are no longer going to accept the position of the little idiot who sits at home, fixes the meals and talks about what has gone on all day at home.

"Once I get into politics, I'll specialize in whatever field has the most need," Carol said.

She plans to enter Mills College this fall — if she can find a summer job to help pay her expenses. "I like the atmosphere at Mills" she said, "because it is conducive to change, and there is no coverup of problems."

On the subject of marriage and children Carol expressed some very strong beliefs.

"I don't feel marriage is outdated," she said, "but it will not be as my mother or grandmother saw it with the woman half a person. It will be marriage of two whole equal human beings.

AS FOR children — she says, "Sometimes I think I don't want to bring children into a world with so many wrongs and evils, but when I think how much I love life and enjoy my music, the merits of that outweigh my hesitation.

"But it's my moral obligation not to have children until I am mentally and emotionally capable of raising them properly," she emphasized.

Music is responsible for Carol's coming to San Domenico.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Miller of Oakland — her father is a supervisor in the American Patrol Service in Oakland, and her mother is a clerk at the Oakland Army Base — Carol started the study of piano at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music 10 years ago and received a two-year scholarship there.

In 1968 when she played at the Junior Bach Festival in Berkeley, Sister M. Francix Xavier a San Domenico music supervisor was sitting next to her mother. The result was a three-year full scholarship at San Domenico, where she has studied piano with Faith France, head of the music department. As a teaching aide she has supervised piano practive of grade three students.

She has been a member of the Marin Youth Orchestra the last three years and was soloist to critical acclaim at its spring concert. She has also been a soloist twice in San Francisco Symphony youth concerts and is winner of five music scholarships from the California Negro Women's Association.

With all her talent, Carol says she will keep music for her own enjoyment and communication with others while she studies law.

Brides-To-Be Mob Shut Store For Their Gowns

NEW YORK (UPI)—A group of brides-to-be, angered by the thought of walking down the aisle in plain dresses instead of the wedding gowns they paid for, mobbed a Queens bridal salon Friday.

The brides, their mothers and friends massed outside DiCarla's Bridal Salon, which went out of business Tuesday, demanding their gowns or their money back.

The women had expected the store owner, Paul Gilbert of Brooklyn, to be there at 5 p.m. to settle accounts, but he failed to show up.

Queens Assistant District Attorney Arnold Taub, who rushed to the store to try to calm the women, sent a police patrol car to Gilbert's home to bring him to the salon, but the owner refused to come.

Gilbert said the store and the gowns still inside had been turned over to his creditors.

Homemade Food Items Cheaper

A recent experiment showed that homemakers could save 25 hours, 13 minutes by using 41 convenience food items.

On the other hand, when the same foods were prepared from scratch, the cost was 45 per cent less.

Is it worth it? The time saved compared to extra cost amounted to spending 32c an hour, says the National Meat and Livestock Board.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

My wife was one of the biggest midi-skirt fighters. She still has pinned to her bulletin board several of your caustic comments on this miserable style, i.e.: "Or as the father said about his long-haired son, 'It (the midi) hangs around the wrong places and needs a good trimming!' "

She knew she had great legs and she wasn't going to hide them: THEN! Well, she still has great legs, but now all she ever wears are pants suits. I haven't seen her in a dress for so long I'm beginning to wonder if I married a woman. She even wears evening pants to cocktail parties.

I don't go for skirts up to the thigh (on MY wife, that is), but I'd sure like to see a little leg once in a while and I know other men would too. She argues, "It's the style."

Could you please ask the ladies, Helen, to consider us "leg men" and stop covering up the scenery? Great legs are to be seen, not just heard about. — WALLY

DEAR WALLY:

All is not lost: When your wife steps out in thigh-high hot pants, remember, you asked for them, sorta. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Women's liberation has made big headlines, but do the gals really buy it? As a male women's page editor (yes, we do exist), I tried an experiment. I scrounged around and found booklets — good ones — on 1. Women: Equal or Inferior?; 2. How to Get Best Results from your Washing Machine; and 3. Eat Up and Get Thin: The Housewife's Diet.

We ran a story about each subject, giving Women's Liberation the biggest play.

Then we offered the booklets for the usual self-addressed stamped envelope.

Results: Judging from requests, women are twice as interested in getting thin as they are in putting out a good wash (which figures), and liberation barely hangs in there. In all, we sent out five liberation booklets; 164 on washing machines; and 336 on "eat and get thin."

This may help to prove only that females would rather look good than do good. However, I've noticed that the most popular (and solvent) women's magazines stay with household hints, beauty care, family items and how to catch and keep a man. Their editors are pretty hep.

Lib Kids: You still have a long way to go! — MALE EDITOR IN A FEMALE WORLD.

DEAR MALE:

An obvious women's liberation answer to your experiment is: "Liberated women don't read the 'society pages.' Therefore your offers only reached the types who would respond to the second and third-mentioned booklets."

My answer to your letter is: "How can I get a bunch of your booklets No. 3 — Eat Up and Get Thin"? My readers — by the thousands — will want to know! (And, incidentally, a lot of them are pretty well liberated.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Whatever happened to the "Social Security benefits for working wives" bill that was up before the ways and means committee last year? It would enable a married couple to receive greater social security benefits by combining their earnings, so that what a wife pays in to Social Security wouldn't be entirely lost. — MRS. T.

DEAR MRS. T.:

A letter from the bill's chief sponsor, Rep. Edward J. Patten D-N.J., says that the ways and means committee has taken recent action on his bill (H.R. 6500) but has added a major restriction: The committee favors higher social security benefits for working wives but only if the couple worked 20 years after they were married terms this "ridiculous and unfair."

For further information, write to Rep. Edward Patten, 2332 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU.

Let's Hear It For Less Noise, Please

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The latest noise from the nation's capital is the sound of government and industry getting together to reduce the growing level of noise in the environment.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently set up the Office of Noise Abatement and Control to look into the causes and sources of excessive noise and determine their effect on the general public.

The office is expected to determine what physical effects come from various levels of sound, set maximum levels for populated areas and also consider the effects of man-made noises, including sonic booms, on animals and property.

THE OFFICE is empowered to hold public hearings and conduct research. A report of its findings is due to be presented to Congress by the end of the year.

The problem of noise was also attacked in the recent report of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality.

It said, "Noise degrades our environment no less than the more tangible pollutants, particularly in our cities . . ."

And while noting that the government is becoming increasingly concerned, it said much more needs to be done at all levels of government.

It said most of the attention has been concentrated on aircraft noise and suggested that more attention be given to motor vehicles, especially construction equipment, lawnmowers, snowmobiles and mechanical devices.

ONLY A FEW weeks later, a business group issued a report describing the nuisance of noises from "leisure time" products. These include motorcycles, snowmobiles, pleasure boats, golf carts, chain saws, rotary power mowers, riding mowers, edgers and snow blowers.

The report came from a subcommittee of the National Industrial Pollution Control Council, an industry advisory group set up by the Commerce Department to report on what business is doing about pollution. Chairman of the subcommittee is Ralph Evinrude of motorboat fame.

Although admitting that noise "is fast becoming a psychological hazard to many people as well as a physiological problem," the Evinrude panel said noise from leisure products is "not a serious problem."

It also sounded an optimistic note, saying that industry has already made great progress in cutting engine noise, especially in golf carts and pleasure boats. It added that as the public demands less noisy products, industry will be given an incentive to make them.

But the subcommittee recommended that federal standards be set in order to clear up the confusion of varying state laws on the subject. Its list of average noise levels in decibels showed that snowmobiles are loudest with 118 decibels at the user's ear, followed by chain saws at 115, motorcycles with more than 240 cc engines at 112 and motorcycles with less than 240 cc engines and all-terrain vehicles both at 105.

In comparison, the decibel level at the user's ear was listed at 95 for edgers, riding mowers and inboard-outboard boats (at a location eight feet forward of the engine center line); 92 for rotary power mowers and 85 for leaf blowers.

The subcommittee also lists proposed standards for 1973, 1978 and 1983, plus a summary of state laws. Copies of "Leisure Time Product Noise," are available for 25 cents from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Yellowjacket Tip

If yellowjackets threaten to put a sting in yard fun at your house, keep a pan of soap or detergent suds in the yard. The yellowjackets are attracted to the suds and fall into the water, says a suggestion in "It's A Wonderful World" calendar.

Garden Ceremony In Ross

Christine Anne Smith became the bride of Richard Ronald Lines May 22 in a ceremony in the garden of the former home of her parents in Ross. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Smith, now live in Auckland, New Zealand.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Stephen Thompson of Ross, and Craig Marshall of San Rafael was best man.

Christine is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. She is employed by McGraw Hill Book Company in Novato. Mrs. Hazel Mibach of San Francisco is her grandmother, and she has a sister, Kathy, and a brother, Bob, both living in Auckland.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Lines of Novato. A graduate of Redwood High School, he is self employed in San Rafael. Mrs. John Manning of Huntington Beach is his sister.

Following a wedding trip to Disneyland the couple will live in San Rafael.

Color For Danger

The Pennsylvania Department of Highways is painting some highways near Harrisburg yellow, red, orange and green. The idea: provide brightly colored pavement at high frequency accident locations.

Visiting The Moon? Why Not Learn About Wash

In many instances the average family is more informed on visits to the moon than in how to properly launder and dryclean clothing. One reason, reports the National Automatic Laundry and Cleaning Council, is the revolution in the thousands of textile and material combinations for clothing and other items. The influx of fake furs, glass fiber, permanent press, knitwear varieties, bonding, plastic and other materials provide many cleaning problems.

In a new educational film, the council will help inform present and future homemakers on "do's" and "dont's" of textile maintenance. Entitled "How To Save Time, Work and Money", the new color film strip features these points:

Know the equipment you are using and what it can do. Don't overload machines and use proper amount of detergent.

Scrutinize the hand-tag on garments and textiles to be sure it can be laundered or drycleaned under normal conditions.

Watch out for glass fiber, plastic buttons or ornaments, crayons in pockets, rubberized items and other unusual materials.

MRS. LEE JOHNSON
Wins a second term

Arequipa Unit Has New Slate

Mrs. Lee Johnson of San Rafael, elected to a second term as chairman of the Mill Valley Millwood Unit, Marin Foundation, Firends of Arequipa, is an 18-year member of the 19-year-old group.

Each year since its founding the unit has given a barn dance at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley as its major fund raising activity. Membership, by invitation, is open to women who enjoy working with young persons, Mrs. Johnson says.

Florence Johnson has been a resident of Marin since 1937. Before her marriage to Lee Johnson, owner of a grocery store in the Bret Harte area of San Rafael, she worked as a dental assistant. She is a native of San Francisco and is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and College of Marin. Her children are Carl, 15, Eric, 12, and Kathryn, 10 years old.

Mrs. Johnson enjoys gardening in the summer and bridge in the winter, and the entire family enjoys the outdoors and participating in trap shooting, hunting and fishing.

Other officers of the unit are Mmes. Kenneth Stevens, vice chairman; Melvin Klyce, secretary; Francis Keane, treasurer; William Witt, volunteer chairman; Wayne Deatsch, house chairman; and Henry Eckhard, ways and means chairman.

Poison Data Bank

The Food and Drug Administration in the near future will begin a study of a computerized poison information system.

Mrs. Lino To Bring Yoga, Weight Loss Into Church Club Activities

Yoga, women's liberation movement and weight loss programs will be among the social and spiritual activities the new president, Mrs. George Lino, plans to introduce for the Mount Carmel Church Women's Club in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Lino will be installed president at 8 p.m. June 9 at the church. Dinner will follow the officers' installation.

Marianne Lino has been a resident of Marin County for 16 years — all of her married life. She was born in Seattle, and was graduated from Presentation Academy in San Francisco and attended the University of San Francisco before her marriage. Her husband was born and reared in Sausalito, where he now has his construction business.

They are the parents of Eileen, 15, James, 13, John, 10, and Andrew, 7.

Mrs. Lino has been a member of the club four years. While first vice president last year she organized a drive for assistance to the Indians on Alcatraz. Then she and her husband brought the many donations to the island on their boat. Marianne says there is nothing she enjoys more than taking off at 4:30 a.m. with her husband to go fishing for bass in local bay waters.

MRS. GEORGE LINO
To be installed

Marianne enjoys cooking for large groups, which she did the past year as a member of the board of directors of the Mount Carmel School Parent-Teacher Group. She cooked stew for the "Blarney Blast" and luncheon for the domino tournament.

While rearing her family, Mrs. Lino has assisted in her husband's work, making suggestions for conveniences which women wished to have built into a home.

Other officers to be installed with Mrs. Lino are Mmes. Donald Conroy, first vice president; Robert Murray, second vice president; Clayton Ellis, recording secretary; Keith Craemer, corresponding secretary; and Ralph Kellogg, treasurer.

Red, White, Blue Showing Upsurge

Red, white and blue color combinations are having a resurgence in the fashion world and in home furnishings, according to Stella Roach, director of the Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart.

Furniture companies are using the colors in patterns on upholstered chairs, day beds, Tiffany hanging glass lamps, decorative clocks and plaques.

Early Surgery Recommended For Club Feet

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—About 90 per cent of children born with club feet are able to walk normally with prompt medical attention, the chief of the Orthopaedic Hospital's Clubfoot Clinic said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Edkins told a medical alumni meeting that clubfoot was the most common of all congenital diseases, occurring in eight out of 100 births.

The medical approach to treatment of clubfoot in the United States, he said, had been hampered by an unrealistic wish to avoid surgery.

But most children would require some surgery at some point in their treatment, Edkins said.

"The younger the child when this is begun, the better," he said, recommending surgery for children six months or younger.

"The earlier the foot is corrected, the better the final results will be," he added.

Just learning to sew? If you are, choose something very easy to make for a beginning. POPULATION PROJECTION

San Rafael Held Growing Rapidly

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The accompanying illustrations prepared by San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner depict the city's growth in area and population)

Five-year-old predictions that Greater San Rafael will have a population of 95,000 by 1990 are likely to be too low, according to San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner.

In a technical report prepared for the city council and reviewing the population and growth of San Rafael, Hotchner points out that the city's general plan, adopted in 1966, predicted the population of San Rafael and neighboring unincorporated areas would not reach 52,000 until 1970. But as of May 1, 1968, the area census already was 55,287, Hotchner said.

"We may well assume that the general plan projections of 75,000 by 1980 and 95,000 by 1990 will in actuality be exceeded," the planner warned. "Either we plan ahead or population growth will lead us by the nose and drain us through the pocketbook.

"Time is not on our side so we must both plan ahead and act now with decision . . . before we are overwhelmed by the rapid changes taking place," Hotchner reported.

The planning director pointed out that the Town of San Rafael was formed in 1874 with a population of 600 persons in an area of one-quarter of a square mile. By 1913, when San Rafael became a charter city, it had grown to 12.07 square miles housing 5,934 persons, Hotchner said.

By 1950, the city limits had grown only another one-tenth of a square mile, but the population had risen to 13,848. Annexations in the next decade of parts of Terra Linda, Glenwood and Peacock Gap increased the area to 16.76 square miles and the population to 20,460.

The past decade brought the area to 20.17 square miles and the city's population to 38,977, but the annexation pattern left San Rafael "in the unenviable position of being composed of three major geographically separated segments each of which is linked by only one road connection with the other," Hotchner said.

His report pointed out that the city's 1966 general plan extends beyond present city limits to encompass all of the San Rafael Creek and Las Gallinas Creek watersheds, practically the same area as the San Rafael High School District.

"Whereas population increased 50,000 over the last 50 years it looks like it's only going to take 20 years for the next 50,000 people to arrive," Hotchner predicted. "If there is a message, it is that we must change our habits from those that served us well during the period from 1910 to 1950. We no longer . . . can afford to sit back and wait for problems to compound themselves to the point where we are forced to act. We must act while we still have alternative courses to choose from" in terms of transportation, schools, and "all the other things that make this an area worth living in or departing from," the planner reported.

Board Due Preliminary Budget Of $45 Million

Marin County Board of Supervisors will formally approve a preliminary county budget of more than $45 million tomorrow morning and set public hearings that will determine the final budget.

The proposal thus far shows an $8 million jump in total budget needs from this year's $37,022,804. This would mean a tax rate increase of about 65 cents over this year's $2.575 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Budget hearings will start on June 14 at the Civic Center.

Tomorrow's meeting of the supervisors will not begin until 10 a.m. because the supervisors will sit as the Marin County Transit District board of directors from 8:30 a.m. until 10 a.m.

Other topics on the supervisors' agenda include:

COURTHOUSE — The county administrator will report on the status of the fire-ravaged courthouse building in downtown San Rafael and plans for demolition and removal of the doughboy statue.

POLICE RELATIONS — A fact-finding committee will submit its final report, commending Bella H. Aaron's Police Community Relations Program and urging more efforts to get Marin City to participate in the program.

GENERAL RELIEF — County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney will explain how a Supreme Court ruling of last month runs counter to Marin's policy of not granting general relief to employable, able-bodied persons.

HOUSEBOATS — Marine Inspector Richard L. Larson will report on the continuing program of abating non-complying houseboats in Richardson Bay.

BAY FILL — A public hearing will be held on a request by Mervin Britto to fill his tideland lot at 12680 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, south of Inverness Motel. Marin County planning commissioners rejected the fill by 4 to 3 vote on May 10.

APARTMENTS — Los Ranchitos Homeowners Association will protest the proposed Parktree Apartments, a 66-unit development on Los Ranchitos Road at Glenside Way. The county planning commissioners approved the apartments by 6 to 1 vote on May 10.

INDIAN VALLEY — A public hearing will determine whether an interim zone for Indian Valley in Southwest Novato, setting minimum lot size at one acre, should be continued for another year. The interim zone, passed in February, expired because it was good for only three months.

AERIAL ADVERTISING — Supervisor Michael Wornum will seek an ordinance banning aerial advertising.

800 County Workers In Bargaining Units

About 800 employees in the Marin County Employees Association general unit will be divided into six new bargaining units.

The county personnel commission Friday set up these new bargaining units on the basis of type of work performed:

Clerical workers, about 370 in all; blue collar workers, about 170 in the trades, vocational and custodial fields; technical, regulatory and related workers, such as engineers, planners, and accountants; public service and related fields such as public health workers, attorneys, and eligibility workers in public social service; first-line supervisors; mid-management employees, directly under department heads.

In each of the first four categories, an election will be held as soon as the State Conciliation Service can arrange it. Each bargaining unit will decide by majority vote whether it wants the Marin County Employees Association to continue representing them or whether a new union like the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, should represent them.

Personnel commissioners decided that no election will be held immediately in the first-line supervisors unit and the mid-management unit because these employees are now represented by the mid-management bargaining unit.

The bargaining units will be in addition to the Probation Workers Union Local 535, Social Workers Union Local 535, California Nurses Association, the Marin Deputy Sheriff's Association, and the Emergency unit (communications workers and firemen) of the Marin County Employees Association.

Historic Mission To Be Auctioned

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)— The historic, Spanish-style Mission Inn, which first opened its doors 12 years after the Civil War and hosted four American Presidents since, has fallen on hard times and will be auctioned Tuesday.

What began in 1876 as a 12-room adobe hotel was expanded in keeping with early California architecture and attracted Presidents Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt.

Hard times and rising debts in recent years made further operations risky and for three days in 1969 the lobby's ornate walnut doors were shut during bankruptcy proceedings.

Novato Council Due Employees' Pay Bid

The Novato City Council will consider a bid by city employees for a 5 per cent across-the-board pay raise at 8 p.m. tomorrow, at the community house.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has recommended a 2.5 per cent across-the-board pay raise, with additional hikes for other positions, including police officers.

Ruling For Reshuffled Roadmen

Marin County road crew members whose jobs were reshuffled without notice should be returned to their former posts, the Marin County Personnel Commission has ruled.

On April 9, Public Works Director Donald R. Frost ordered a reshuffling in the county corporaion yards at Greenbrae, Mill Valley and Nicasio. Sixteen men were assigned to different corporation yards, which meant that some had to travel 20 or 30 miles more to get to work.

The personnel commission suggested Friday that instead of reshuffling the men, a rotation of foremen should be considered if friction develops between a foreman and his crew.

The commission also asked the board of supervisors to adopt a resolution forbidding any county department from illegal wire-tapping or tapping of telephone conversations on recording devices without letting the other party know that the conversation is being recorded.

Robert B. McCreadie, chairman of the personnel commission, asked for action because of allegations made during last month's hearing for Frances I. Jennings, senior typist in the health department. Mrs. Jennings testified that Frank E. Kirby, administrative assistant in the health department, used recording devices to tape incoming phone calls.

Kirby and Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht fired Mrs. Jennings on March 19, but the personnel commission reinstated her on May 17 with back pay and full benefits.

Cranston Wants Lockheed Firings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., says executives who brought Lockheed "to the brink of bankruptcy" should be fired as a condition to federally guaranteed loans of $250 million.

Cranston made the appeal in weekend letters to President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally. He said some senators who oppose the federal guarantee would support it if the dismissal condition is part of the agreement.

The administration is asking Congress to guarantee repayment if Lockheed fails to make good on the bank loans. The Senate Banking Committee opens hearings on the bill June 7.

Marin Transit System Inc. On Board Agenda

The future of Marin Transit Systems Inc., a private bus firm operated by blacks from Marin City headquarters, will be discussed by the Marin County Transit District directors tomorrow morning at the Civic Center.

The transit district meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the supervisors' chambers on the third floor.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. want to know where the private bus firm will fit in when the Golden Gate Bridge District begins operating a comprehensive bus system between San Francisco and Sonoma County.

At present, the Marin Transit Systems Inc. operates the Mill Valley to Tiburon commuter bus service and the Central Marin bus service between Kentfield and Novato.

DRY RUN

Getting their feet wet in preparation for a kayak trip on the Sacramento River are these Boy Scouts of Troop 71 of Terra Linda. The kayaks being tested in Civic Center Lagoon Saturday were made by the boys themselves and are folding boats of brilliantly painted marine plywood and canvas. Eighteen members of the troop plan to ride their craft this summer about 100 miles downstream from Red Bluff to Colusa under the leadership of G. A. Darling of 730 Knockaboul Way, Terra Linda. The boats fold compactly enough to pile six on top of a car for the trip to Red Bluff.

Drunken Driving Arrest

A 56-year-old San Rafael man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of felony drunken driving after his auto collided with another in Greenbrae and injured the other driver. It was one of four injury accidents during the weekend reported today by the California Highway Patrol.

Arrested was Herbert Parker Sioussat of 1747 Lincoln Ave. who struck the other car after allegedly running a red light at the intersection of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Eliseo Drive.

Injured was Richard John Degan, 49, of 170 Eliseo Drive, who was treated at Marin General Hospital for neck and back sprains and multiple scrapes and bruises.

Officers said Degan was southbound on Eliseo at 2:35 p.m. when his auto was struck by Sioussat's, traveling east on Sir Francis Drake.

Sioussat, who is reportedly unemployed, was transported to Marin County Jail after failing a roadside sobriety test.

He was released on $1,200 bail and is scheduled to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

The highway patrol reported three other injury accidents since Friday.

Officers said Thomas Frederick Valentino, 22, of 348 Riviera Drive, and Ruth Levy, 20, of 116 Picnic Avenue, San Rafael, were injured Friday near the Meadow Club on Fairfax-Bolinas Road, west of Fairfax.

The accident occurred at 8:30 p.m., officers said, when Valentino lost control of his motorcycle on a curve.

Three persons were injured yesterday when their auto struck the rear of another on Highway 101 near Highway 17, officers said.

Driver of the auto, Hans Berger of San Francisco, was treated at Marin General for a bruised knee, while his wife was checked for chest pains. Their passenger, Harry Tsegeletos, 67, of 275 Karen Way, Tiburon, was treated for a neck sprain.

The three were injured at 1:30 p.m., officers said, when Berger, 60, struck the rear of an auto driven by George E. Prentice, 49, of Rumford, Me. Prentice reported no injury.

A 7-year-old Kentfield girl was treated yesterday for injuries sustained in a bicycle-motorcycle accident, the hospital said.

Officers said she was riding east on McAllister Avenue in Kentfield and crossed into the westbound lane in front of a motorcycle driven by William Arvid Grange, 19, of 118 McAllister.

ECHOES OF YESTERDAY'S WARS

The flag flew at half-staff yesterday as Marin residents held annual Memorial Day observances at San Rafael Military Academy. A last-minute switch from the traditional location at the old Courthouse, which burned last week, caused no drop in attendance, according to the publicity chairman, Alfred T. Little, who said that a bigger crowd was present than in previous years. He estimated attendance at about 200 persons. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kear

Two Injured In Weekend Accidents

Two youngsters were seriously injured in weekend accidents in Marin and Sonoma counties.

A Sleepy Hollow boy was hurt when he fell out of a car and a Cotati girl was injured when a car ran over her.

A Sleepy Hollow man trying to rush his son to the hospital after he fell out of the car ran into a parked car on San Anselmo Avenue near Oak Knoll Avenue, San Anselmo police reported today.

The son, James Young, 14, of 15 Estates Drive, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a concussion and multiple injuries.

John Young told police his son accidentally fell from the car about 5 p.m. and in attempt to get him to the hospital he ran into the parked car, causing minor damage to both cars.

A three-year-old Cotati girl was in satisfactory condition today in the intensive care unit of Santa Rosa Community Hospital after a car ran over her while she played in a driveway.

Christina Chin, address unknown, was injured at 4:30 p.m. Saturday when Ronnie Olson, 18, of 6621 Stony Point Road, Cotati, backed his car into the driveway, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Huge Riot Marks Okinawa Protest Among Japanese

TOKYO (UPI)—A police official said today a riot by 15,000 leftist students in downtown Tokyo Sunday was only the opening round of a series of demonstrations to protest the U.S.-Japanese agreement on Okinawa.

Police said 281 protesters were arrested and at least 136 persons, including 125 police officers, were injured.

Mitsuyoshi Nagata, deputy chief of the security department of the national police agency, said "we expect anti-Okinawa agreement demonstrations to continue until the agreement is initialed. We are hoping they will be peaceful and orderly."

Statue Created 2,600 Years Ago Is Stolen

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI)—A 2,600-year-old statue valued at $500,000 was stolen from a glass display case in the lobby of a planetarium, police disclosed today. "Numerous" people known to have been in the building when the foot-high alabaster figure was first missed Sunday were questioned, but police said they had no suspects.

The statue of King Taharga, discovered in a royal tomb in the Sudan and believed to date back to 650 B.C., was on loan from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

MUSIC REVIEW

By ROBERT M. NESS

An overflow crowd had a wonderful afternoon of wine, women and song yesterday during the Marin Symphony's "Cabaret Concert" at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Conductor Sandor Salgo opened the fast moving and varied program of French music with the overture to "Orpheus" by Offenbach. Having established a mood of gaiety, maestro Salgo led the orchestra through the whimsical but difficult "Sorcerer's Apprentice" by Dukas.

Soprano Gwen Curatilo provided the musical highlight of the afternoon with "Chants D'Auvergne," a series of French folk songs arranged for soprano and orchestra by Joseph Canteloube.

Mrs. Curatilo, whose stage presence is surpassed only by her elegant singing, introduced each of the five songs with a short explanation of its text. The songs varied in character from the humorous "Malurous Qu'o Uno Fenno" to a most elegant love song, "Bailero." Mrs. Curatilo's voice suffered from the amplification system, but not enough to destroy the charm of her singing.

Donald Beacock, a Marin reator who won the highest bid at the Symphony Guild's "whole world" auction to conduct the orchestra, made a grand entry wearing a white, tie, tails, wig, white tennis shoes and a yellow daisy in his lapel. He conducted an abridged overture to "Carmen" with a truly amazing baton technique.

He never missed a cue or lost a beat, even while wiping a tear from his eye with a red handkerchief during the toreador theme. For his efforts he was presented with a spray of wilted cabbage and loud applause.

Six high-kicking Stanford can-can dancers added spice of another sort to the afternoon. The choreography of Rhoda Martyn made all heads turn — Maestro Salgo even conducted with his back to the orchestra.

Barry Mineah's choir from the Marin Country Day School, with the help of Gwen Curatilo and the orchestra, belted out "La Marseillaise" to close a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon.

Following the concert a fine chicken dinner was served with elegant french pastries baked by symphony guild members. Eddy Walter, from the first violin section of the orchestra, led a trio of violin, accordion and bass serenading among the tables.

Black Students' Fear Told At Girl's Rites

But, he said, his voice breaking, "we forgot our fear and looked to our future." Then he began sobbing uncontrollably and had to be led away.

It was the most poignant eulogy Sunday to Jo Etha Collier, 18, a black girl shot to death from a passing car last Tuesday night shortly after she had graduated from Drew High School. Three white men have been charged with the slaying.

The high school auditorium, where the girl had received a special award for "good conduct and over-all good attitude" five days before, was jammed. Another 600 persons gathered outside.

The girl's parents, Essie and Paul Love, and her seven brothers sat on the front row of the stuffy auditorium. "Oh, we were so happy," cried Mrs. Love.

The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of Atlanta, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, gave the main eulogy.

"Tragedy has struck again in the state of Mississippi ... the forces of evil and destruction have robbed us of one of our most promising and talented young people," Abernathy told the mourners.

Looking down on the casket from the auditorium stage were Mayor W.O. Williford, Police Chief J.D. Fleming and Sunflower County Sheriff Jack Sessums. Also on the stage were Fayette Mayor Charles Evers, a black candidate for governor; and Aaron Henry, state president of the NAACP.

"In spite of our suffering, trials and tribulations, this is not enough," Abernathy said. "Young white men can still move down a highway and shoot our little black girl, who has sought to be somebody and lift herself up."

"This community, and all communities throughout Mississippi, must band together as never before, not to fight with bricks and bottles or guns and bullets, but to fight nonviolently for our constitutional and God-given rights."

There was continual sobbing in the audience. One woman had to be helped out. Others fanned themselves against the heat—the temperature outside was 80—with hand-fans and copies of the funeral program, which bore a picture of Jo Etha in her graduation cap

Big Heroin Haul

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The customs bureau announced today the seizure at San Juan, Puerto Rico, of 201 pounds of pure heroin valued at $30.3 million at "street prices."

Dixie Seeks Move Equal Financing

A campaign to gain support for legislation aimed at statewide school finance equalization is under way in the Dixie School District.

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell, following instructions voted last week by district trustees, has sent each principal in the district materials to be distributed in the community.

Pamphlets to be distributed contain information about Senate Bill 801 by Sen. Albert S. Rodda and Assembly Bill 1406 by Assemblyman Leory F. Greene, both Sacramento Democrats.

The bills, calling for a statewide property tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation, would reduce Dixie's rate by about $1, Campbell said.

Funds collected by the state from a statewide tax would be funneled back to local districts.

Campbell called the bills a "just cause" which would "markedly eliminate the variations . . . that exist now in school districts around (the) state."

Residents of the Dixie district are being asked to write or wire state legislators asking support of the bills, now in the committee stage.

Youth Hurt In Leap Off Freeway

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Sausalito youth was critically injured in a leap from the elevated Central Freeway, California Highway Patrol reported today.

Patrolmen said that the youth, hitchhiking home, was forced out of a motorist's car at 1 a.m. Saturday. The glare of headlights rushing toward him, scared him and he jumped the railing.

He fell 40 feet into the Division of Highways storage yard at 15th Street and San Bruno Avenue. He was unable to move. He was not found until 8 a.m. when his call for help was finally hear, patrolmen reported.

Parker told patrolmen that the motorist who picked him up demanded money. When Parker said he did not have any, he was forced out of the car, according to patrolmen.

Boat Hits Cable, Three Persons Die

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A small speedboat struck a ferry cable on Steamboat Slough, 20 miles south of here, killing three persons, including an infant, and injuring four others.

The accident occurred when the 16-foot speed boat ripped into the ferry cable stretched across the slough. The boat's cabin was sliced off but the hull remained intact.

Parents' Charge Due Hearing

The Tamalpais High School District board will meet in closed session tomorrow to continue discussion of charges against two teachers in its special education program for mentally retarded students.

Meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge, the board will first discuss salary negotiations with its negotiating team.

At about 8:30 p.m., it will again consider parents' charges of ineptitude against two instructors in the special education program, as well as listen to rebuttal from the teachers.

Sharp Reaction To Nixon Speech

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. John Dow, D-N.Y. criticized President Nixon Sunday for not admitting in a speech to army cadets that the nation's military and civilian leaders had made "serious" mistakes.

Dow, whose congressional district includes the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, said the President should have "admitted candidly and frankly that the civil and military leaders of the nation have made mistakes, serious ones ..."

He asked in a statement: "When the President attacks antimilitarism as he did at West Point (Saturday), does he mean that he favors militarism?"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Polio Vaccine Is Exception To Rule For Booster Shots

ONE ATTACK of a contagious disease, such as smallpox or German or regular measles, is thought to confer lasting immunity. But immunity wanes, unless periodic reexposure occurs. If the individual was immunized with a vaccine, booster doses or revaccination may be necessary to maintain resistance. This explains the recent resurgence of measles among children who received the vaccine a few years ago.

ORAL POLIO VACCINE is the exception, in that it produces permanent immunity. The live viruses invade the gastrointestinal tract and from here, they may spread to other persons who have not been vaccinated.

This constitutes a risk to the routine use of live polio virus vaccine but one worth taking, considering that polio has almost been completely eradicated. When the virus spreads from vaccinated persons to household contacts it usually produces a harmless infection.

But it also acts as an immunizer. Some investigators believe that it boosts the number of protective antibodies in persons previously vaccinated.

WHAT IS THE CHANCE of developing polio from oral vaccine that contains live, but weakened, polio viruses? In the United States, it is less than one case per million doses of the vaccine. For example, a total of 70 million doses were given from 1965 to 1967. There were eight cases among recipients of oral polio virus vaccine and 16 among people in close contact. All of the recipients who developed polio were children, nine of the 16 contacts were adults.

The risk of the vaccine is well worth the end results. Polio today has almost disappeared in this country. Only 15 years ago, we had 18,308 cases plus the unforgettable anxiety that existed in the summer when polio was rife.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail of stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

MUSTARD USER

G.A. writes: I'm 85 and put mustard on my meat snadwiches. My sister says it will eat away the lining of my stomach. Will it?

REPLY

No. We might paraphrase the remark Abraham Lincoln made when told that Grant drank; "Find out what kind of whisky Grant drinks and give it to the other generals." What kind of mustard do you use? It might help all of us reach 85.

OPEN HEART SURGERY

REPLY

The heart is opened and the defect is corrected under full view of the surgeon. This procedure requires rerouting of the blood around the heart during the few minutes it takes to do the operation. An artificial heart keeps the blood circulating.

VALVE SPASMS

REPLY

Yes and no. Many people with nervous stomach develop spasms of the pyloric valve, which is located at the exit of the structure. However, these spasms also develop in persons with peptic ulcer, gall bladder disease and other infections along the intestines.

COFFEE NERVES

V.O. writes: Why does coffee make some people nervous whereas others are not bothered by it?

REPLY

Cites Law Leaving Eagle Unprotected

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—A predator law dating back to the last century keeps Wyoming state officials from taking any effective action to protect golden eagles, an outdoor writer said Sunday. "Though federal law gives protection to both bald and golden eagles, Wyoming's predator law names the golden eagle as a bird that deserves no protection," said Charles Farmer.

Farmer criticized existing state law as archaic in the wake of the discovery of 48 dead bald and golden eagles in Wyoming since May 1. Many of the federally protected birds are believed to have fallen victim to Thallium, a poison set out for predator animals such as coyotes. "Wyoming law is years behind on the predator question," Farmer said. "But many of Wyoming's citizens are now giving second thoughts to it — now that a number of eagles have been poisoned."

Beat Poet Welch Is Still Sought

NEVADA CITY (UPI)—Beat generation poet Lew Welch, of Marin City, missing for more than a week, still is being sought by sheriff's deputies in the hills above Nevada City.

The 44-year-old San Francisco Bay Area poet left a note at the mountain home of a friend in Nevada County May 23 saying he was a failure and indicating he planned to take his own life.

Slaughtered Pig Gets Revenge

SINGAPORE (UPI)—A pig got revenge of sorts at a Singapore slaughter house Sunday.

Hospital attendants listed See Ee San, 32, as "temporarily unfit to work or talk" after the carcass of a pig he had slaughtered fell from a meat hook and knocked him unconscious. They said See stretched out on the slaughter house floor for a snooze just beneath a row of hanging pigs after he had finished work for the day.

Pacifist Hits Viet Expediency

NEW YORK (UPI) —Pacifist David Dellinger charged Sunday President Nixon would not end the war in Indochina until it was politically "advantageous."

Speaking at a baccalureate ceremony at Columbia University's St. Paul's Chapel, Dellinger, a defendant in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial said the Vietnam War would continue as long as it suited Nixon's political plans.

"When it will stop depends more than anything else on it is advantageous to the electoral plans of the president," Dellinger said.

Mill Valleyan Takes Bride On City Cable Car

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two Humboldt State College students were married Sunday during a ride from Victoria Park to Green Street aboard the No. 60 Powell-Hyde cable car.

Linda Ann Lindstrom of Modesto and Philip Burns Abbott of Mill Valley took their vows in front of about 15 friends who crowded into the car, which had been rented at the going rate of $90 for three hours.

Municipal Railway supervisor Lutheran Cann played the bridal march on No. 60's brass bell while the groom's father pronounced the couple man and wife.

Man, 25, Held In Assault

A 25-year-old San Rafael man was arrested at 1:30 a.m. yesterday after he attempted to rape a woman in her apartment, police reported today.

John Lee Arbuckle of 1135 Mission Street, was held in lieu of $12,500 bail in Marin County Jail on suspicion of assault with intent to commit rape and burglary. He is scheduled to appear tomorrow afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

According to police, Arbuckle climbed through the woman's window and tried to get in bed with her while she was asleep. She fought him off and called police who found him in the garage under the apartment.

5 Injured In 3 Car Crashes

Five persons received minor injuries in three separate accidents during the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported yesterday.

Three persons were injured in a three-car accident at 12:25 a.m. Saturday on Highway 101 at the Corte Madera overpass, patrolmen reported.

Mary T. Wolfe, 47, of Daly City was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut right ear. Rachael E. Slater, 51, of San Francisco was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut forehead. William Rapp, 33, of 56 Glen Drive Fairfax, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital for a bruised buttock.

Mrs. Wolfe and Slater were passengers in a car driven northbound on Highway 101 by Thomas E. Pierce, 47, of 1407 Fifth Avenue San Rafael.

It collided with the northbound car driven by Rapp and another northbound car driven by Hildred F. Rising, 56, of San Francisco.

William K. Freeman, 29, of 34 Corrillo Drive, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut left ear. His car hit the center divider at 12:15 a.m. Saturday northbound on Highway 101 patrolmen reported.

Kadirvelu C. Palani, 24, of Chicago, was to see his own doctor for a cut on his nose. His northbound car collided at 12:05 p.m. Saturday with another northbound car on Highway 101 at Rodeo Avenue.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Gemini.

American poet Walt Whitman was born May 31, 1819.

On this day in history:

In 1902 the Boer War ended as Great Britain and the South Africans signed a peace treaty.

In 1949 Mary Margaret McBride marked her 15th anniversary as a radio broadcaster and 35,000 fans turned out to honor her at Yankee Stadium in New York City.

In 1962 Adolph Eichmann was hanged for his part in the murders of six million Jews in Nazi Germany during World War II.

A thought for the day: Walt Whitman said: "In the faces of men and women I see God."

2 Americans Die In Train Crash

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Two Americans were among five persons killed in Sunday's collision of two passenger trains outside Amsterdam, police said today.

At least 35 others were injured in the crash about seven miles southeast of Amsterdam.

The Americans were identified as Maureen Louise Pruddy, 17, of Cumberland, Md., and Anthony Power, 18, of Minnesota. Power's hometown was not immediately known, a police spokesman said.

Deadpan Style Of Play Useful, But Don't Put On False Act

It would be improper to put on an act during the play of a hand in the hope of deceiving an opponent by your manner or by the expression on your face. There is nothing wrong with a "deadpan" style of play. You use no manner and no expression, but you are willing to let the opponents draw the wrong conclusion from the cards that you play.

TRY TO HORNSWOGGLE

Declarer took the opening spade lead with dummy's ace and promptly led out the ace and king of trumps. There would be no problem if the queen of trumps fell.

East discarded a low diamond on the second trump, and South thought briefly. If West had as many as three diamonds, the slam was safe: South could lead three top diamonds, discarding a spade from dummy and could then lead his last diamond to get rid of dummy's last spade while West ruffed.

But what to do if West had only two diamonds?

South saw a chance to hornswoggle West by simulating a finesse in diamonds. Declarer therefore led the four of clubs to dummy's king and returned the deuce of diamonds.

NEUTRAL AIR

East Naturally played a low diamond, and South played the queen with a neutral air. He didn't confidently reach for the trick; he simply waited for West's play before making any move at all. It would have been wrong if South had looked fearful, but there was nothing wrong in his looking absolutely free of emotion.

When South's "finesse" succeeded he cashed the ace of diamonds and then continued with the jack of diamonds. West should have stepped in with the queen of trumps to cash his spade trick, but he saw no need to ruff a trick that South was "obviously" going to ruff in the dummy.

JOYFUL THROW

So West discarded a spade, and declarer joyfully threw a spade from dummy. He then led the king of diamonds to discard dummy's last spade, not caring whether West ruffed or not.

Record-Breaking Mays Leads Giants To Big Sweep

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— They tore up home plate at Candlestick Park Sunday and give it to Willie Mays.

If the venerable one keeps on going the way he is right now they may wind up one day giving him the whole stadium.

Mays, who celebrated his 40th birthday three weeks ago, was as frisky as a new born colt Sunday while helping the San Francisco Giants whip the Montreal Expos twice, 5-4 and 8-7.

Mays hit his 10th homer of 1971 and the 638th of his career with a man on in the seventh of the opener and the run he scored then was the 1950th since that day in May in 1951 that the Giants called him up from the minors.

The two RBIs he got on the blow boosted his total to 1,827 and now is tied with Al Simmons for ninth place in the all-time list. Mays may never wind up with the record since it stands at 2,217 and is held by Babe Ruth. But the way he is playing these days don't bet against him

With 1,950 runs scored Mays now is the all-time National League champ, moving one ahead of Stan Musial. Far ahead of him at 2,245 stands Ty Cobb.

Right after the second game, which Tito Fuentes won for the Giants with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the ninth, workmen removed home plate and took it to Mays in the clubhouse.

They caught Mays in the whirlpool bath, one of his favorite hangouts these days, and when a grateful manager Charlie Fox presented it, Willie said "Gee, I'm tired."

He must have been too, since he played the entire 18 innings of the long doubleheader, the first game in center and the second at first in place of the ailing Willie McCovey.

In all, Mays hit a homer and a double, walked three times, scored a run, drove in two and stole his sixth base of the season. No wonder he was tired.

"I played two because Mac is hurting worse than I am," said Mays. "Anyway I don't get as tired at first as I do in the outfield. That standing around is more tiring."

Mays would love a day off today when the Giants, who have won four in a row, seven of their last eight and widened their lead in the N.L. West to 10 1-2 games, entertain the New York Mets, but chances are he'll be in the lineup, because he likes to play against New York.

They took a 4-1 lead into the seventh of the first game only to see Mays snatch victory away from them, and in the nightcap they were ahead 7-5 going into the bottom of the ninth when the roof fell in for the second time in the same day.

Bobby Bonds hit his 13th homer with a mate aboard in the seventh to get the Giants close at 7-5 after the Expos had routed Rich Robertson in the fourth with seven hits and five runs.

Then in the ninth Dick Dietz walked to lead off the inning and Bonds singled. Chris Speier hit into a forceout and Mays flied out deep to right.

Mike Marshall, who had stopped the Giants since Bonds' homer after John Strohmayer was banged out, dug his own grave by walking pinch-hitter Russ Gibson to load the bases. He followed with a wild pitch and compounded things by walking Al Gallagher to refill the bases.

It seemed strange that Montreal manager Gene Mauch stayed with him, but he did, and it all turned sour when Fuentes lined his game-winning hit to center.

Fuentes, long a fringe player for the Giants, has really blossomed of late, especially as a left-handed hitter. Tito had to teach himself to hit left-handed after he discovered he could never make his way in the majors as a righthanded swinger. That was two and a half years ago.

Now, he says, he feels more confident swinging left than right.

"I don't know how to explain it," said Fuentes, "But when I hit lefthanded now I feel I can get a hit every time. I wish I could feel the same way when I bat right."

As a righthanded swinger Tito is batting less than .200 but as a lefty he's close to .300.

Gaylord Perry, with relief help from Jerry Johnson, was the opening game winner and now is 6-2. Steve Hamilton, the last of five pitchers, won the nightcap for his first victory with San Francisco.

RECORD BREAKING 500-MILER

Al Unser Vows All-Out Try For Third Straight

By KURT FREUDENTHAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Nobody has ever won auto racing's richest event, the Indianapolis "500" three times in a row, but Al Unser vowed today he will give it a mighty try.

Dapper Al, a member of the famed racing clan from Albuquerque, N.M., made it two in a row Saturday in a nervy, wreck-marred Memorial Holiday weekend chase that was a record-smasher in everything but his own personal payoff.

"This will be a pretty hard act to follow," he conceded, "but I'll be here next year trying again."

In his royal blue, turbo-charged, Ford-powered machine tuned to near perfection, Unser led 103 of the 200-lap grind, including the last 82, to win by 23 seconds over runner-up Peter Revson of New York, the pole sitter, at an average speed of 157.735 miles per hour. That was nearly a mile faster than the old record set by Mario Andretti two years ago.

He did it despite the fact three crashes and a spin slowed the pace of the field for 53 minutes and left two drivers injured while a pace car fiasco at the start of the race injured 24, one of them critically.

Only 12 machines were running at the finish and only the top five went the distance. Revson also beat Andretti's old record, but his was the only M16 British-built McLaren car that held up.

From a financial standpoint, the race before nearly 300,000 fans was a huge success. Speedway owner Tony Hulman Sunday night distributed a record purse of $1,001,604—only slightly more than last year—but it was racing's second million dollar purse.

However, Unser's share of $238,454 was more than $33,000 less than he split with his crew last year when he led 190 of the 200 laps. While the speedway management increased its own jackpot by more than $33,000, accessory prizes fell off nearly that much—from $205,000 to about $174,000.

Revson collected $103,198, third-place A.J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., a three-time race winner, $64,759.

Rounding out the top 10 were Jim Malloy, Denver, Colo., $38,669; Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., $32,447; Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala., $30,093; Bud Tingelstad, Indianapolis, $28,206; Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., also the speedway's "rookie of the year," $27,658; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., $22,980, and Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., $24,419.

All 33 starters shared in the payoff.

Mike Mosley, Brownsburg, Ind., suffered serious injuries, including burns, when his car crashed into the wall and burst into flames late in the race. Former "500" winner Bobby Unser, Al's brother who won the race in 1968, spun and also hit the wall trying to avoid Mosley.

Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., was the other driver injured, although not seriously, in a spectacular wreck triggered when another racer's engine blew, spilling oil in which three cars spun and were eliminated.

Crashes took out seven cars and wrecked that of Mark Donohue, Media, Pa., when Mosley's burning machine crashed into Donohue's while it was parked in the infield.

Donohue, in one of the McLarens, had run away from the field in the first 50 laps but his machine conked out with gear trouble after 66 tours around the 2 1-2-mile oval. He finished 25th.

Al Unser himself had a close call, blazing down the home stretch just after England's Dave Hobbs and Rick Muther, Laguna Beach, Calif., collided in a spectacular wreck in giew of many thousands of fans. He got by, all right, but a piece of debris hit his helmet.

The lead changed hands 13 times, with Bobby Unser, Joe Leonard, and Lloyd Ruby the other front-runners. Donohue recorded the fastest lap ever in the "500", 174.961 m.p.h., just before he dropped out, shattering the old mark of 168.666 by Ruby three years ago.

Al Unser said he felt certain his winning speed easily could have been 165 or 170 m.p.h., had it not been for the nearly one hour running under the yellow caution light.

He made four pit stops, one unscheduled under the yellow light, for a total of 92 seconds, for refueling and to change three tires.

Unser became the fourth speedway champion to win two years running, the first since the late Bill Vukovich in the 1950s.

The pace car, driven by a local auto dealer, went out of control near the end of the pit apron and slammed into a temporary platform on which about 50 photographers were perched at the start of the race.

The men were spilled like ten pins and one of them, Dr. Vincente Alvarez, an orthopedic surgeon from Buenos Aires, Argentina, who has covered the "500" for many years, suffered a basal skull fracture and other injuries.

Teacher Wins Marathon

Richard Delgado, 31, of Woodacre, an articulate spokesman against the athletic establishment with which he runs, proved again Saturday that he's one of the best as he won the 26-mile, 385-yard Golden Gate Marathon in the record time of 2:31.37.

Delgado, a San Rafael High School mathematics teacher, won the Tiburon-to-San Francisco race over the windy course by nearly five minutes over his nearest competitor.

In only his third marathon, Delgado, representing the West Valley Track Club, broke the record that was set last year by Skip Houk by two and one-half minutes.

An outspoken anti-war protester, Delgado once ran a 64-day relay race with three other men across the United States to talk with men from President Johnson's office about the country's Vietnam policy.

He won the Pacific Association of the AAU's annual 20-kilomenter run in January of 1970, and later on in the year won the Novato Ridge Run also in record time.

In August of last year he finished second in the Dipsea run from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach, despite the fact that, as he puts it "The Dipsea is not a fair competitive running test, and it's too dangerous."

In recognition of all these triumphs, Delgado was named Outstanding Runner of the Year in the Pacific Association for 1970.

Despite this honor, Delgado minimizes his chances of making the Olympics, noting that, "One must be at least in the top three in his event, and the best I have ever been ranked is 10th in the 10,000-meter run."

After his marathon win Saturday, Delgado says he plans to rest from marathons for a while, which he says drily, "are quite tiring."

He began running in the Marine Corps, after passing up high school and college athletics because "Coaches and the athletic establishment tend to deaden the creativity of athletics."

CHAMPS TOURNAMENT

Marin Catholic Reaches Finals

By PAUL CANE

Strong-armed Jim Petray provided the relief pitching, and Paul Riccardi and Tom Olson supplied the hitting, as Marin Catholic eased by Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park 10-2, and into the finals of the Redwood High School Baseball Tournament of Champions.

The victory, witnessed by about 1,700 enthusiastic fans at Albert Park in San Rafael Saturday night, swept the Wildcats into the championship game against Kennedy High School of Fremont this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Kennedy Titans, who blasted Sunset High of Hayward 9-0 in their semi-final game Saturday, were led by pitcher Stan Owsely, who tossed the six-hit shutout.

In the losers' bracket, Moreau High of Hayward handed Castlemont High of Oakland its second straight loss, 2-0, while Richmond High edged Ygnacio Valley of Concord 2-1 in Saturday afternoon contests.

Petray, coming in relief for starter Mickey Simmons, struck out seven and did not allow a hit in his two and one-third innings of work for Marin Catholic. In one stretch, he struck out four men out of five, mostly using a wicked curveball, which, according to Wildcat coach Gary Hughes, " ... was as good as the best he's had all year."

Olson, winning pitcher in the first-round Marin Catholic shutout over Castlemont, starred in right field for the Wildcats Saturday. Olson scored three runs and had two hits, including a mammoth third-inning triple. Hughes said he planned to go with Olson today as Marin Catholic went for its second Tourney of title.

The Wildcats are the only Marin team to win the TOC, back in 1966.

Perhaps the unsung hero all year for Marin Catholic proved to be the star Saturday, as catcher Paul Riccardi sparked the 10-run Wildcat attack with a smashing second-inning triple,

A's Rained Out; Take On Yankees

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Oakland A's, frontrunners in the American League West division, meet the New York Yankees today in a doubleheader.

The A's, who lead second-place Minnesota by 7 1-2 games, left Boston with a split after Sunday's contest was rained out. The Red Sox stopped Vida Blue's win streak Friday night by edging Oakland, 4-3. It was Blue's second loss of the year—against 10 wins.

But the A's came back Saturday to outslug East division leading Boston, 12-8.

Jim Hunter (8-2) was to pitch the first contest for Oakland today against the lefthander Mike Kekich (1-0). John Odom, trying to regain his form after arm problems, will go against another Yankee lefthander, Fritz Peterson (4-4) in the second game. Odom hasn't won a game this season and has one loss.

The A's face New York for a single game Tuesday, then get two days off before moving on to Washington for a three-game weekend series with the Senators. After the Washington series, Oakland returns home June 8 against Boston.

SMASHUP AT INDIANAPOLIS

Allisons Dominate 600 Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—The brothers Allison of Hueytown, Ala., will keep the World 600 Grand National division stock car racing crown in the family for another year.

This time, "big brother" Bobby is wearing it. And he's counting that $29,400 first prize money that goes with the Charlotte Motor Speedway victory.

He took it from Donnie, the defending champ, Sunday after beating the younger brother by nearly a full lap in the 600-mile event, winning in a record four hours 16 minutes and 20 seconds at an average speed of 140.442 miles per hour.

It was the first time in four Grand National events in which the Mercury-driving brothers finished one-two that Bobby was on top.

A long duel with pole-sitter Charlie Glotzbach in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo ended with Glotzbach smashing into the wall near the first turn on lap 234 and Bobby went ahead to stay.

At that point the nature of the race changed from the Allison versus Glotzbach to Bobby against Donnie. Most of the lead changes up to lap 234 were between Glotzbach and Bobby.

There were 13 lead changes in the race, 10 of them when either Glotzbach or Bobby Allison went to the fore. Three other cars led one lap apiece, but that was when one of the power-houses dove into the pits.

Donnie was second to Bobby most of the race, he got as far behind as two laps at one point, but on lap 367 of the 400-lap event, Donnie went by his older brother to get in the same lap for the finish.

"After he got by me, I decided to stay behind him, but I wanted to keep him in sight," Bobby said.

It was Donnie's second high speed marathon in as many days. Saturday he drove a Coyote in the Indianapolis 500, where he finished sixth. It was because of the Indy 500 commitment that Donnie was unable to make first day qualifying here and had to settle for the 13th starting position in a car that had made six straight poles this year.

"I'm sure that if he had more time to practice, he'd have been a lot tougher to contend with," said Bobby.

Plymouth driver Pete Hamilton, Richard Petty's former factory-backed teammate crossed the line third, one lap down, and Petty finished fourth. Petty, who has won more races than any Grand National driver in history and who will pass the $1 million mark in earnings this year, has never won at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Trevino Triumphs In Memphis Golf

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Lee Trevino, the former Army sergeant who has earned more than a half-million dollars in less than four years on the pro golf tour, won the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic Sunday and promised to end his self-imposed exile from the Masters.

Trevino, a member of the pro tour since mid-1967, pocketed $35,000 for a 12 under par 268 for the 72 holes at Colonial Country Club to boost his winnings for the year to $115,785.

It was good enough to move him into second place on the money winning list behind Jack Nicklaus, who has won $131,788 and skipped the tournament here.

The victory boosted his career earning to $529,000, moving him to 14th on the all-time winners list and making him the 15th golfer to reach the half-million dollar mark.

Trevino played last at the Masters in 1969 and said he would not play again because the course did not suit his game. Sunday, he told newsmen he had changed his mind and would go back next year because of Nicklaus.

Trevino said he and Nicklaus were playing an exhibition match at West Palm Beach, Fla., when Nicklaus told him to go back to the Masters because "You don't really realize how good you can play this game."

Trevino put together 66-66-69-67 on the par 70 course to complete play in the 14th annual tournament here for the final three days. His lead was cut to a single stroke Sunday when he bogied the par four 8th hole.

He still managed to turn the front nine at even par, "according to game plan," birdied No. 10 and was never seriously challenged after that.

Earning $12,760 each for their four-way tie for second place were Jerry Heard, Hale Irwin, Randy Wolff and Lee Elder.

Heard and Wolff, both in their third year on the tour, came in with final round 64s. Elder had a 66 and Irwin had a 68.

Larry Ziegler, who held the first day lead with an eight under par 62, finished the tournament at 273 —five strokes behind Trevino —and tied with Don January for third place.

Trevino began picking up speed on the backside where he trimmed par by three strokes with birdies on two of the three par five holes in addition to the par four 298 10th hole.

"I was playing it cozy on the front nine," Trevino said. "But everything went according to game plan."

"I made the turn even and I made No. 10," he said.

"My goal is to win $1 million playing golf," he said. "Probably when I reach that goal I'll go on and try for something else.

"The gallery and the people who sponsor consider me one of the men who can help make a tournament successful because I draw crowds," Trevino said. "It puts additional pressure on me, but I always try to do well for this reason.

"I want to try to give something back to golf by helping make it more successful in return for what I take from it," he said.

Marin Catholic '9' Shoots For Title

After Riccardi's triple, first baseman Scott Cozza lofted a high fly to center, scoring Riccardi easily for the third Wildcat run.

Starter Simmons was not as sharp as he had been during the league season, but was fairly effective until the third, where Rancho Cotate combined a walk, a single, and an error by shortstop Steve Sherry into its first run.

In the way of atonement, Sherry bombed a 6th inning double into the right-center field alley, scoring Olson who was on via a base-on-balls. Sherry was cut down trying to stretch his hit into a triple, but Olson had scored the 10th and last Marin Catholic run long before.

The only other run for obviously outclassed Rancho Cotate came on a tremendous left-field home run by Cougar third baseman Ron Sproat. The shot followed the foul line all the way and dropped over the fence, 10 yards beyond disgruntled left fielder Don Bianchini.

Olson, who tossed a two-hitter in the shutout win over Castlemont Friday, carried the County's hopes into the finals today, as Kennedy loomed the only threat to a Wildcat first place finish.

Kennedy was impressive in its win over Sunset, as Owsley led the Titans to a 9-0 shutout in six innings. A tournament rule which allows the early termination of any game, if one team is ahead by nine runs was invoked in Kennedy's powerful victory.

The third-place winner was decided at 2 p.m. this afternoon in the contest between Sunset and Rancho Cotate.

Moreau bounced back from a first-round loss to Rancho Cotate with a no-hit victory over Castlemont. Mariner pitchers Rocque Samarron and Bill Mulgrew combined for the no-hit, no-run victory.

Although Moreau only got two hits itself, two errors on Castlemont shortstop Robert Sparks, coupled with a wild pitch from Derek Williams, proved to be enough for two runs and the victory.

A two-run first inning by Richmond offset back-to-back triples by Ygnacio's Ron Thompson and Bill Piona, as Ygnacio dropped the 2-1 decision.

The consolation game was played at noon today between Moreau and Richmond, while at 10 a.m. Ygnacio Valley and Castlemont battled for seventh place in the tourney.

Baylor May Coach Washington

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Elgin Baylor, captain of the Los Angeles Lakers, today had under consideration an offer to become the University of Washington's head basketball coach.

But beyond confirming he had been contacted by the huskies, Baylor declined comment on the bid for him to replace Tex Winter, who resigned to take over the coaching job with the San Diego Rockets of the NBA.

Baylor has been a popular figure in the Seattle area since he starred for the Seattle University as an undergraduate and all American performer.

The 36-year-old Baylor appeared in only two games for the Lakers last season as a result of a torn Achilles tendon.

INFORMAL CEREMONY — San Francisco Giants Willie Mays receives home plate from Manager Charlie Fox after moving into first place on the National League's all-time runs scored list on his home run yesterday. Baltimore manager Earl Weaver probably had Mike Cuellar in mind when he said that his pitching staff this season is better than the staff that led the Orioles to the world championship in 1970.

Although the Orioles have had sub-par performances from both Dave McNally and Pat Dobson thus far, Cuellar keeps rolling right along. He recorded his fifth straight victory and seventh of the season Sunday as the Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5.

The other members of the Orioles starting rotation are either keeping pace or are behind their totals of last season. McNanlly is 6-4 for the season compared to the 8-3 mark he had at this time last year. Jim Palmer has kept pace with the 7-2 record he posted last season. Dobson, the fourth member of the starting rotation, spent last season with the San Diego Padres in the National League.

But the veteran Baltimore skipper still contends that his mound corps this season is superior to his 1970 staff.

"I've said all along that I think our pitching staff is better than last year's," Weaver said, but Cuellar is the only member lending support to his manager's contention, showing a marked improvement over last season. Cuellar, who finished last season with a 24-8 record, was only 5-4 at this stage last year. But the Cuban lefthander posted his seventh victory in eight decisions with his win over the Twins as the Orioles moved to within 2 1-2 games of the league-leading Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

Cuellar was tagged for a two-run homer by Tony Oliva and solo homers by Leo Cardenas and Steve Braun before being relieved by Eddie Watt in the ninth inning.

Brooks Robinson scored the third run in a three-run eighth inning outburst thanks to reliever Jim Strickland's wild pitch. The Orioles filled the bases in the eighth on two walks by Ron Perranoski and a bunt single by Robinson. Ellie Hendricks drove in one run with an infield out and Mark Belanger singled home the second run before Strickland's wild pitch.

In other American League games, Detroit defeated Milwaukee 9-5, Chicago edged Cleveland 3-2 in 10 innings, and New York whipped California, 7-4. Kansas City at Washington and Oakland at Boston were postponed because of rain.

Al Kaline's three-run homer climaxed a five-run ninth inning and paced Detroit to victory.

Willie Mays' records continue to grow and grow —just like that San Francisco Giant lead in the National League West.

Mays took another step toward baseball immortality and the Giants another toward a runaway division title victory Sunday in a 5-4 and 8-7 sweep of the Montreal Expos.

Mays hit his 10th homer of the season and the 638th of his career in the first game to raise his career runs scored total to an N.L. high of 1,950. The total surpassed by one the previous mark held by Stan Musial and he scored No. 1,951 in the second game. The major league record of 2,244 is held by Ty Cobb.

Tito Fuentes' bases-filled single with two out in the ninth inning enabled the Giants to win the second game and ballooned their West Division lead to 10 1-2 games —one of the largest ever held by a team on Memorial Day.

Mays' two-run homer climaxed a three-run seventh inning rally which earned Gaylord Perry his sixth win of the season in the opener. The two RBIs also raised Mays' career total to 1,827 —tying him with Al Simmons for ninth place on the all-time list. Jerry Johnson finished up for the Giants and received credit for his sixth save.

Joe Hauge and Jose Cardenal each drove in three runs and Lou Brock ran his consecutive-game hitting streak to 26 as the Cardinals bombed Phil Niekro and three relievers with a 12-hit attack. Steve Carlton, 10-19 in 1970, pitched an eight-hitter to raise his 1971 mark to 9-2. Brock has now hit safely in 42 of the Cardinals' 48 games.

Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente and Bob Robertson led a 16-hit Pittsburgh attack with homers as the Cubs' Ken Holtzman was saddled with his sixth defeat against two victories. Bob Moose pitched a three-hitter and struck out seven, raising his record to 4-2. Dave Cash had four hits for the Pirates.

First baseman John Mayberry's error on Bernie Carbo's seven-inning grounder enabled Johnny Bench to score the winning run for the Reds and give rookie Ross Grimsley his second win. Bench was 0-for-21 when he beat out an infield hit with one out in the seventh and he went to second when Tony Perez, hitless in 20 trips, beat out a hit to short prior to Mayberry's error. Jack Billingham was the loser.

The Dodgers pulled out their victory over the Phillies when pinch-hitter Willie Crawford delivered a sacrifice fly with one out in the 12th inning. Richie Allen, who singled with none out for his third hit of the game, and went to third on a single by Jim Lefebvre, scored the run that gave reliever Jim Brewer his third win against one defeat. Darrell Brandon, pitching in relief of starter Ken Reynolds, suffered his second setback.

Ivan Murrell's two-run, tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning enabled San Diego's Clay Kirby to win his third game of the season while dealing the Mets' Ray Sadecki his first loss. Murrell's second homer of the season came after Nate Colbert walked. Ed Kranepool homered for the Mets in a two-run second inning.

Cal Relays Heroes To Bypass Berkeley

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Modesto gang will be in Berkeley this week for the Kennedy Games, a major tuneup for the NCAA and AAU track and field championships now less than three weeks away.

But among the missing will be Red Milburn and Arne Kvalheim, who were the individual stars of the California relays at Modesto Saturday.

Milburn won meet honors as the outstanding athlete after he beat Tommy White and Olympic hero Willie Davenport in the 120 high hurdles while Kvalheim, the durable Norweigian via the University of Oregon, took the two mile run in 8:30.2, second fastest in the world this year.

Milburn, a sophomore at Southern University who burst on the national scene when he won the drake relays high hurdles in 13.3, took the event in Modesto in 13.5. Earlier he ran a heat in 13.4, which topped the meet record of 13.5 held by Hayes Jones since, 1962.

Milburn is going home for a rest before coming West again for the NCAA Championships at Seattle and the AAU Championships at Eugene, Ore., in mid-June. The AAU is an important meet this year for athletes interested in a busy summer. A one-two finish in the AAU will win berths for the bit United States-Russian meet, also at Berkeley, on July 2-3, and the Pan American Games, starting on July 30 in Cali, Colombia.

Milburn definitely has his heart set on the Russian meet and the Pan-Am games. Although he says he is not impressed with setting records.

Also missing at Berkeley this Saturday will be Jean-Louis Ravelomanantsoa of Madagascar and Westmont (Calif.) College. He won the Cal Relays 100 in a fine 9.3, which is only one tenth off the best in the world this year.

One of the men who has done 9.2 this year is Willie Deckard of Southern California. Deckard scratched from the 100 and 220 in the Cal Relays but ran anchor for the Trojan 440 and 880 relay teams. He helped USC take the shorter relay in the meet equalling time of 39.4 but was passed by Don Quarrie of UCLA in the final strides of the 880 as a team from the Southern California Striders won in 1:22.3, which set a meet record.

Deckard and Quarrie resume the rivalry in the Kennedy Games' 100 and 220 as well as the 440 and 880 relays.

John Smith of UCLA, winner of the Cal Relays 440 in 46.1; Randy Matson, who took the shot with a throw of 67-10; George Frenn, who took the hammer at 224-8, which is the second best throw in the world this year; Jay Silvester, who won the discus at 208-5; Arnie Robinson, winner of the long jump at 26-4 3-4; Milan Tiff, who took the triple jump at 52-1 1-4, and Reynaldo Brown, winner of the high jump at 7-2, all come back for the Kennedy Games.

Fox Okays Trade With Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The decision by the San Francisco Giants to trade rookie outfielder George Foster to Cincinnati drew some criticism from Giants' players, but manager Charlie Fox defended the exchange.

Foster, who was batting .267 for the year, was traded Saturday to the Reds for shortstop Frank Duffy, a former Stanford player, and pitcher Vern Geishert. Both Duffy and Geishert were on the Reds' Indianapolis farm team.

Players critical of the trade obviously chose to remain unidentified, but they said the club needs outfield help more than pitching and infield strength.

"Who's going to play the outfield?" one player asked. "The trade deadline is June 15. At least they could have waited until Ken Henderson was ready to play."

But Fox said the acquisition of Duffy would give the Giants some backup insurance in the infield.

"We had good reports on Duffy when he was at Stanford," Fox said. "He has great lateral movement, which is a requisite at Candlestick on the astroturf. We feel he can help us at third and second bases, as well as shortstop."

Geishert, 25, has been assigned to the Giants' Phoenix farm team. Originally signed by the California Angels, Geishert, a righthander, went to the Reds in 1969 as part of the trade that sent Alex Johnson to the Angels. Last season, he was 12-13 with Indianapolis and he was 3-2 there this year.

Housing At Record High Of 21 Years

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Nationwide housing starts during the first quarter of 1971 reached the highest level in 21 years.

This forecasts probably housing starts for the year at approximately 1.8 million units. Comparable activity in 1950 produced 1.9 million units.

The April rate was 63 per cent higher than the same month last year.

These facts were revealed by Richard B. Levine, president of the New York Mercantile Exchange, in his speech to the Commodity Club of San Francisco.

His talk, titled "The Outlook for the Plywood Industry," was heard by 52 major lumber and plywood producers who attended the lumber and plywood futures workshop.

Levine outlined a number of advantages of the New York Mercantile Exchange's new plywood futures contract as including price protection against highly volatile and unpredictable prices, hedging advantages to the producer, wholesaler, exporter and mass builder, and profit protection in the face of large inventory needs.

Bank Honored For Aid To Art

WASHINGTON, D.C. (BW) — Crocker-Citizens National Bank has received an award for support of the fine and performing arts in the fifth annual Esquire Magazine-Business Committee for the Arts "Business in the Arts" awards program.

The bank was one of 29 winners.

Crocker-Citizens supported a program in 1970 which included a grant for a new production of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" to the San Francisco Opera Co.; presentation of both the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra and the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in special concerts; and the assembling of a commemorative exhibition, "A Century of California Painting," which was viewed by some 500,000 persons while on display in major California cities.

German-U.S. Trade Rises

German-U.S. trade rose sharply during the first two months of this year, the German-American Chamber of Commerce reported on April 27.

American exports to the Federal Republic increased by 30 per cent to a total of $623.6 million in January and February of 1971, compared to the same months last year.

East Bay Steel Mill Seeks Water Purity

PITTSBURG (BW) — Construction has begun on a new plantwide water treatment system for U.S. Steel's Pittsburg works, (Contra Costa County), John V. Dorman, plant superintendent, has announced.

"We're making a multimillion dollar investment to help improve the environment," Dorman said, "which is a big step beyond just pollution control."

The industrial treatment facilities will include three sewer systems to collect process and cooling water, a new central chemical treatment plant equipped with two larged clarifiers and a sludge drying system for accumulation of waste solids.

Excavation work at the western end of the plant has started and contracts for most of the complex system have already been awarded.

"We will move ahead with construction work as rapidly as possible," Dorman announced. "This is a top priority project which is now scheduled for completion by the end of next year."

Present water quality control facilities will continue to operate while the new system is being built. These include new settling basins and treatment facilities added last fall.

Profit Rise By Leisure Firm Told

MINNEAPOLIS (BW) — Leisure Dynamics Inc. has reported net income from operations for the fiscal year ended March 31 increased 157 per cent over the previous year's results.

Net income from operations totaled $1,380,797, equal to 63 cents per share, for the 1971 fiscal year, up from $536,695, or 26 cents per share, in fiscal 1970. Extraordinary items added $269,000, or 13 cents per share, to net income in fiscal 1970.

Net sales were $30,109,120 for fiscal 1971, up 36 per cent from $22,201,395 in the previous year.

"We are pleased with this strong sales and profit performance in the face of a very difficult economic climate," said L. Preston Gise Jr., president, and M. Allen Hatfield, executive vice president, in a joint statement.

Leisure Dynamics was formed in January 1969 to acquire, develop and manage established businesses in leisure activity fields. Its two main operating units are L. M. Cox Manufacturing Co. Inc., of Santa Ana, the nation's leading producer of gas engine powered model airplanes, cars and boats; and Lakeside Industries, Minneapolis, which produces family games, toys and advertising displays.

Operations of three other firms acquired by the company — Merry Manufacturing Co., CO-5 Co., and the Funtastic Division of KMS Industries — have been consolidated into the Lakeside facility.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I purchased shares of Kentucky Fried Chicken at 48½. Even if I exchange them for Heublein shares, I will realize a loss. Should I sell or hold for the exchange offer? — H.C.

A. If you sell your shares of Kentucky Fried Chicken, at current quotes you would receive $21.75 per share. However, should the revised merger terms between Heublein and Kentucky be approved by directors and shareholders of both firms, you would receive .53 Heublein share for each Kentucky share, equal to $25.63 - a 17 per cent premium - based on Heublein's recent price. Moreover, not only would you be further ahead financially, but your new shares in the merged company would represent a more attractive investment.

Heublein dominates the U.S. vodka market and is leading producer of bottled and canned cocktails, while Kentucky Fried Chicken is a major fast food franchiser. Aided by four mergers since 1964, Heublein's sales and earnings have increased significantly in each year of the past decade. Prospects for a continuation of this trend are enhanced by KFC's established growth pattern and strong market penetration. Hold for the exchange.

Q. I plan to retire next year at 65 on Social Security of $210 monthly. I have $30,000 in savings, part of which I would like to help cover 2 years' college tuition for my son and for retirement income afterward. What do you think of high coupon BB-rated bonds? — M.Z.

A. The risk inherent in this class of bond is apt to be greater than you should assume under the circumstances. However, there are other better quality high coupon bonds available which would be suitable.

Boise Cascade Credit 10s of 1975 and Walter Heller 9½s of 1989, rated BBB and A respectively, would serve your purpose. Both sell at a premium, pay interest in June and December and would return $1,950 on a $21,000 investment, the maximum I would advise you to invest.

McKesson Share Earnings Drop

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — For its fiscal year ended March 31 Foremost-McKesson Inc. reported sales of $1,738,349,000 as compared with $1,691,609,000 for the previous fiscal year.

Income from operations was $24,993,000, or $1.60 of primary earnings per common share, as compared with $29,203,000, or $2 per share, for the previous year.

Fiscal 1971 results included a provision for extraordinary charge of $7.5 million, equivalent to 58 cents per common share. Fully diluted earnings after the extraordinary charge were $1.01 per common share.

'Nameless, Faceless' Migrant Flounders In Adverse Straits

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The plight of the "nameless, faceless" migrant worker is one of America's most serious problems, according to a two-year research project.

"The migrant is a nameless, faceless individual, both while traveling in the 'stream' and while living in his home state," Margaret Garrity told reporters Friday in releasing the Manpower Evaluation and Development Institute's Migrant Research Project (MRP).

"You can understand how migrants could turn up missing and no one would know. Their relatives would not report them missing to public agencies. They don't go to public agencies."

Then she added: "What is happening to the migrant and his children is one of the most serious problems the nation faces."

MRP used $200,000 of a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity to conduct the study. It was based on interviews with 13,000 farm worker families, 100 state and county welfare administrators and 175 crew-leaders and growers.

The 67-page report was written by Miss Garrity, a native of Brookfield, Mo., former deputy director of OEO's migratory worker division, and Mrs. Shirley Sandage, Mason City, Iowa, MRP deputy director.

The study pictured the 500,000 migrant workers in the United States as persons who make far below poverty-level wages, get little benefit from the nation's welfare programs —and may be totally mechanized out of a job by the mid-1970s.

The average size of the migrant family is 6.4 and its average annual income is $2,100 a year. The Agriculture Department's poverty income level for a family of 4 is $3,720.

Six out of 10 migrants are children, and 40 per cent of these children will travel at least five years of their lives in the migrant stream.

The study found:

—Only 9 per cent of the migratory workers had ever applied for social welfare benefits.

—Many of them did not know about such programs.

—"Emotional barriers" kept them from participating in the programs.

—Regulatory barriers also kept them from receiving benefits.

The families were handicapped by not being able to speak English very well. They face the simple, but often overwhelming problem of working all day, and not being able to apply for benefits because the welfare offices were closed when they were off work.

Often they could not get food stamps because the food stamps were kept in bank vaults that had to be locked up in mid-afternoon each day when the banks got ready to close.

Miss Garrity said the study made two main recommendations:

—That once-a-year national certifications be established for food stamp eligibility. Now migrant workers must re-apply each time they move into another county and their eligibility is based on the current month's income that may be higher than usual during the peak earning months of July and August.

—That county welfare offices issue vouchers that migrant workers could present at food stores at any time.

MRP found that by 1975, mechanization for sugar beets, sour cherries, grapes and tomatoes will be about 100 per cent complete, and 80 per cent for sweet cherries and pickles.

"For the migrant worker, displaced from his employment by the machine, deprived by lack of education and training, the determination of states to cut back on welfare assistance may mean a death sentence unparalleled in history since the industrial revolution of the 19th Century," it said.

Bank Move On IRS Tax Levy

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Wells Fargo Bank has announced it is negotiating with the Internal Revenue Service to have levies on bank accounts for unpaid phone taxes served annually rather than on a quarterly basis.

In recent weeks the IRS has ordered the bank to deduct small amounts from customer accounts for unpaid telephone excise taxes. The bank has been charging its standard $7.50 for the cost of the paperwork which involves drafts and reports through different departments and verification of the levy to the IRS and to the customer.

The IRS had primarily used this option in the past to recover unpaid income taxes amounting to hundreds of dollars or more.

"The $7.50 charge is out of line with a $2 or $3 collection of an unpaid telephone tax bill," said a bank spokesman, "yet the paperwork is identical to a thousand dollar attachment for back taxes."

The spokesman pointed out that families who withhold their phone federal excise taxes as a war protest are reportedly increasing, especially in the San Francisco Bay Area and if the levies were to continue on a quarterly basis, the paperwork costs in the majority of the cases would far exceed the amounts collected.

Environment Firm Lists Profit Rise

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Environmental Systems International Inc. (ESI) earned $302,622, or 30 cents per share, on revenues of $3,015,747 in the fiscal year ended March 31, B.A. Berkus, president and chairman, has announced.

The figures represented gains from earnings of $187,076, or 23 cents per share, on fewer shares, and revenues of $1,427,039 in the preceding year.

Earnings Jump

ANAHEIM, Calif. (BW) — California Computer Products Inc. has reported earnings for the nine months ended March 28 were $1,604,481 on revenues of $25,587,822, or 70 cents per share.
